Winning gold

Wilmington Police do it again

By DAN HALL
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - Wilmington's police department has earned top marks once again in the Massachusetts Law Enforcement Challenge. Michael R. Begonis, Wilmington's police chief, remarked that he was extremely proud of Wilmington's finest, and spoke to the efforts they put into the contest. Through data collection, the use of traffic information, and general organization, coupled with consistent work from the officers, Wilmington took home gold in the Massachusetts Law Enforcement Challenge. More money for returning vets

By SHERYL WALSH

WILMINGTON - The state Welcome Home bonus program for returning veterans was expanded and updated over nine months ago, but concern remains that people do not know about this important benefit from the Commonwealth. The original bill was signed into law on Veterans Day in 2005 and provides funds for those returning home after certain military duty overseas.

"Mitt Romney signed it when he was governor," explains Veterans' Agent Lou Cimaglia. It was a response to deployments after 9/11. The law is House Bill 4469, commonly referred to as "The Welcome Home Bill."

Pols tangle on voting record

Miceli defends votes in face of low results in AIM scorecard

By DAN HALL
Crier Correspondent

TEWKSBURY/WILMINGTON - The Associated Industries of Massachusetts (AIM) published a scorecard on Massachusetts legislators on August 27th evaluating their voting records on issues important to employers. This bi-yearly report ranked local Rep. James Miceli the lowest in Massachusetts, coming in with an evaluation of just 50 percent.

The highest scoring legislators achieved scores of 89 percent, and the median score was a 67 in the Senate and a 78 in the House. By contrast, Paul Adams and Jim Lyons both scored 67 and retiring Charles Murphy scored 80 in the report.

AIM evaluated how legislators voted on ten legislative items identified as key economic and public policy issues.

"Before we focus on the scores, it's important that we look first at the issues - the measures on which legislators cast their votes," said John R. Regan, AIM's Executive Vice President of Government Affairs, in a statement accompanying the study. "These are substantive issues, votes that

Gordon pulls off primary, write-in victory

In Wilmington primary results the blanks tell the story

By DAN HALL
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - The primary election results have been tabulated with interesting information emerging from the analysis. In the race for Charlie Murphy's House seat, a surprise write-in candidate wins the day handily, and blanks may prove a strong predictor in November elections. Subsequently, a look at the number of blank votes for each candidate can tell us a lot about overall party unity. Overall, Wilmington experienced a lower voter turnout with just 8.7 percent of registered voters taking ballots for the state primary.

Write-in candidate Ken Gordon lost significantly in precinct 3, though blasting away competition in his native Bedford. Overall, Empty voting booths reflected the low voter turnout in both Tewksbury and Wilmington last Thursday.

Gordon beat out David Fionda, who earned just 36 votes in Wilmington. Virgina Mooney, another write-in candidate from Burlington, did not receive even one vote in town.

Although he hardly campaigned in Wilmington, Mr. Gordon told the Crier that he intends to ramp up his campaigning in town as the

Tisei courts women voters

By JAYNE W. MILLER

LYNNFIELD - Republican candidate and former Senate Minority Leader Richard Tisei spoke to a packed house of women from the 6th Congressional District at his campaign headquarters in Lynnfield Friday, launching the Women for Tisei coalition. Tisei is challenging incumbent John Tierney for the U.S. House of Representatives.

As the owner of a real estate office, an industry dominated by women brokers and realtors, Tisei spoke about his work advo-gram, but is concerned about those he does not reach. "A lot of people do not claim their money," he says. Some may not know about the bonus, especially the new enhancements.

Under the updated Massachusetts program, eligible veterans continue to receive a monetary award for a tour of duty in Afghanistan or Iraq. Now however, qualified veterans receive $1,000 for their first deployment and an added amount of $500 for subsequent deployments. Cimaglia explains the intent is to ease some of the financial burdens of transition back home.

"The Massachusetts Welcome Home Bonus reflects the Commonwealth's strong commitment to our service members and their families," said Secretary of Veterans' Services Coleman Nee when announcing the broader application of benefits. "This change in regulations will provide those who have served in combat theaters the ability to receive a full bonus payment that is reflective of their total serv-

To get the bonus, the veteran must initiate the application process him or herself. Other overseas assignments may qualify as well. The bonus is 100% tax free, and currently there is no time limit to apply. Veterans or their families can contact the Mass Department of Veterans Services or the state treasury department's Veterans Bonus Division for more information. Eligibility details and applications are available on line at mass.gov.

"The Mass Vets Advisor website is always a good portal for information," adds Cimaglia. The site explains the Welcome Home Bonus as well as most other state and federal programs. It is the result of collaborative efforts by the Massachusetts Broadband Institute, the Massachusetts Department of Veterans' Services, the Red Sox Foundation and the Massachusetts General Hospital Home Base Program. Veterans and their families can visit <http://www.massvetsadvisor.org/> for information on the Welcome Home Bonus and other veteran programs.

Double sessions in Wilmington Schools

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - Imagine having only half a day of school - every day!

In 1958, the Wilmington school system engaged in something it had never done before: holding double sessions. Students in the morning session would be in school from 8 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. The afternoon session ran from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Most of the kids in the morning session loved it — they had a half-day and the teacher couldn't keep them after school. The kids in the afternoon session, though, generally had a lower opinion, much lower. For them, it was like having detention every day. When everyone else was out playing football (or learning to smoke cigarettes), these kids were still in class, enthusiastically studying U.S. history and English grammar.

MEDICARE SURTAXES

To help pay the costs of health care reform, the 2010 law called for a Medicare surtax for high-income taxpayers to take effect in 2013. There are two parts to it.

A 3.8 percent surtax on unearned income will affect single filers with modified adjusted gross income over $200,000 and joint filers over $250,000. Modified AGI is AGI plus any excluded foreign earned income. According to the law, investment income includes interest, dividends, capitol gains, annuities, royalties and passive rental income, but not tax-free interest or payouts from retirement plans. The full profit on sales or rental properties and second homes will be hit by the surtax; some high earners may consider selling this year.

The second part is a 0.9 percent surtax on earned income - wages and incomes - from self-employment if earnings top $200,000 for singles or $250,000 for couples.

Will the new tax affect your holdings? Discuss your options with the tax-and-finance professionals at the was a small consolation, but there was nobody else around. Their friends were all in school.

The School Department was struggling to keep up with a post-war building boom that ran through the 1950s and 1960s. Farmland became subdivisions, and people who had put everything on hold during World War Two began producing the next generation, which became the "Baby Boomers."

Wilmington built a new high school in 1950, and completed an addition in 1956. A second addition opened in January 1959. The Wildwood School opened in 1954, the Glen Road School in December 1959, and the Boutwell in October 1962.

But the rate of completion of the new schools was slightly behind the rate of enrollment. The elementary grades had become overcrowded, forcing the school committee to implement double sessions in the fall of 1958 in the Swain and Wildwood schools for grades four, five and six. That ended with the January 1959 opening of the Adams Street extension of the high school, where 14 classes of fifth and sixth graders attended classes.

In September 1959, school enrollment exceeded 3000 for the first time. The problem was compounded by cating and authoring legislation on Beacon Hill that benefitted women.

The Crier spoke with Tisei following the conference to raise several issues pertinent to women voters.

When asked about equal pay for equal work, an issue raised throughout the campaign at national levels, Tisei stated that as an owner of a business dominated by women, "I treat everyone fairly," adding that he would likely support workplace protection legislation.

When asked about marriage equality, Tisei, who is openly gay and in a unique position to further mainstream marriage equality, told the Crier, "I consider myself a live and let live Republican. Government should get off your back, out of your wallets, and away from your bedroom. That's my philosophy."

"Having a vote in the GOP caucus who isn't afraid to speak fairly, I can move the ball forward on the issue," Tisei continued. "Within the party there are a lot of people who share my view and want to treat everyone fairly under the law."

Reproductive rights has also become a hot button issue raised this year spurring great reaction from the political left, in part because of the ham-handedness of certain mid-western republicans. Tisei takes the creation of a controversy on as well.

"Everybody that I talk to is concerned about jobs and the economy and our own personal budgets for our families. Things are not just bouncing back. That's what women tell me their main concerns are. They want some relief," said Tisei. "Parties will demagogue issues to scare people, not only on reproductive rights."

Tisei spent six years in the House of Representatives and twenty years in the Senate. During that time he worked to increase access to housing for single parents, improve programs targeting domestic abuse, improve supports for single parents like day care and health-care, and authored and passed a whistleblower protection law for healthcare workers.

Tisei also noted during his remarks that "most start-ups are women owned companies. This is the least amount of start-ups for businesses in thirty-five years."

To help spur more start-ups Tisei identified key initiatives for which he'd advocate including keeping taxes low, reducing regulations, and "putting some predictability into the economy again."

Tisei is identified by the National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC) as a 'young gun' candidate with a strong chance to beat Tierney in November's election.

"This is going to be a hard fought campaign," said Tisei. "People are dying to have leaders tell them the truth. Down in D.C. it's a food fight, overly partisan. I'm not going to make a lot of promises. We need common sense, need to put people first and the country first."

Tisei is the great grandson of Italian immigrants, the first member of his family to attend college, and the owner of a successful small business. He grew up in Lynnfield and resides in Wakefield.

Tisei was first elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1984 at the age of 22, the youngest Republican ever elected. After six years in the House, Tisei ran for Senate and was then re-elected to ten consecutive Senate terms in an overwhelmingly Democratic district where registered Republicans are outnumbered, 9-1.

"Being in the minority for twenty six years you have to learn to get along with people," said Tisei, remarking on his experience in the minority leadership. He turned it around on his opponent. "We have a Congressman who hasn't passed a bill, who doesn't work across the aisle."

Tierney has also been plagued by scandal involving his wife, Patrice, who pled guilty in October 2010 to "willful blindness" and tax fraud on a gambling operation that her brothers were running. Over the summer Daniel Eremian was convicted of racketing and Robert lives in Antigua, having been indicted on over 440 counts of racketeering, illegal gambling, and money laundering. While his brothers-in-law claim Tierney was well aware of everything they were doing, the 16-year Congressman maintains that he thought the offshore gambling organization was legal. Patrice Tierney was sentenced to one month in prison followed by five months house arrest. Tisei praised Senator Scott Brown for his work with both sides of the aisle and indicates he would do the same.

During the 2010 legislative session, he led opposition to the sales tax increase, while simultaneously offering over $1 billion in cost-saving reform measures. He was chosen as the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor joining Charlie Baker on the ticket in the 2010 the arrival of 71 students who were not pre-registered. Three grades were in double sessions that fall, fourth, eighth and ninth. That ended on Dec. 11 with the opening of the Glen Road School. Construction had been delayed because of a steel strike.

The Boutwell School also had a construction delay for its opening in the fall of 1962, with double sessions for all six grades for a month and a half. The old West School was put back into service for two first grade classes. Two second grades used a room at the Swain School, and four rooms in the high school housed eight other classes in grades three through six. The Boutwell opened on October 17, 1960.

Double sessions have not been used since then. In the 1960s, the town built four large schools: the North and West Intermediate, the Woburn Street School and the Shawsheen School.

Kerry Statement on Embassy Attacks, Death of Ambassador Stevens

Washington, DC - Senator John Kerry, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, made the following statement today in response to the violence that took place at the Egyptian and Libyan Embassies, resulting in the death of U.S. Ambassador to Libya Chris Stevens and three other American embassy personnel.

"The deaths of Ambassador Stevens and his team are heartbreaking. It's easy for a lot of people to forget that our diplomats are on the frontlines of the world's most dangerous places and they're there trying to make the world safer at great risk to themselves and their families. Chris Stevens was all that and more. He was a foreign service professional down to his toes, a guy who had served on the Foreign Relations Committee and embraced tough odds and tough assignments overseas. He had the guts and grit to serve as our envoy during the rebellion, and his presence there reminded Libyans that America stood with them for freedom in the face of violence. He was continuing that noble work as Ambassador with enormous skill. He was an important part of the work we are doing in Libya, and we will not let this deplorable violence turn back the progress he helped make possible.

"The violence in Cairo and Benghazi is unacceptable and unjustifiable. The stupidity of one filmmaker, no matter how offensive, is not now, and never, a rationale for violence. A despicable act like this hurts us all - Americans and peaceful people who aspire to build their own democracy.

"This is one of those moments when Americans must unite as Americans. It is exactly the wrong time to throw political punches. It is a time to restore calm and proceed wisely."

Supporting cancer patients and their siblings

Dear Editor,
This past Sunday, September 9, nine year old Emily Cashell, a fourth grade student at the Louise Davy Trahan Elementary School here in Tewksbury, started her walk in Hopkinton where she attempted to walk the entire 26.2 miles of the Boston Marathon route to Boston. Emily made it to the 16 mile mark of the walk before her feet became too sore to walk any further.

Emily's team "Strides for Siblings," which she captains, is raising money for the Siblings Group at the Jimmy Fund Clinic at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute and below is her letter asking for your support:

Hello my name is Emily Cashell, I am nine years old and I attend the fourth grade at the Trahan Elementary School in Tewksbury, MA.

I am writing you to ask if you would please make a donation to my Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund walk team, "Strides for Siblings". We will be walking in the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk this Sunday September 9, 2012. I will be walking the entire 26.2 miles along with my father. We have been practicing and I am ready to take on this challenge.

"Strides for Siblings," is raising funds for the Siblings Program at the Jimmy Fund Clinic at Dana Farber Cancer Institute. I hope that our Team will also raise awareness that a diagnosis of Pediatric Cancers affect the entire family from the patient, parents, brothers and sisters. As a sibling of a cancer survivor (my sister Ashley) I found the Siblings Program was very important with helping me to cope with the feelings and turbulence that my whole family's life was thrown into. I feel that the Siblings Program is a very important part of Cancer Treatment for the brothers and sisters of pediatric Cancer patients. The Siblings program offered me one on one counseling which helped me to express my feelings and understand what my sister was going through. The Siblings Program also gave me the opportunity to meet other siblings dealing with very similar feelings and issues as I was. As a sister of a Cancer Survivor I feel that the Siblings Program should always be there for the brothers and sisters of Pediatric Cancer Patients, just like it was there for me when I needed it!

Our Team goal is to raise a minimum of $10,000.00. You can still make a donation to our Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund by entering the link below to make an online donation, <http://www.jimmyfundwalk.org/2012/stridesforsiblings>

Or www.jimmyfundwalk.org and search for team "Strides for Siblings"

Checks can be mailed directly to:

The funds raised will be given to the Dr. Frumer-Styron's Sibling Development Fund at the Jimmy Fund Clinic, Dana Farber Cancer Institute. Below is a link for a video about the Siblings Program. Emily is in this video, many of our friends' children are also featured. It gives you the thoughts of pediatric cancer patients' siblings. Gloucester's Rocky Neck

Art is the great democrat, calling forth creative genius from every sector of society, disregarding race or religion or wealth or color.

-John F. Kennedy

It's like a gentle tap on the shoulder - the end of August into September - saying summer is winding down. No matter how hot the days are, the slant of the sun is different and the days are shorter, the night air feels better. The garden is the most telling. Many of my annuals are leggy and tired-looking, as if to say, enough of being bright and perky. Some plants have dried up even with rain and watering. On the other hand, fall flowers like mums and asters and most vegetables are robust and coming into their own - just like the season of autumn, strong and invigorated.

It would be out of the question for me to live without the four seasons of New England. What's best is anticipating the changes - always looking forward to the drama of the new season. During that transition, the off-season, nature makes us stop and wait before gearing up for what's next - a time to "collect oneself" and take stock. It's this time of the year, late August and September, that I'm drawn to the coast, where things are slowing down.

To look at a map of Gloucester is really the only way to fully grasp the intricacies and irregularity of the mesmerizing, beautiful coastline of bays, inlets and coves. With spectacular beaches and striking geology, looking out across the Atlantic Ocean will take your breath away.

A small curved peninsula sitting in Smith Cove, the Rocky Neck Art Colony in Gloucester is the oldest continually operating artist colony in the country. When you first turn onto Rocky Neck Avenue, Sailor Stan's will instantly catch your eye. Painted orange-yellow with green and purple panels, you can't miss it. But flamboyant colors are more the rule than the exception for this settlement of working artists. For over 150 years artists have been coming to this enchanted enclave, many distinguished, such as Winslow Homer, Childe Hassam, Edward Hopper and Emile Gruppe to name a few. Gloucester's famous "Man at the Wheel" memorial to lost fishermen was created by Leonard Craske in his studio at Rocky Neck in the 1920s. Authors Louisa May Alcott and Rudyard Kipling and other well-known writers frequented Rocky Neck.

What makes Rocky Neck different from all the other popular seaside destinations is that it's not touristy. Its primary mission is to support artists and to provide a place for them to work. Many live in back rooms or lofts above their studios and shops. So when you stroll down the winding avenue and alleys, the atmosphere is peaceful and purposeful. Most of the galleries and shops have that "beach shack" look, with painted pots filled with plants and flowers, vines climbing on trellises leaning against weathered shingles, shells and rocks outside the doors. Some shops have cobblestone walkways cutting through flower beds and half-hidden patios with tiny white lights, jingling wind-chimes and unusual ornaments. You might find a note tacked up on an open door saying "Right Back." The "Neck" feels like a close-knit neighborhood - the cottage-like buildings are connected or very close together, separated only by an alley.

All of the artists in residence know each other - this is also their home. So there's a sense of good faith, that it's okay to "step out" for a few minutes, a step back to a time when we all trusted each other and when a visitor was welcome.

The view of lobster boats, sailboats and yachts docked and passing through the busy Cove is post card picturesque. On the opposite side of the narrow street, lush hydrangeas, roses, Russian sage and Rose of Sharon fill the small yards of residential homes. Ivy-covered walls and gorgeous hanging baskets add to the charm and allure as you meander along.

An ice cream shop "cabin" that's painted strawberry pink and lavender with blue floor boards is around the corner from an historical fish storage warehouse, now an art gallery. The exterior of the building is made of imported etched Russian tin - painted army green. Inside, the heavy wooden plank floor leads to the back wall of full windows with soft waves right below.

Real art is for sale - paintings and photography, jewelry, pottery, sculpture and other artistic creations. The mood is unhurried, shop owners take the time to chat, the restaurants are easygoing and, needless to say, the fish is fabulous. Hey, this is Gloucester, the oldest port in the country - a fishing community first. And that's what makes Gloucester so bewitching. Hard working fishermen, the art scene, exquisite waterfront estates looking out on it all, beautifully blended together. As the saying goes, the cure for everything is salt water - sweat and tears - and the sea. And add art for a perfect elixir.

Out of the woods

By SCOTT J. MULLOWNEY

Staff Columnist

I timed my vacation perfectly this year as far as the weather was concerned. I had an eleven-day stretch of sunshine, rest and recreation from August 23rd through September 5th. I dropped out of the rat race, stopped shaving and took off my Timex. I traveled New England with my family. I enjoyed a three-day stay in Connecticut before returning home to Stoneham for one night. Without missing a beat, the next morning I packed my car and headed to the mountains of New Hampshire. I lost track of the days. I had no internet connection. I barely used my cell phone. Refreshed and recharged by the mountain air, I wished my vacation could have lasted forever. I was really getting used my newfound life of leisure.

Returning from vacations never bothered me until now. My first day back to work was on Wednesday. The week was already half over but it still felt incredibly long. I am the person who says he doesn't mind being stuck in traffic because of my plethora of patience. However, the wall of traffic I hit at 8:00 a.m. on route 93 heading into Boston made a liar out of me. At least I had time to reflect. < Insert Wayne's World wavy line flashback/sound effect here >

Just last week my family and I drove down the Kancamagus Highway with nothing to see but trees. We weren't really sure where the road was taking us and we didn't really care. My wife was driving so I cared even less. After 30 minutes of being surrounded by forest outside every window, I got slightly anxious. The only glimmer of humanity was a slightly ominous sign warning us "No Gas Next 32 Miles".

"The road has to lead somewhere," my wife said as she drove on. She's more adventurous than I am. I sensed there was no turning around so I bit my tongue and tried to enjoy the ride. We plunged headlong into the unknown, passing neither man nor beast. (I was looking for moose but saw nary a chipmunk.) We followed the path like pioneers. We had no cell phone service and no GPS connection. The radio played only static. We passed natural rock formation waterfalls that ended in a cool looking river. We saw random hikers parked at scenic view areas. (And what views!) An hour and a half later we passed a sign declaring "Now Leaving White Mountain National Forest Park". We ended up on Route 16 in Conway, NH and headed for North Conway to spend the rest of our day. Civilization at last (relatively speaking).

And now here I am, mere days later, alone in my vehicle, stopped on the highway in rush hour traffic on a road to nowhere in a blinding downpour courtesy of hurricane Isaac. Upon my return to the office, I tried to hold onto precious memories of the last two weeks. Day-to-day reality did its best to force them out of my head forever, but a few special moments held firm. My office cubicle maze reminded me of navigating through the Polar Caves (only a lot less fun). The everyday roadblocks I hit trying to get my job done were like the blockades created during last week's two-hour Parcheesi games. My day-to-day financial transactions were reminiscent of my family's Monopoly tournament. (I went bankrupt there too.)

My week at work dragged on: mountain views were replaced by skyscrapers; wildlife was replaced by coworkers; fresh air blown away by car exhaust; the sound of crickets replaced by the noise of construction sites. I longed to sit by a campfire once more. The stack of bills and junk mail waiting for me when I returned home would make great kindling.

I'm not sure why transitioning back to real time was so difficult this year. Summer seems to end when school begins. And why does it feel like everyone's life is moving at a million miles an hour? I can't wait for my next vacation, whenever that is. Until then, I'll dream of seeing the forest through the trees. Hopefully they'll still be standing after this active hurricane season passes. Life was a lot less complicated two weeks ago in the mountains, hungry bears and all.

New state cultural grants

Finegold and Miceli announce $6K+ in grants to Tewksbury Cultural Council

TEWKSBURY—State Senator Barry Finegold and State Representative Jim Miceli announced Tuesday that the Massachusetts Cultural Council (MCC) has awarded grants totaling $6,440 to the Tewksbury Cultural Council.

This grant supports a wide variety of cultural activities and projects that benefit local residents such as aiding school field trips, library projects, art shows, and more. The statement also asserts that the grant "supports jobs in the nonprofit cultural sector." The announcement was made as part of MCC's statewide funding program.

"MCC grants help to ensure that the unique cultural resources in Tewksbury and the extraordinary breadth of cultural activity across the Commonwealth continue to flourish and benefit our citizens today and for years to come," Finegold said. "The impact of state support for the arts, humanities, and sciences is significant. The Tewksbury Cultural Council really makes an effort to support a variety of groups and programs so I look forward to see what the Council introduces the town to this year."

"It is a pleasure to put funding in an area that has been so dramatically impacted these last few years. This is probably one of the best investments we can make in the community. Contributing to the cultural betterment of our citizens creates a lasting benefit," said Miceli.

The grants were part of MCC's $8 million statewide investment in the nonprofit cultural sector. Tewksbury will benefit from the Local Cultural Councils program which was funded this year at $2.3 million.

According to the release, Local Cultural Councils (LCCs) comprise the most extensive public cultural funding network in the nation. They provide funding to every Massachusetts city and town through 329 local councils and more than 2,300 volunteers. The councils support local arts and history, fund school field trips, and sponsor local concerts and exhibitions. Grants to local councils range from $3,870 for the smallest towns to $74,270 for Worcester and $133,320 for Boston, according to a formula that reflects the state's local aid system.

The MCC is a state agency supporting the arts, sciences, and humanities, to improve the quality of life in Massachusetts and its communities. It pursues its mission through a combination of grants, services, and advocacy for nonprofit cultural organizations, schools, communities, and artists. MCC's total budget for the current fiscal year is $11.2 million, which includes annual grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and other sources. Local man arrested in East Woburn

Allegedly stealing copper, led foot chase

WOBURN - Police caught a Wilmington man allegedly trying to break into storage containers filled with metal and other construction materials at a Commerce Way work site early Friday morning.

Isaihas McCaffrey, 22, of Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington, was arrested at approximately 3:10 a.m. on Friday following a brief foot chase from 34 Commerce Way's Amgen property and through a wooded area nearby.

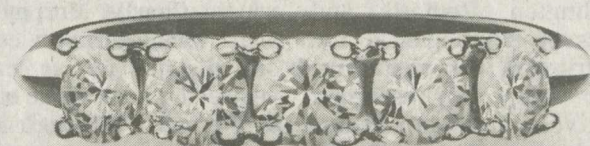

The 22-year-old, who was reportedly carrying two masks, two pairs of gloves, a police scanner turned to the Woburn Police communication channel, and a bag used to carry lock cutters, has been charged with possession of a burglarious tool and attempt to commit a crime.

According to police reports, Officer Paul Doherty was sent to the construction site after a third-party security firm observed two masked men dressed all in black standing around the storage units.

Patrolman Robert Curran managed to flush McCaffrey out of a hiding spot and chase him down Commerce Way, where the suspect then ran into a wooded area. Doherty, moving his cruiser to cut off the 22-year-old, managed to tackle the suspect before he could get away.

Police found evidence that multiple storage containers had been broken into at the site, where several coils of copper wiring had apparently been stacked off to one side.

'I'd change a lot of things about my life. But not you.'

You mean it. This says it.

Letters to the editor

Thanks from Ken Gordon

To The Editor:

With humility and inspired by awe, I offer my sincere gratitude to all of those who contributed to our campaign for the seat of State Representative from the 21st Middlesex District, covering Burlington, Bedford, and parts of Wilmington. You contributed with your time, your energy, your resources, your votes and your support. You helped get out our message in the shortest windows of time, and it was received.

To the voters who wrote my name on your ballot or used a sticker to do so, thank you. You overcame the inconvenience of a sticker campaign and I appreciate your vote. I will work even harder between now and the general election to prove that your faith in me is worthwhile. Our opponents ran good campaigns, as well. If you voted for one of my opponents I encourage you to take a fresh look at my website. I hope that I can count on your vote in the general election.

Thank you to David Fionda and Virginia Mooney. You ran with class and with grace. Even if we proposed different solutions to our problems, our common goal was to solve them. Thank you to Charlie Murphy for your wonderful service to our district for so many years. You leave large shoes to fill, and I will work hard to live up to your example.

To my wife Breena and our son Brandon, thank you for putting up with my hectic schedule these past weeks. Breena made sure I was prepared for the challenges that faced me. And Brandon, thank you for holding signs for me and telling your friends to vote for your dad. I am proud of every vote I earned, but none more so than when you told me I earned the votes of your entire fourth grade class at Lane School.

Thank you,
Ken

Great summer for Concerts on the Common

To the Editor:

The Wilmington Recreation Department's thirty-fifth Annual Summer Concert Series is now in the record books.

The Don Campbell Trio kicked off the season with their smooth vocals and familiar tunes that reminded the crowd why we keep asking them back! The Four Guys in Tuxes, new to our series, had concert goers singing along to current and classic melodies. Finally, back by popular demand, Peking and the Mystics, closed out the season with an a cappella performance that was everything we hoped for - and more!

The generosity of local businesses and organizations allowed us to bring the community together to enjoy summer in New England along with some great music on our Town Common. Please join us as we thank Century 21 Starwood, Dunkin Donuts at 195 Main Street, Dunkin Donuts at 321 Main Street, Lowell Five Bank, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, the Wilmington Arts Council and the Massachusetts Cultural Council for sponsoring concerts this year. We would be remiss not to send special thanks along to the Wilmington Police Department for the assignment of Auxiliary Officers, the Fourth of July Committee for use of their facility, and to Joan Maga for staffing the building during each concert.

We look forward to continuing this concert series for many years to come. We hope to see you on the Common again next year.

Sincerely,

Deborah Cipriani

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

Bring out the band!

It was disappointing not to see the band on the field during halftime at the football game Friday night. I'm looking forward to seeing them play to the audience in the stands as opposed to the empty football field from the stands.

Outstanding Open House

Two Thumbs Up to the faculty and staff at TMHS, as well as district administration, for putting on such an outstanding, and smoothly run, open house Saturday. With nearly 6,000 visitors everything worked well and the new school sparkled. Thanks to Mahoney's Too for furnishing fall plants to decorate the interior. Very proud to be from Tewksbury!

School Bus safety

Thumbs up to the drivers in Tewksbury who are exercising more caution driving near school buses this year. In the past I have observed quite a few drivers who try to race past a school bus that is going in the opposite direction before the driver puts the flashing lights on. It's comforting to know that an increasing number of drivers recognize that the safety of our school children takes priority over getting to wherever they are going in a hurry.

Letter to the editor

Thanks from Team Fionda

Dear Editor,

Twelve weeks ago, Charley Murphy, our State Representative, decided to not run for re-election. Within days, the race was on to succeed him. I saw joining the Legislature as a logical next step to my lifelong dedication to community service. Three days after Charley's announcement, I announced my candidacy, vowing to Put People First.

We decided from the start to run a traditional campaign, with the goal of letting the voters of the 21st Middlesex District decide who will represent them.

We rolled up our sleeves and went to work, 16 hours a day, 7 days a week. We got our Facebook page and website up within days. We announced our candidacy to the media. We called current and former elected officials, seeking their advice and support. We talked with voters, looking to understand the issues that were important to them.

We organized Team Fionda, an incredibly passionate, grass-roots force of volunteers who rolled up their sleeves and made calls to over 4,000 voters, knocked on over 700 doors, organized and attended 70 events, and passed out stickers at three polling places on Election Day.

This was my first run at political office, however, our campaign attracted many admirers. We were endorsed by three sitting State Representatives: Charley Murphy (Burlington) James Miceli (Wilmington) and Jim Dwyer (Woburn). I never asked for any of these endorsements.

We were endorsed by Local 103 (Electrical) Local 4 (Elevator Constructors) and Local 17 (Sheet Metal Workers). My family has always had a strong union background and I would like to thank these unions for their support.

Despite winning every precinct in Burlington and Wilmington, the disproportionately larger turnout in Bedford, due to the State Senate race there, combined with a local candidate, was the one challenge that we could not conquer.

Congratulations to Ken Gordon and as a fellow Democrat, I will support him in the general election. This campaign was an incredibly rewarding experience for me and my family. I want to thank everyone who supported us at the polls, attended an event, made a contribution, held a sign, made calls, knocked on doors or asked their friends and family to support me.

Finally, I would like to thank the residents of Bedford, Burlington and Wilmington for the opportunity to represent you. Even though the result was not what we wanted, we can hold our heads high and see what the future holds.

Not just another day at the beach

WILMINGTON - Sept. 6: It's a seasonably warm fall day. As gray clouds blanket the New England skies, it's almost as if the sun is chasing you as you make the forty mile journey up the scenic Massachusetts coast. Memories of doing this as a child are wild. You recall out loud with friends every town you travel through and vividly remember all the photographs you took while you were here last. You have reached your destination: Niles Beach, Gloucester, Massachusetts. Imagine you are doing this for the last time.

Meet Woburn resident John MacNeil. After a four-year period of declining health, John is actively dying. It was not an easy decision to stop all treatments, but he is in the company of his family - his two sons and his mother are by his side. Upon making these thought-out end-of-life decisions, John expressed a desire to go back to the beach and feed the sea gulls one last time - something he has missed greatly since he fell ill and began relying on 24-hour care at Wilmington Health Care Center, where he also receives his Hospice care from Care Alternatives Hospice.

Thanks to the "Wilmington Wishes" program and a dedicated and extraordinary care team of three organizations, his dying wish was made possible last Thursday. Director of Social Services Nancy Judd and her team at Wilmington Health Care Center, the nursing center where John has been a resident for four months, collaborated with John's hospice nurse Jill Farris and Father Larry Camerlin, the hospice priest; and Tommy McDonough of Lifeline Ambulance. They made John's wish come true. "It was truly the least we could do for John. Living on the beach in Gloucester myself, it reminded me of how short life really is and how many daily gifts we take for granted," said Judd.

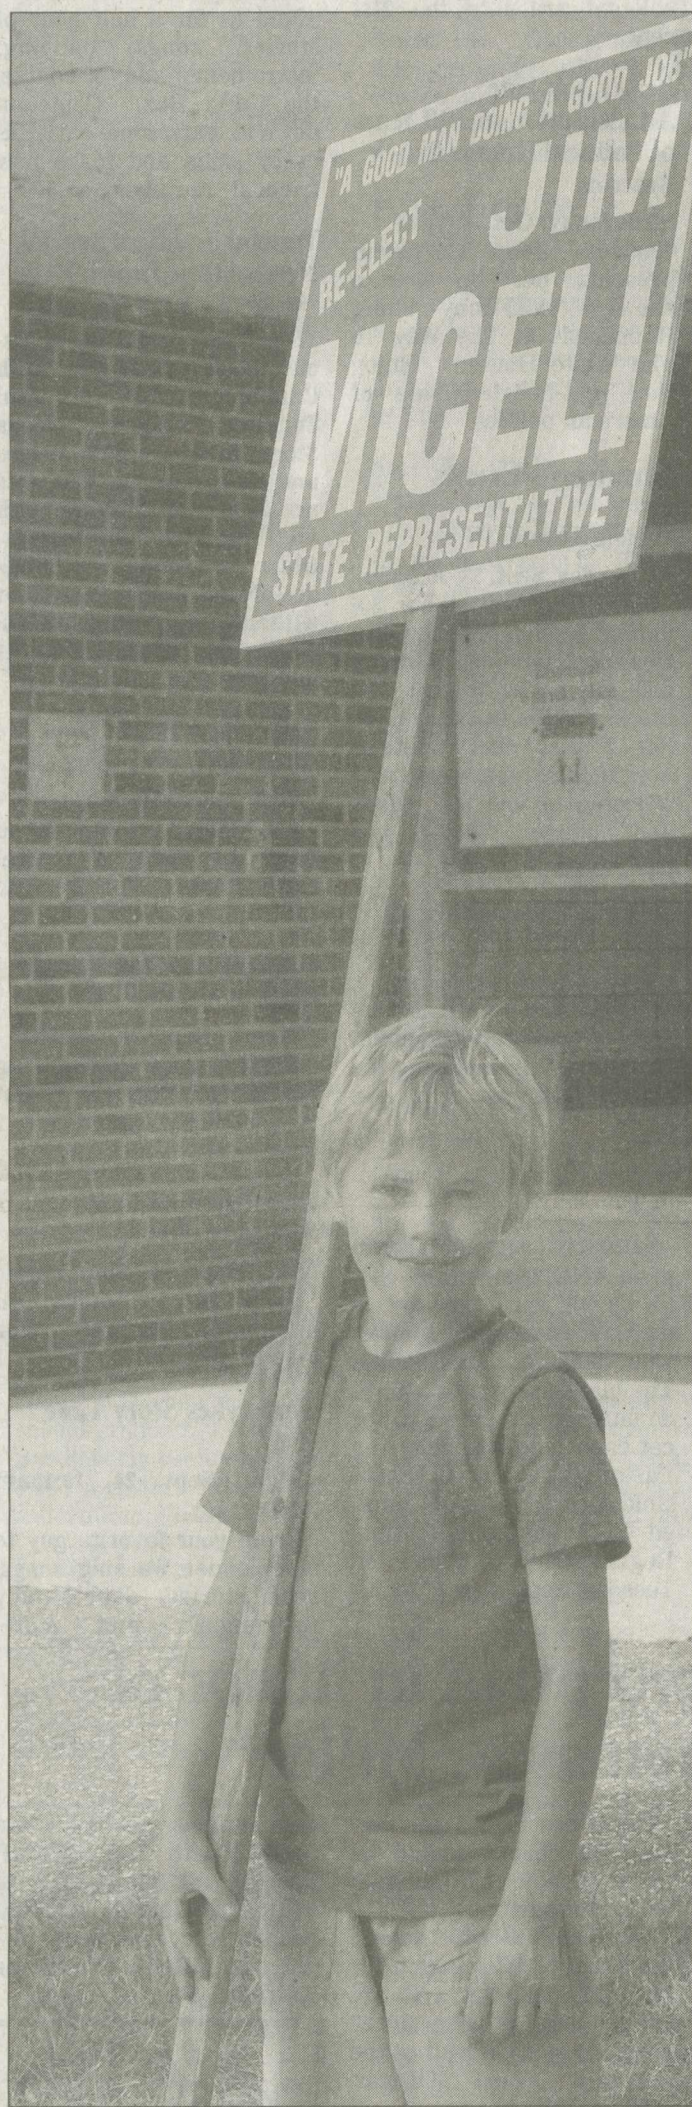

During the drive up the coast in the Lifeline Chair Car, John and the team share laughter and jokes while Tommy challenges them in New England trivia. There are a couple stops along the way, one for sea glass on the sand, another for fried clams and a nice cold beer, something he hasn't enjoyed for quite some time after complications from diabetes. John tells stories not only about the many scenic photographs he enjoyed taking along this route in years passed, but also of memories with family and his mother when he was a child.

John was thankful and gracious to have the opportunity to see all these things again one last time. These things he shared with his friends at Wilmington Health Care Center, some who had never been to the beaches in Gloucester, and with his nurse Jill and social worker Nancy. John assured his family and friends that he was totally at peace with his decision and would always love the beauty of New England. He said he would cherish the photos taken from his memorable trip to Gloucester and would and share the with his friends.

Wilmington Health Care Center is a 132-bed rehabilitation and nursing facility in Wilmington and offers short-term rehabilitation, long term care and memory care. The "Wilmington Wishes" program was started by Halley Diaz the Program Director at Wilmington Health Care Center. This special program allows the center to fulfill its residents' last wishes before they pass. Funds are raised privately through fundraisers, the help of area providers, and private donations. The goal is to grow the program so that many more families can experience the same peace John's family did seeing him so happy and at peace doing something he loved one last time.

Buzzell Senior Center

Terri's Topics

WILMINGTON - Welcome to National Senior Center Month. I hope that everyone enjoyed the summer, hard to believe that autumn is upon us! As always, there are some great events to look forward to so try to come and enjoy!

THANK YOU MICHAEL CAIRA!

On Wednesday, September 12, 2012 at 1:00PM the Department of Elderly Services, with the support of volunteers, will be putting on a live performance in wishing the Town Manager, Michael Caira, a happy retirement and thank him for all his support for the past 22 years of service to our department and to the residents in the Town of Wilmington. We will also be welcoming the new Town Manager, Jeff Hull, and celebrating his new position. Please call if interested (978-657-7595) in joining in on the fun. Space is limited.

WORLD ALZHEIMER'S DAY

September 21 is World Alzheimer's Day - a day when the Alzheimer's Association joins with organizations and people around the globe to raise awareness about Alzheimer's and its impact on families, communities and nations. Today, 35 million people worldwide are affected by Alzheimer's and related dementias, and this number is growing rapidly. World Alzheimer's Day is an opportunity to raise awareness about Alzheimer's disease and the need for more education, support and research. Take action by joining one of the many World Alzheimer's Day events. One such event will be with the Metro-North Alzheimer's Partnership, doing the Walk to End Alzheimer's on Sunday, September 23: Greater Boston Walk along the Charles River in Cambridge. Please feel free to make a donation and place a purple flower in someone's memory in our Buzzell Senior Center lobby.

SENIOR HARVEST BREAKFAST

Senior Harvest Breakfast will be on Saturday, September 22, 2012 from 8:00 AM - 10:00 AM at the center to support the Wilmington High School Scholarship Fund. We will be serving Sausage, French Toast, Home fries, Scrambled Eggs, juice, coffee and tea. Students from Rotary Interactive will be our servers. The cost is $5.00 per person. Tickets can be bought in advance and are available at the center. Space is limited. Any questions please call 978-657-7595.

FALL COMPUTER CLASSES

Now that we have turned the calendar to September, we want to remind you that our computer volunteer is still with us willing to try to answer those nagging computer questions you have put on the back burner during the summer months. He is here in the computer room every Tuesday morning starting September 4th from 9 to 11:30 AM, so feel free to drop in. Remember, questions about buying a computer, specific computer problems, word processing, buying a digital camera, or photo editing can be obtained right here without the hassle of asking the kids and listening to how they don't have time to help. Our volunteer has the time and is ready, so please do drop in any Tuesday morning.

On Thursday mornings,

we will be offering a special 4-week computer class, with each session taught as one block of instruction. Once a class session has begun, we will not be able to accept "walk-ins" as it would not be fair for those folks already enrolled. The first session, called "Introduction to Computers," runs Thursday mornings for 4 weeks. The first class meets on Thursday, October 11. The last class meets Thursday, November 1st. Classes will be for two (2) hours starting at 9:30AM to 11:30AM. If you are interested, please sign up or call the front desk as the size of the class will be limited to three students, because we only have three computers to work with. In the future, other topics such as Word Processing, Digital Cameras and Digital Photo Editing will be covered.

AGING IN PLACE

A significant concern as people grow older is that they may have to leave their home. This would mean leaving behind a comfortable setting familiar community and many memories. Most American seniors desire to stay in their homes for the rest of their lives. In fact, an AARP survey found this number to be greater than 80% of seniors. This "stay at home" approach is also known as "Aging in Place". To "age in place" one should be aware of community help and services available to deal with increasing frailty, age related problems, and/or illness.

On Thursday, September 27 at 1:00PM we will be offering a presentation on the issue of "Aging in Place." We will have a representative from Minuteman Senior Services in Burlington MA, whose mission is to help elders and others with long-term care needs remain in their own homes, safe, comfortable and independent, for as long as they are able, and who are funded in part or in full by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs. ABC Home Healthcare Professionals, a representative of the private home care industry specializing in elderly and chronic care, will also be in attendance along with Cooperative Elder Services Inc of Burlington, adult day health programs, providing services to promote health and independence. The goal of this program is to examine different types of services available to elders in our community that help maintain independence in their own homes. Feel free to sign up at front lobby. Light refreshments will be served.

GOT BOCCÉ? ... WE DO!!

Come join us for bocce at the Buzzell Senior Center. For all interested in playing bocce and forming a tournament team, we get together on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11:30 AM. The first tournament scheduled is on Wednesday, September 26 at 4:00PM.

WII TOURNAMENT

On Thursday, September 20 at 11:30AM, the Wii Bowling Team, "Buzzell Strike Queens", will be having a tournament with the Reading Council on Aging here at the Buzzell Senior Center. Feel free to come in and cheer them on. Those interested in being on the team for future events are more than welcome to come practice on Tuesdays at 1:00PM.

Another reason for Wilmington to be proud of their High School students. These 5 WHS students awoke in the wee hours of the morning on Sunday to volunteer at the Annual Jimmy Fund Walk. They greeted, photographed and cheered on the walkers from the starting point in Hopkinton. (L-R) Ryan Holloran, Megan Priem, Bradley Priem, Jenny Holloran and Brian Priem

Clancy's battalion builds medical facility in Afghanistan

FHTNC -Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Adam R. Clancy, a 2000 graduate of Wilmington High School, who is assigned with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion (NMCB) 11, Det Musa Qal'ah, recently completed construction of a 3,100-square-foot medical facility at a combat outpost in the Musa Qal'ah region of southern Afghanistan.

The medical facility, which houses a trauma ward, two operating rooms, a laboratory, and a post-anesthesia recovery room, will provide medical evacuation support and trauma care for operating forces at numerous outposts and forward operating bases in the Musa Qal'ah region.

U.S. Navy Seabees have a unique expertise in expeditionary construction. Their ability to build a quality product in a contingency environment during a time of war is reflected in their motto "We build, we fight." Enduring extreme heat, high winds and frequent dust storms, Detachment Musa Qal'ah took pride in overcoming the challenges of living and working in austere conditions.

Homeported in Gulfport, Mississippi, NMCB-11 is deployed to Afghanistan to conduct general, mobility, survivability engineering operations, defensive operations, Afghan National Army partnering and detachment of units in combined/joint operations area Afghanistan in order to enable the neutralization of the insurgency and support improved governance and stability operations.

Clancy joined the Navy in June 2008.

Rotary Governor visits Tewksbury Rotary Club

TEWKSBURY - It's the part of the job that he loves the most, visiting all the 54 Rotary Clubs in his district. But, little did Rick Dietz know that when joined Rotary in 1998 he would become president of his club and move up through the ranks to be Governor of District 7910. This has brought challenges and friends.

Thursday at noon was his time in Tewksbury to meet members and deliver messages. He said his goal for his year in office is to increase membership by 10 percent, a daunting task these days when most organizations are losing membership.

Programs that bring families together is one way he stressed, citing the Rotary Club of Natick which has established a bicycle tour of their town.

Here in Tewksbury, member Tim Miller spoke of several programs the Tewksbury Rotary Club performs, some in the highlight and others just serving the needs of the community behind the scenes. In the forefront is the Taste of Tewksbury, a very popular community gathering where local restaurants display and serve their fare to the public. Held at the Tewksbury Country Club each spring it is a sell-out every year.

Behind the scenes, the club provides a Christmas party to people sheltered at Tewksbury Hospital. They also support the Tewksbury Food Pantry and provide thousands of dollars of scholarships to graduating seniors at Tewksbury Memorial High School. During the school year they present a "Hats Off" award to students at TMHS to recognize outstanding achievement in their studies.

President Arthur Costa mentioned that the club is always seeking ways they can help the community.

Gov. Dietz then presented a gift from Rotary International President Sakuji Tanaka (of Japan), a flag bearing the theme for Rotary International this year: Peace Through Service.

When Gov. Dietz met Tanaka he was surprised to learn that the Japanese did not expect the outpouring of help that the entire world gave with the tsunami struck last year. That inspired his theme for his year as International President.

The Tewksbury Rotary Club meets every Thursday at 12:15 at the Tewksbury Country Club. Membership is open to men and women who would like to help serve Tewksbury and the World. It is a club of business men and women. One does not have to be the owner, but must be the representative of a company or business located in Tewksbury.

Contact Arthur Costa at 978-851-0300 or Jim Hickey at 978-851-8945

The Old Sturbridge Village Harvest party hay ride is always a favorite.

Harvest season highlights at Old Sturbridge Village

STURBRIDGE - Old Sturbridge Village begins its celebration of the fall harvest season with a series of weekly Friday night Harvest Parties starting September 21 through October 12, and the museum's annual Apple Days festival is set for Saturday and Sunday September 29-30. The Friday Night Harvest Parties feature horse-drawn hayrides, a bonfire, live music, storytelling, food and beer tents, and a "Waterfire" display on the Millpond. During Apple Days, visitors can taste forgotten heirloom apple varieties and mulled cider, and see the ox-powered Cider Mill in operation. For times and details: call 800-SEE-1830 or visit www.osv.org

Friday Night Harvest Parties Sept. 21-Oct. 12

Crisp fall air and the crackle of a bonfire set the mood for these traditional tributes to the fall season. Musical entertainment will include Irish music by Full Gael and brass quintet

Quintebass; the food and beer tents will feature hot dogs, hamburgers, clam chowder, snacks, beer and other beverages. New this year is the addition of Native American storytelling, and personality readings by a 19th-century style "phrenologist."

Phrenology was all the rage in 1830s, and was hailed as a science that could unlock the secrets of the human brain and determine personality traits simply by measuring the skull! Although now viewed as pop culture entertainment and glorified fortune telling, for a time phrenology was seen as serious science. Even Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, had a phrenology reading as a young woman in 1839 that supposedly influenced her career.

Apple Days Sept. 29-30

With its "living collection" of heirloom apple trees, Old Sturbridge Village is one of the best places in the country to learn about and taste rare varieties of antique apples. During Apple Days, visitors can see the whole story - how apples were grown, picked, preserved, stored, and how they were used in cooking and cider-making.

In early New England, apples were an important food source all year long. Some varieties, like Baldwins and Roxbury Russets, could keep for months. Children had the important job of checking the apples stored in barrels in the root cellar, making sure that "one bad apple" did not "spoil the bunch."

Although supermarket apples today are limited to a few varieties, there were once thousands of apple varieties in North America, with distinctive tastes and colorful names like Sheepnose, Westfield-Seek-None, and Hubbardston Nonesuch. Thomas Jefferson favored a dessert apple called Esopus Spitzenburg, which was discovered in Esopus, New York.

Old Sturbridge Village celebrates New England life in the 1830s and is one of the largest living history museums in the country. The museum is open daily 9:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. seven days a week. OSV offers free parking and a free return visit within 10 days. Admission: $24; seniors $22; children 3-17, $8; children 2 and under, free. Woo Card subscribers get $5 off adult daytime admission; college Woo cardholders receive $12 off adult daytime admission. For times and details of all OSV activities visit: www.osv.org or call 1-800-SEE-1830.

Gordan pulls off primary, write-in victory election comes closer. "Wilmington is important, and you can expect to see me there very often."

Gordon secured strong support in Bedford, which turned out a high 20 percent of registered voters, with 655 votes. Murphy, who announced he would not run for re-election after the ballot closed, came in second in Bedford with 427 votes. Fionda earned just 102 votes, and once again, Mooney received no votes. Burlington, Fionda's hometown, turned out 13.3 percent, but while winning the town with 454 votes to Murphy's 262 and Gordon's 257, it was not enough to overpower the gap created in Bedford. Mooney picked up 41 votes in Burlington.

In the Democrat for the Senate race, Elizabeth Warren came away 555 votes out of 712 votes cast. 126 votes were blanks, and 31 votes were write in candidates. Elizabeth Warren commanded 78 percent of the vote, and blanks constituted 17 percent of the vote, leaving write in candidates with 5 percent.

The Republican for the senate race results showcased Scott Brown earning 606 out of 619 votes cast. This earned him 98 percent of the republican vote, with the remaining two percent constituting a miniscule number of blanks and write in candidates.

In the Democratic Representative in Congress race, John F. Tierney earned 546 of 712 votes, constituting 76 percent of the vote. 155 votes were blank, and 11 votes were write-in candidates. Blanks constituted 22 percent of the vote, with the write in vote consisting of two percent.

In the Republican Representative in Congress race, Richard Tisei commanded 543 of 619 votes. This constituted 87 percent of the popular vote. Write in candidates earned 7 votes, and the remaining 69 votes were blanks. Blanks occupied 11 percent of the vote, and write in candidates earned just over 1 percent.

In the Democratic Representative in General Court Race, 19 term incumbent Miceli won in the precincts he represents, earning 549 of 618 possible votes. This constitutes 88 percent of the vote. 5 write in candidates and 64 blanks represent the rest of the 618 possible votes.

Miceli's opponent, Tewksbury Selectman Douglas Sears, earned 587 of 753 votes cast in the Republican Representative in Congress primary. With 153 blanks and 13 write-ins in this race, Sears received 78 percent of the vote, and blanks constituted twenty percent of the vote.

Ken Gordon won the primary race for Charlie Murphy's seat, beating out David Fionda and Virginia Mooney overall, even though he only earned 7 votes in Wilmington. Although he hardly campaigned here, as the seat covers Burlington and Bedford as Precinct 3 in Wilmington, Mr. Gordon has stated that he intends to ramp up his campaigning in town as the election comes closer. "Wilmington is important, and you can expect to see me there very often."

Gordon's opponent will be Republican Walter Zenkin, a selectman from Burlington who ran a successful write in campaign, earning more than 650 votes total, with just 25 in Wilmington's Precinct 3. Zenkin is excited for the general election and believes that voters "Have been very receptive to my record as a public servant for finding commonsense solutions to problems." Zenkin plans to campaign hard in Wilmington and this promises to be an interesting and closely contested race.

For the position of councilor, Democrat Eileen Duff earned 288 of 712. This constitutes 40 percent of the votes cast. There were a large number of blanks, 196, which constitute 27 percent of the vote. The remaining votes were 82 for Donald Bumiller, 90 for David Eppler, 66 for George O'Brine, and a solitary write in vote.

In the Republican race for Councilor, Maura L.P. Ciardiello won 839 of 1148 votes. This constitutes 73 percent of the vote, leaving 319 votes for write-in candidates and blanks.

Michael A Sullivan ran unopposed for the Democratic position of clerk of courts, and received 545 votes of the 712 cast, the remaining votes being left blank.

Richard Howe received 534 votes of the 712 cast, with 3 write in votes and 175 blanks being cast as well, in the election for Register of Deeds.

Peter J. Koutoujian received 544 votes of 712 cast for the position of Sheriff, the remaining 168 votes consisting of 163 blanks and 5 write in candidates.

Looking at the percentage of total vote by party, the Republican candidates seem to be more uniformly supported. With Scott Brown earning 98 percent of the vote, Tisei earning 87 percent of the vote, and Sears earning 78 percent of the vote, Republicans seem to be united in their ideas about who should be in office across all stations in this election. All of these candidates ran unopposed, and the differing percentages of support from voters indicate overall voter interest and support. In this case, Scott Brown is clearly the republican's champion.

The Democrats did not fare so well across the board. Their best showing came from Rep. Miceli, who earned a strong 88 percent of the vote, and higher comparative party support than his republican opponent. Tierney, with 76 percent of the vote, followed Elizabeth Warren, who enjoyed 78 percent of the vote. These candidates also all ran unopposed, and their underperformance in comparison to their republican adversaries (excepting Rep. Miceli) indicates a loose party support among. There is still plenty of time to November for the candidates to court voters of all parties, along with independents.

Gary DePalma held signs for his favorite candidates outside the Wildwood School last Thursday.

Setting the gold standard contest and award program that rewards and recognizes Massachusetts police departments for efforts to reduce automobile accidents and improve traffic safety. Departments focus on everything from education efforts targeting the local community to accident reduction statistics. The highest scoring police departments reduce fatalities, economic losses, and incidents of driving under the influence. Departments must compile statistics that showcase their efforts to showcase their efforts to reduce and correct these issues and then submit the information in the form of an application. Wilmington Police Department's application was so impressive that it has become the new model for a correct application in future Massachusetts Law Enforcement Challenges. This is the second year that Wilmington won gold in this contest.

Beyond scoring well in the challenge, the compiling of these statistics and implementation of changes has had many positive effects in Wilmington. The increased educational presence in schools have educated students about the necessity—both for legal compliance and physical safety—of using the safety belt when in a car. Increased presence of Wilmington Police has reduced the average speed of vehicles in Wilmington neighborhoods. A sobriety checkpoint allowed police officers to arrest 11 people driving under the influence last July. Another sobriety checkpoint allowed Wilmington Police to arrest 4 people, 1 of which was a repeat offender.

The police department was recognized and honored at the last Wilmington Selectman meeting on September 10. Selectman Cimaglia stated that he wanted to "Congratulate the chief and the guys on the front line."

"Thank you and congratulations. It is great to see the police department recognized against their peers and it gets the face of Wilmington out there," said Selectman O'Connell.

The police department also earned a prize for their high performance. A handheld radar device, valued at $1,500, was donated to the department as a prize for their excellent performance.

actually make a differences for the business climate and for employment opportunities. We don't care about designating a state muffin."

Miceli's challenger, Tewksbury selectman Doug Sears' campaign raised the issue, sending out press statements on the scorecard, and Miceli's score, to local media.

Miceli scored negatively Municipal Health Reform, Child-Care Workers Unionization, Health Care Cost Containment, and Health Insurance Mandates. The issues that AIM scored rep Miceli positively for were Unemployment Insurance Rate Freeze 2011 and 2012, and the State Government Finance Reform proposal. Rep Miceli did not vote on the Fair Share assessment issue, and was not evaluated positively or negatively for it.

When asked to comment on the AIM report, Miceli remarked that he has traditionally been one of the top scorers in the AIM rankings, and that one year should not be indicative of his overall performance as a legislator. Miceli later stated that he had a good relationship with AIM and that if contacted they would say that James Miceli was always a good legislator.

Miceli stated that "What is good for AIM is not always good for everyone." Miceli said that his loyalties are to his constituents, and the issues that are best for the Associated Industries of Massachusetts would not necessarily be good for the residents of Wilmington and Tewksbury. Concerning the Child-Care Workers Unionization issue, Miceli clarified his point and pointed out that he voted for child care workers to have the option to vote themselves into unionization, not for their express unionization. Miceli stated that he is interested in looking out for the residents of Wilmington and Tewksbury, and feels like his vote on this issue best represents his constituents.

Miceli also stated that the Hospital Bill would be harmful to his constituents and not good for his party, and debated this issue on the floor of the House of Representatives. Miceli stated that the health care bill would have hurt his constituents and that voting for it would have let his supporters and those he represents down.

"My opponent voted against the position of employers in three bills important to AIM," said Tewksbury Selectman Doug Sears, who is challenging Miceli in the House race this year, in a statement, citing the Municipal Health Reform bill, the Home child-care workers unionization, and the Health Care Cost Containment bill. Sears stated he would have voted 'yes' on those items along with the Fair-Share Assessment Reform, which he would have supported. All four items were passed in the House and the Senate and signed into law by the Governor.

In the report, AIM states that the scores for the 2011-12 session are higher than those of 2009-2010, especially in the House, and much better than the results for 2007-2008. "These are the best numbers we have seen in the ten-year history of our Scorecard, along with 2005-2006," Regan said, adding that there were fewer low scorers than ever before.

Established in 1915, AIM is the largest nonprofit, nonpartisan association of Massachusetts employers. AIM's mission is to promote the wellbeing of its members and their employees and the prosperity of Massachusetts by working to improve the economic climate of the state, advocating for fair and equitable public policy, and providing relevant information services.

Two elite runners gearing up for season

Russo wants to make a final splash

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Russo Family will be leaving Wilmington after this school year and moving to Naples, Florida. Sydnee, the fourth of five children, is in the line of a family of athletes, and she like her older siblings have all played three seasons of different sports while at Wilmington High School. But since she won't be able to spend her senior year as a Wildcat, she has some unfinished business to accomplish this year as a junior: helping the cross-country team make program history.

Over the last 20 years, the cross-country program has gone from having barely enough girls to field a team, to not having enough, to winning one meet a year and now to having several consecutive winning seasons. But no team in at least the last 20 years has advanced to the All-State Meet and Russo thinks it could happen this year.

"Actually we have a seriously strong team," she said. "We have a lot of people who are improving. Callie O'Connell is amazing and we have other girls who are strong runners who are returning like Katie Richardson, Michelle Barnes, Nicole Romanzo, Keara MacCorkle and Savannah Hubbard. They all look really good."

"We have such a strong team so if we can all close the gap from one another, we could be really good. I think if we can all run our best, especially at the state meet, we could advance to All-States and that's totally unheard of around here. If we do that, it would be such an amazing accomplishment."

Russo has been with the varsity program for five years, starting out as a seventh grader when her older sister Natalie was a senior captain, who during that season broke the course record with a time of 19:43. Last year as a sophomore, Sydnee had a season's best time of 20:13 and already she is chomping at the bit of being the new 'Sheriff' (Russo) in town.

Alatalo, No. 1 runner and No. 2 in his class

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Erik Alatalo surely has a lot on his plate. But with an extremely competitive side to him, he's not willing to leave any crumbs for anyone else.

The senior three-sport athlete, is not only one of the captains on this year's cross-country team, but he's the Wildcats No. 1 runner. On top of that, he's a distance runner on the indoor and outdoor track teams, while he plays the trumpet in the high school's band. In addition to that, he's the oldest of three children, with his twin siblings Sam and Rachel only 15 months younger.

And to top it all off, he also ranks No. 2 in his senior class academically, with several AP courses, while being a member of National Honor Society, DECA and he's about to apply to 10-12 colleges ranging from Harvard and Princeton to Bentley and Babson.

You would think that with all of that on his plate, that finding time for a social life would be extremely difficult. He said that's not the case as he handles everything pretty smoothly, but admitted that social reasons is what dragged him away from the soccer program to cross-country before the start of last year's season.

"Part of my thinking (of switching sports) was if I made varsity soccer during my junior and senior seasons, I didn't think I would get much playing time," he said. "Plus I ran both indoor and outdoor track and I enjoy running. A lot of my friends were on the cross-country team, so the switch also had to do with social aspect."

Alatalo made an immediate impact on last year's cross-country team. Not only was he voted as the Team's MVP at the end of the season, but he came 30 seconds within breaking the all-time course record. He also was 40th overall at the Division 4 Eastern Mass State Meet held at Franklin Park in Dorchester last November.

"Erik ran cross country for the first time last year and came on very strong and won the MVP award," said coach Tom Bradley. "He is a dedicated runner and understands the price to do well in this sport. He had a great summer training season and capped it with a terrific showing at (the) Falmouth (road race this past August). I expect him to take a run at the course record this season."

Alatalo admitted that he wants to break the course record, and he also wants to leap ahead and be ranked No. 1 in his class.

"I'm a pretty competitive person," he said with a laugh.

Perhaps that's why his twin siblings are also three-sport athletes.

"It's really good (having Sam and Rachel around)," said Erik. "We all ran in the Falmouth Road race together, and we all practice together during the track seasons. We have a lot of the same friends and we hang out a lot together especially my brother. It's really nice having him on the cross-country team with me. I think I motivate him and he needs that push because sometimes he's a slacker."

During this past summer, Erik didn't slack at all when it came to getting his work in. He hit the streets to train, but more importantly he took part in that Falmouth Road Race and did extremely well. Featuring over 10,000 participants from all over the world, Alatalo finished 140th overall in the seven mile race with a time of 42:37.

"Every year we go on vacation to Falmouth, so all three of us decided to run the race this year," he said. "I was surprised with how well I did and it was definitely a good way to start this season."

This season started Wednesday with a road meet against Woburn and results not known as of presstime, before the team has its home opener on Tuesday against Lexington. Alatalo would like nothing better than to break the program's course record.

"Last year my best time was seventeen minutes flat and the record is 16:30-something," he said. "Coach Bradley said my seventeen minute time is the fourth best on the course and that's pretty cool. But this year I'm shooting to break that record and he thinks it's a pretty attainable goal."

And for Erik Alatalo, that sounds like just another portion on his plate to gobble up.

Six turnovers cost Wildcats in opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

As the Wilmington High Football team prepared for their season, Wildcats coach Mike Barry had talked about the importance of his young team limiting mistakes this season if they hoped to build on the success of last year's 6-4 record.

Unfortunately for Barry and his team, the fifth year coach was more prophetic than he ever hoped to be, as the Wildcats were doomed by six turnovers last Friday night in a season opening 21-0 loss to Arlington in a Middlesex League crossover battle at Alumni Field.

There were some very encouraging signs for the Wildcats, who are rebuilding with an entirely new starting offensive backfield, and those encouraging signs will certainly pay off later in the season. But for one game at least, they were not enough to overcome the miscues that led to their defeat.

"We turned the ball over and when you turn the ball over the way we did you aren't going to win," Barry said. "We made some mistakes and then I think what happened was with a team of young kids it put them in a situation maybe they weren't ready for. I obviously need to do a better job preparing them."

The game was competitive throughout, with the Wildcats trailing 14-0 at the half, and appearing to pull within one score midway through the fourth quarter before a touchdown was negated by a penalty. Waltham then added a score late in the fourth quarter to account for the final.

The Wildcats came out of the gate ready to go in front of an enthusiastic opening night crowd, taking the opening kickoff and marching from their 20 yard line to the Arlington 14 with the big play coming on a 35 yard pass from junior quarterback James O'Regan, making his first varsity start, to senior wide receiver Sam Borseti, on the first play of the game.

The drive came up short however, and just barely. Facing a fourth-and-nine from the 14, O'Regan connected with senior tight end Brian Priem on an eight yard hook-up, leaving them just short of the first down.

At first glance, it looked as if the Wildcats had converted with a clutch play, but Barry, who eschewed a 31-yard field goal in an effort to pick up the first down, did not dispute the call.

"No, it was short," Barry said. "We could have gone for the field goal, we have a good kicker, but it was early in the game, we were moving the ball well and we were feeling confident. And we hit the play, but we just came up a little short."

After holding the Spy Ponders to a three and out on their first possession, the Wildcats went on another impressive drive, this time starting at their own 46 yard line and moving to the Arlington 15 before their first turnover of the game, a fumble, ended the drive.

Another three-and-out by Arlington appeared to put the Wildcats in good position to start another drive, but a fumbled snap on the first play of the ensuing possession gave the ball right back to the Spy Ponders, who this time took advantage of their good fortune.

On the ensuing possession, the Spy Ponders went on an 11-play, 61-yard drive, capping the drive on a six yard run up the middle by quarterback Seth Coiley on a fourth and one play with 5:45 left in the first half. Zachary Thomas added the first of his three extra points for the 7-0 Arlington advantage.

After holding the ball for just one play on their previous possession, the Wildcats could only hold onto it for two plays after the Arlington score. After a pass interference penalty against Arlington on the first play of the drive gave the Wildcats a first down at the 49 yard line, an interception on the next play killed the drive and led to the next Spy Ponders score.

At took Arlington just six plays to add to their lead, when Coiley connected with running back Matt Garcia on a perfectly executed screen pass that turned into a 49-yard touchdown and a 14-0 lead with 2:40 left in the half.

Arlington looked like they were going to add to their lead on the opening possession of the second half, but a great goal line stand by the Wilmington defense kept them out of the end zone, as the Wildcats twice stopped the Spy Ponders from the one yard line.

For a while it looked like the goal line stand might have shifted the momentum in the Wildcats favor, as they moved from the shadow of their goal post to the Arlington 40 yard line, with O'Regan twice converting fourth and inches plays to keep the drive alive. O'Regan also hooked up on an 11-yard pass to Borseti, while senior fullback Eli Jennings and Justin MacKinnon each had key runs to keep the ball moving.

Once again, however, this drive was halted by a pair of key Wildcat mistakes, as a 61yard touchdown run by MacKinnon was called back due to a holding penalty, and later in the drive O'Regan was sacked from the blind side, forcing a fumble which Arlington recovered with 5:58 left in the game.

"We made the great goal line stand and then came back with a nice drive," Barry said. "That shows the kids were still fighting. If we don't have that holding penalty on the sweep, maybe things are different for us."

Barry saw how well his team was moving downfield running the ball, but he realized they would have to put the ball in the air with time winding down in the game. This of course, led to the sack and the fumble, and Barry took full responsibility for the decision to try and throw the ball.

"They chewed up most of the third quarter, and then we get the ball back moving out of our own end and we moved it well," Barry said. "We could have just kept running, but I was looking at the clock so I made the decision to throw the ball. Maybe we got a little greedier than we should have, but I felt like we needed to at that point."

Arlington closed out the scoring late in he fourth quarter, following another Wilmington turnover, with Coiley scoring on a keeper from 12 yards out with 1:32 left in the game.

So it is back to the drawing board for Barry and the Wildcats who will try to get into the win column on Friday night when they travel to Waltham to take on the Division 1A Hawks in a tough non-league clash.

Barry knows it will not be easy, but he is also confident that his young team will make the adjustments they need to make and continue to improve.

"We moved the ball well pretty much the whole night tonight," Barry said. "We just made too many mistakes. We just need to come back and regroup and work to correct those mistakes."

Wilmington High junior Sydnee Russo, shown here during last year's cross-country season, is hoping to have a successful season before she moves with her family to Florida. (file photo).

Russo hoping to make a splash

"I definitely want to break my sister's record. I'm getting close and it's been a goal of mine ever since she left. I tell her all of the time that I'm going to break it, so she knows what to expect," said Sydnee with a big laugh.

Natalie was such a big factor in helping the cross country program turn around, and Sydnee would like nothing better than to help keep it going, even if it's just for this one year. She said that so many of the runners did so much work in the off-season which should help the team improve from its 4-3 record from last year, and she was asked what kind of off-season workouts she did.

"I usually did two long runs in a week, then I would spend a day doing speed work like 800s and 1,000s, then I would have a slow day and then another day to work on hills so I did a lot," she said. "It helped me a lot. Last year I found out that I'm anemic, which put me back a little bit, but I'm all set for this year and everything is good."

Now that she has her anemia problem cured, head coach Tom Bradley thinks Sydnee Russo along with O'Connell -- who advanced last year as an individual to the all-state meet -- could be one of the top tandems this program has seen in quite a long time.

"Syd is a real veteran as she has been with us since she was in the seventh grade," said Bradley. "She had a very good season last year and should be a dominant runner for us. She could be part of a very tough one-two punch with Callie this year."

Whether or not that happens and whether or not the Wildcats do indeed advance to the All-State Meet, Sydnee Russo knows she will always cherish this season and this school year since it's her last one here.

"It's where my parents want to go," she said about the move to Florida. Since that's the case, she said she already is interested in attending Gulf Coast University where her brother Jake currently attends.

But until then it's cross country, two seasons of track and hanging with the family, including brothers PJ, Jake and Sam, and of course sister Natalie.

"It's very hectic (with the family) and there's never a dull moment," she said. "None of us ever get bored. It was always crazy when we were younger. I remember my parents always driving us around to go see one of PJ's games or one of Nat's meets and they just lugged Jordan and I around."

Golf team continues to improve

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High Golf team set a goal for themselves this season to get off to a fast start. After several years or struggling out of the gate, the Wildcats were determined to get off on the right foot this season.

Last Wednesday afternoon the Wildcats did just that, and they did so with ease, earning a 48.5-23.5 victory over Stoneham at Unicorn Golf Course in Stoneham in the season opener for both teams.

Wilmington coach Steve Lynch was pleased to see his team get off to a fast start, and felt they did a good job playing on an unfamiliar course.

"It's a nine hole course and it is a little bit quirky, but our kids did well," Lynch said. "They responded well to the challenge and I was happy with the way they played."

The Wildcats were led by junior Ryan McEvoy, who was the overall medalist, shooting a 35. Senior co-captain Jeff Favuzza fired a 37 to help the cause.

"They both played great,"

Lynch said. "They each had an eagle and they played great overall. It was a great round from our top two guys, and it was a great way to start the season."

Senior co-captain Matt Chiricosta added to the Wildcats cause by shooting a 41, and the performance of the top three players is something Lynch is hoping to see throughout the season.

"Those are our big three and we will be counting on them, along with Matt Boutoures to lead us this season," Lynch said. "We know we can count on those guys to hold down the fort from one through four and then we will be hoping that we can have a few guys from five through eight play well also."

The Wildcats did get a contribution from a little lower in their lineup, as sophomore Joe Marino shot a 43 to help the Wildcats cause.

"He has really improved and I see him playing quite a bit for us this season if he continues to play like that," Lynch said.

Things did not go as well for the Wildcats on Friday in a home match against Winchester, as they fell by a score of 41.5-30.5 in a match where Lynch felt his team not necessarily play poorly, but simply did not play well enough to beat their talented opponents.

"Winchester typically is one of those schools in the Large Division along with Woburn and Lexington that are very strong," Lynch said. "We played them on our turf and with the way our kids were playing in practice I felt like we were ready to go. I don't know if it was a case of nerves or what, but we did not play as well as I thought we would."

Favuzza led the Wildcats in a losing effort with a 39.

While there is still definitely work to do for Lynch and the Wildcats, the coach is happy to see his team sitting at 1-1 and is looking forward to seeing them continue to get better as the season progresses.

"We're a good young team and I think we will get better," Lynch said. "We just hope guys learned from this past week and will keep improving."

Boys and Girls Team Previews

Wildcat Cross-Country teams running towards bigger goals

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It was a extremely fun, competitive season last year for the Wilmington High School Girls Cross Country team, which enjoyed a feather in its cap when it came to a near halt.

The feather in the cap was Callie O'Connell, who last November became the first runner in 15 years to advance to the All-State Meet and she did so as an eighth grader. She finished 18th at the Division 4 State Meet, leading the Wildcats to a 12th place finish with her 20:36 time in the 3.1 mile trek.

And not only does O'Connell return for this season, but almost the entire roster does, the same one that finished 4-3 in its first season competing in the Middlesex League.

O'Connell will return as the team's top runner, however the difference between this year on paper and years past, is there's a lot of depth behind the front runner.

"The Girls are led by Captains Kate Richardson and Savannah Hubbard," said head coach Tom Bradley. "The top runner Callie who ran in the All States last year. Sydnee Russo, Kate and Keara MacCorkle were our next runners and closing the gap with Callie will be a big help."

At the state meet, Russo,

MacCorkle, Richardson and Nicole Romanzo all finished in the top 100, and were just 90 seconds apart from one another. If that gap can close to a minute or under, this team has potential of doing some even better things this season.

"We have a lot of girls who have potential to help the team," said Bradley. "We're plan on trying to improve on our record from last year."

Other seniors include Michelle Barnes, Rachel Donahue and Scarlett Salerno, while Romanzo, Savannah Hubbard and jen Collins, all juniors, with freshman Maeve Sullivan and eighth grader Anna Delacruz are also all returning varsity runners. Another junior Katy Goodwin battled the injury big last season and if she stays healthy, she could add a big punch into the Wildcats' everyday line-up.

As for newcomers, they include sophomores Katie McNeil, Brianna Perrino, Kyra Falvey, Christina Cheng, Amanda DeLucia and Jackie Ryan.

Boys Preview

Although two of the team's top runners return for this season, Bradley thinks the WHS Boys team will get a major boost because of the addition of Brian Schell, a former runner at WHS, who will coach primarily the Boys' team, while Bradley works mostly with the Girls.

This year's team will be led by the three captains, Steve Halas, Erik Alatalo and Andrew Sears, who helped lead the team to a 17th place finish at the state meet. Alatalo finished 40th overall at that race, while Halas behind in 67th place.

"The two of them are the top returning runners and Erik and Steve rank in the top ten boys in my 15 years as head coach," said Bradley. "And Andrew certainly looks like he is ready to make the top ten as well. Erik and Steve are legitimate candidates to make it to the all-state meet."

Other seniors include Mike Ferrara, Nathan Connors, Christian Houde, Adam Maienza and Dan Fothergill.

"Adam is new but is a track veteran and looks like he will do well," said Bradley. "The big challenge is to develop more depth and find three to four runners that can complement the top three. Mike, Sam Alatalo, Dan and Christian along with Adam could do that for us."

Junior Niko Pappas looks to be one of the most improved runners said Bradley, while, newcomers include Chris Maienza, Zack Thomas, Mason Ouellette, Jack Stanford and Kevin Dunn.

Field Hockey and Soccer teams start on fast track

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School Varsity Field Hockey team started its season off on the right foot by easily dumping Woburn, 7-0, before ending in a 1-1 tie with a very good Lexington team. Interim head coach Leanne Ebert said she was happy to see the Lady 'Cats start the season off with a bang.

"We were all geared up for the (Woburn) game and ready to play," she said. "We clicked immediately and really played well as a team. It was a great way to start the season."

Senior captain Emily Colosimo led the way offensively with two goals, while, Rachel Alatalo, Meghan Howland, Julia Carter and Amanda Richards had one each. Melissa O'Donoghue and Kourtney Bolis had one assist each.

"I wasn't sure what to expect as it was the first game of the season," said Ebert. "Fortunately, we played hard. Our desire to win became contagious and we couldn't be stopped."

Wilmington netminder Casey Herra earned the shut out despite having an easy night as she didn't face any shots. Despite that, Ebert added that the team has to work on some things, especially corners.

"We have to work on our penalty corners, both offensively and defensively," she said. "In practice we're still trying to determine where each player's strength lies and it's certainly different in game situations when facing opponents."

While Herra basically had a day off against Woburn, she worked triple overtime against Lexington on Tuesday. She faced 19 shots and turned away 18 of them, as the team's ended in a 1-1 tie.

"We played well, but Lexington came out strong which seemed to set the tone and made a difference in the end," said Ebert. "They had 19 shots on net so Casey obviously had an outstanding game."

Colosimo notched her third goal of the young season just before the first half ended, which tied the game up at 1-1 as Lexington scored just five minutes into the game. Nicole McIrney assisted on the Wildcat goal, which was nicely set-up by the sophomore.

"We regrouped and came together to score after being scored upon so that shows that we never gave up and played hard to the end," said Ebert.

Neither team could score in the second half, despite Lexington putting some strong pressure on the Wildcats.

"We have to work on coming out ready to play at the start of each game consistently," said Ebert. "We need to continue to work on communication on the field. It can make a huge difference, especially in a close game and it's something we talk about regularly."

Besides Herra shining bright in the net, the coach added that the midfielders and backs all did their job against a very tough opponent.

"The midfielders worked hard moving the ball up the field and feeding it to the forward line, but Lexington had a strong defense which made it difficult to score," she said. "Our defense worked hard throughout the game and on several penalty corners against them."

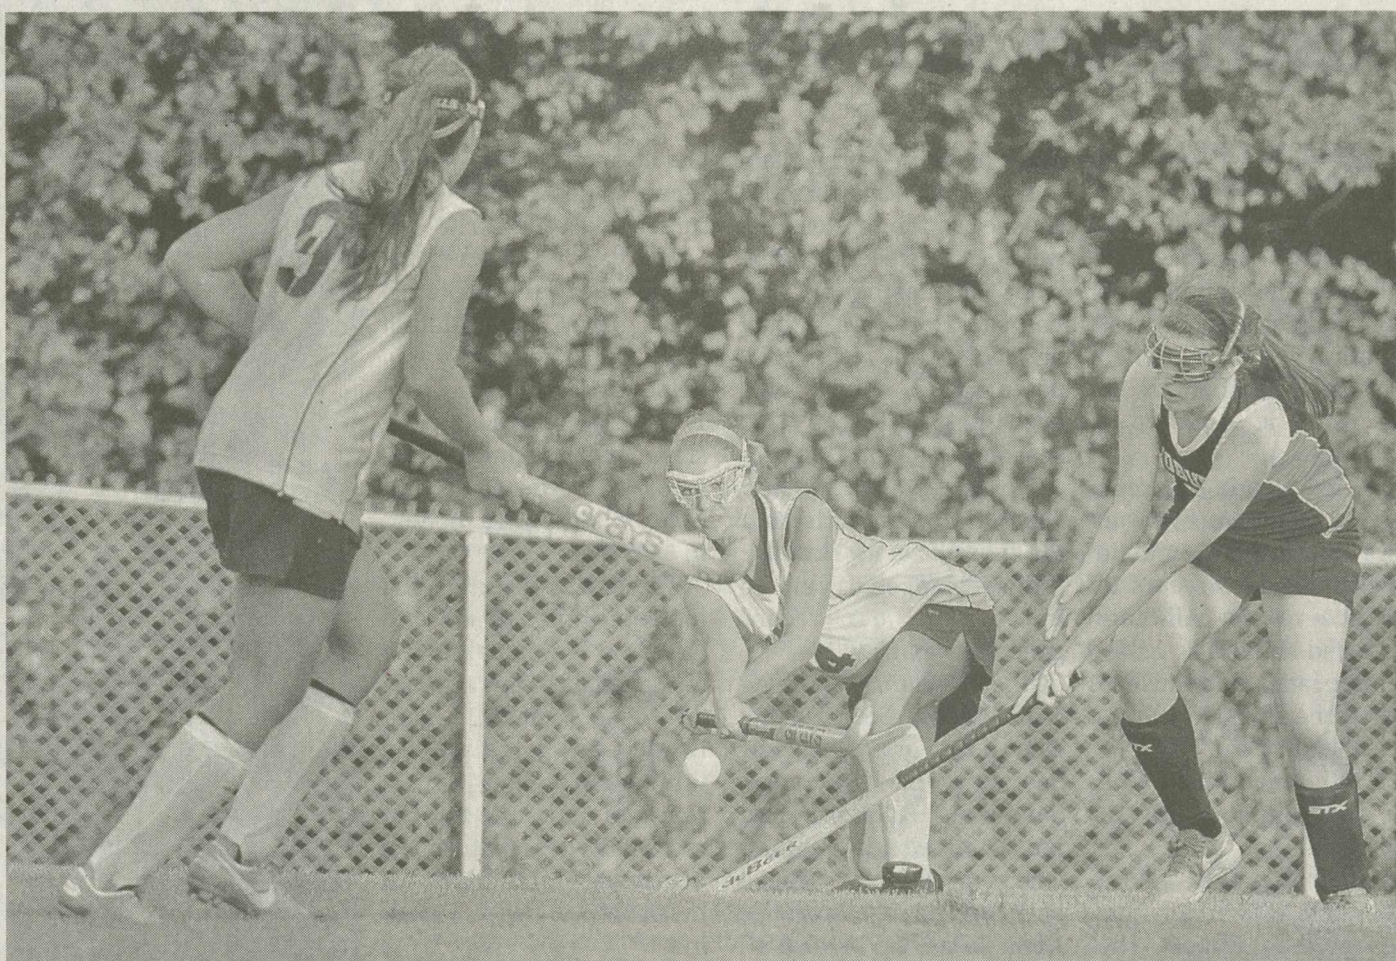

Wilmington is back in action with road games against Reading on Thursday, Ipswich (non-league) on Monday before coming home Tuesday night to face Stoneham.

BOYS SOCCER

The Wilmington High School Boys Soccer team had a fantastic opening week going 2-0-1 and pulling out five of the possible six points. The Wildcats tied Woburn 2-2 in the opener, then pulled out a big upset and dropped Lexington, 1-0, before topping Reading 2-0 at home on Tuesday afternoon.

"Oh yeah, it was a great start to the season," said head coach Steve Scanlon. "We beat two good teams and then Woburn was a back-and-forth game where we gave up the lead, so all things considered we are very happy with the week. Lexington is notoriously good and they may not have the firepower up front that they usually do, they are still a very good team so that was a very good win for us. We outplayed them and also had a goal called back because it was off-sides."

Against Woburn, the game was tied at 1-1 until the 64th minute when Austin O'Neal netted what was thought to be the game winner. But three minutes later Woburn tied the game back up and the score remained the same. Jimmy Murphy scored the other goal and assists for the two goals went out to Chris Saporito, Corey McGilvary and Drew Foley. Goalie Luke Foley made two saves.

In the win over Lexington, it was Drew Foley who netted the only goal, rifling a left-footed shot from 22 yards in the 20th minute for the game winner. Luke Foley made two saves to record the shut out, and he was helped out by a core of defenders who all played well including McGilvary, Mitch DeAmbrose, Connor Townsend and Jared Walsh.

Then against Reading, Chris Michelangelo and Colin Doherty scored the goals while McGilvary and Mike Diorio had the helpers.

"Against Reading we came out slow, before Kory scored on a long throw in from McGilvary and Michelangelo did a real good job of running through the box to get a piece of it for the goal," said Scanlon.

Then Reading started to pour on the pressure and ended up getting a penalty kick but Luke Foley came up big making the stop going low to his right side.

"That could have changed the entire game if that had gone in," said Scanlon. "Luke made a great save and it was definitely the turning point of the game."

From there, Wilmington got back on track and gained some momentum and were able to put together some scoring chances including the insurance tally from Doherty, who popped a shot over the head of the keeper, on a pass from Diorio.

Luke Foley made four saves to register his second straight doughnut.

GIRLS SOCCER

The returning Middlesex League Division 2 Champion Wilmington Wildcats opened the season on fire with two solid victories, before taking a back seat on Tuesday night with a disappointing 1-1 deadlock played under the lights at Reading High School.

Still getting five points out of six is a very good week, but head coach Sue Hendee thought her team could have easily made it a 6-for-6.

"We didn't play with the composure that we played with in the first two games," she said. "We had a lot of breakaways and we couldn't convert. We held a lot of the possession but we have to work on finishing."

"Composure" is a word used a lot in soccer and especially in high school sports. Hendee said that word is especially true when it comes to describing her team.

"It's being able to walk that fine line of playing with physicality and maintaining composure without going overboard either way," she said.

The Wildcats' season started out last Wednesday night with the 2-1 win over Woburn. Ashley Howland scored both goals, while Adrianna Kippenberger and Alex Bischoff recorded single assists.

"In the first half we completely dominated and I don't think they even got a shot off," said Hendee. "In the second half, we let them take it to us before we regained our composure and started to play like we are capable of."

Then two days later, Wilmington knocked off Lexington 3-1. Bischoff stayed red-hot as she figured in all three goals, scoring two and assisting on Jackie Kennedy's tally. Holly Niemiec picked up two assists, while keeper Kim Woods made seven stops.

"That was a very good game," said Hendee. "Lexington is no where near the team they were a year ago, but we definitely controlled the game, so that was a good win."

That led to Tuesday night's tie with Reading where Wilmington just couldn't convert on many scoring opportunities. The one person who did was Bischoff, who took a nice through pass from Lauren Amazeen and found the back of the net. Reading came back a few minutes to tie the game up and the 1-1 score stood at the halftime break and then throughout the second half.

This week Wilmington will be home for two games, first under the lights at the high school Thursday against Stoneham, before having an afternoon game on Tuesday afternoon against Watertown at the Shawsheen School.

VOLLEYBALL

The Wilmington High School Girls' Varsity

Volleyball team went 1-2 this past week, first losing to Lynnfield 3-0, before defeating Woburn 3-0 and then falling to Lexington, 3-1. Head coach Meghan Sheehy said her team didn't play well in the win against the Tanners, a first-year program but came back to much better against Lexington but struggled with consistency.

"We didn't play well against Woburn and then against Lexington we struggled early, came back strong and then lost it in the end," she said. "We gave them a run for their money though. At one point we were down 19-11 and came back to make it 25-18, but two of the sets we lost we played hard until the very end. We just haven't been able to come out strong in any of our matches and we have to work on that. It seems like our intensity levels pulls up towards the end of matches. We need it all the way through."

In the loss to Lexington, Sheehy pointed out Gianna Mirabella, who she said was exceptional.

"She was everywhere on the court," said Sheehy. "Whether it was blocks, getting balls off the net, diving all over the floor, she helped us win that third set just by her effort. She was amazing today."

Wilmington is back in action with a home matches Friday against Stoneham and Masconomet on Monday.

Pratt, Rams take care of Cougars in opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

ARLINGTON -- It was not the smoothest of nights for the Shawsheen Tech Football team in their season opener Friday night at non-league rival Arlington Catholic, with the kickoff delayed for an hour due to lightning and downpours throughout the game wreaking havoc on both teams.

But difficult conditions or not, the Rams were not going to be denied, as they put together a great effort to pick up a 20-7 victory over a talented AC squad that went 9-3 last season, including a 35-7 win over the Rams in the season opener.

The Rams were not about to let that happen again.

"We have a lot of respect for them as an opponent and we have been opening our season against them for several years," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said.

"We really felt almost embarrassed last year against them." So it was great to put that behind us and get this season off to a good start."

Many Rams players played very well in the game, but none were better than senior wide receiver/kicker Devonn Pratt, and senior running back Paul DePlacido.

Pratt accounted for all 20 Rams points in the game, catching a pair of touchdown passes, hitting two extra points and connecting on field goals of 38 and 24 yards. He also had an interception on defense.

DePlacido was nearly as dominant, as he threw both touchdown passes to Pratt on halfback options, as part of a 3-for-3, 117 yard passing night. DePlacido also rushed 27 times for 147 yards.

"Those two guys were tremendous," Costabile said. "Devonn had a fantastic night, kicking, receiving, the interception. He was all over the place on special teams, offense and defense."

"And Paul was fantastic as well. To run for 147 yards and then to throw the ball the way he did was great. The two of them were just fantastic."

DePlacido and Pratt hooked up on option passes of 66 and 26 yards in the second and third quarter, respectively. It was the second time the pair has connected twice in one game, having also done it last year in their CAC Large clinching victory over Northeast.

"They do a good job at it," Costabile said. "Paul does a great job throwing it and Devonn does a great job getting open."

Overall Pratt had four catches for 120 yards to go along with his two touchdowns, while Chase Rebidue had two catches for 56 yards and Jared Pinette hauled in one catch for 34 yards.

Defensively, the Rams were led by the senior duo of Devin Summiel of Tewksbury and Dave Anderson on Wilmington. Summiel led the Rams with seven tackles, while also recording two sacks and recovering a fumble, and Anderson had six tackles while dominating from his nose tackle position.

"The two of them played great," Costabile said. "They are leaders on our defensive line and they came up big against a highly touted Arlington Catholic offensive line featuring a group of senior kids who have been starting since they were sophomores."

"I thought those two young men did a fine job neutralizing a position that was supposed to be a strength for Arlington Catholic."

The Rams will look to improve to 2-0 on Saturday in their home opener against another non-league rival, Watertown with kickoff set for 1:30 at Cassidy Field in Billerica.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Lady Rams thrash Minuteman in season opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Girls Soccer team has had only one game so far on the young season, but so far this season looks like many in the recent past, with the Lady Rams picking up another CAC win, this time downing Minuteman last Friday in a road game in the season opener for both teams.

It was not the dominating type of victory that Shawsheen has become accustomed to in recent years, as the game was deadlocked in a scoreless tie at the half, but with the loss of nine starters to graduation, coach Doug Michaud was happy with the way his team responded to their first game.

"I was a little nervous going in, having lost so many starters from last year," Michaud said. "And even though we had really controlled the game in the first half, I was a little nervous at halftime too. You have to hand it to Minuteman. I think they are going to surprise some people this year."

Of no surprise for the Lady Rams were their two goal scorers, as midfielders Kristen Carroll and Arianna Medeiros of Tewksbury each netted a goal. Carroll and Medeiros are two of the Lady Rams returning starters from last season and they were among the team leading scorers last season.

They seemed to pick up this year right where they had left off.

"Arianna and Kristen are both outstanding players and they continue to play well for us," Michaud said. "Arianna felt like she missed a lot of shots, but it was the first game of the year and I am sure she will get even better."

Both goals came off of throw-ins from Taylor Bergstrom, who has made the throw in an offensive weapon for Shawsheen.

"She has always had a really long throw and it just came together in this game," Michaud said. "On one of the throws she made a long throw into the middle of the circle and a player headed it and Kristen was right there to put it in."

Freshman Janina Kennedy of Tewksbury did a nice job in her varsity debut. She was not the busiest of goalies, making only three saves on the day, but Michaud was impressed with the play of his young goalie.

"Even though there were only three shots, two out of the three were very challenging," Michaud said. "One was in the top corner and she just punched it over the net and another one was right in front of the net and she just jumped on it."

The Lady Rams will continue their season on Wednesday when they take to road to take on Northeast, followed by their home opener against Chelsea on Friday.

BOYS SOCCER

While the girls team has been relatively quiet so far, the boys team has been very busy, having already played three games and putting together a 2-1 record so far.

Their most recent win was a thriller, as they took a 4-3 barn burner over CAC Large rival Greater Lowell in a home game on Tuesday afternoon.

The Rams overcame a 2-0 first half deficit and got the game winner with under five minutes to go in the game on a direct kick from senior Brian Gallagher. Shawsheen had taken a 3-2 lead with about 15 minutes to go on a goal by senior Andrew Mongiovi, only to see Greater Lowell tie it with nine minutes left on a penalty kick, the Gryphons second penalty kick in just over two minutes.

"This was a typical great game with Greater Lowell with the teams going back and forth," Shawsheen coach Dick Barriss said. "We made a great comeback and then to see it almost slip through our fingers and then almost slip through our fingers again and then to be able to come away with the win was huge for us."

The win was even more impressive considering the way the Rams bounced back from a disheartening 4-0 loss the day before to non-league rival Maynard.

"I thought the kids might be discouraged and then be even more discouraged after falling behind 2-0 in this one, but they showed a lot with the way they fought back."

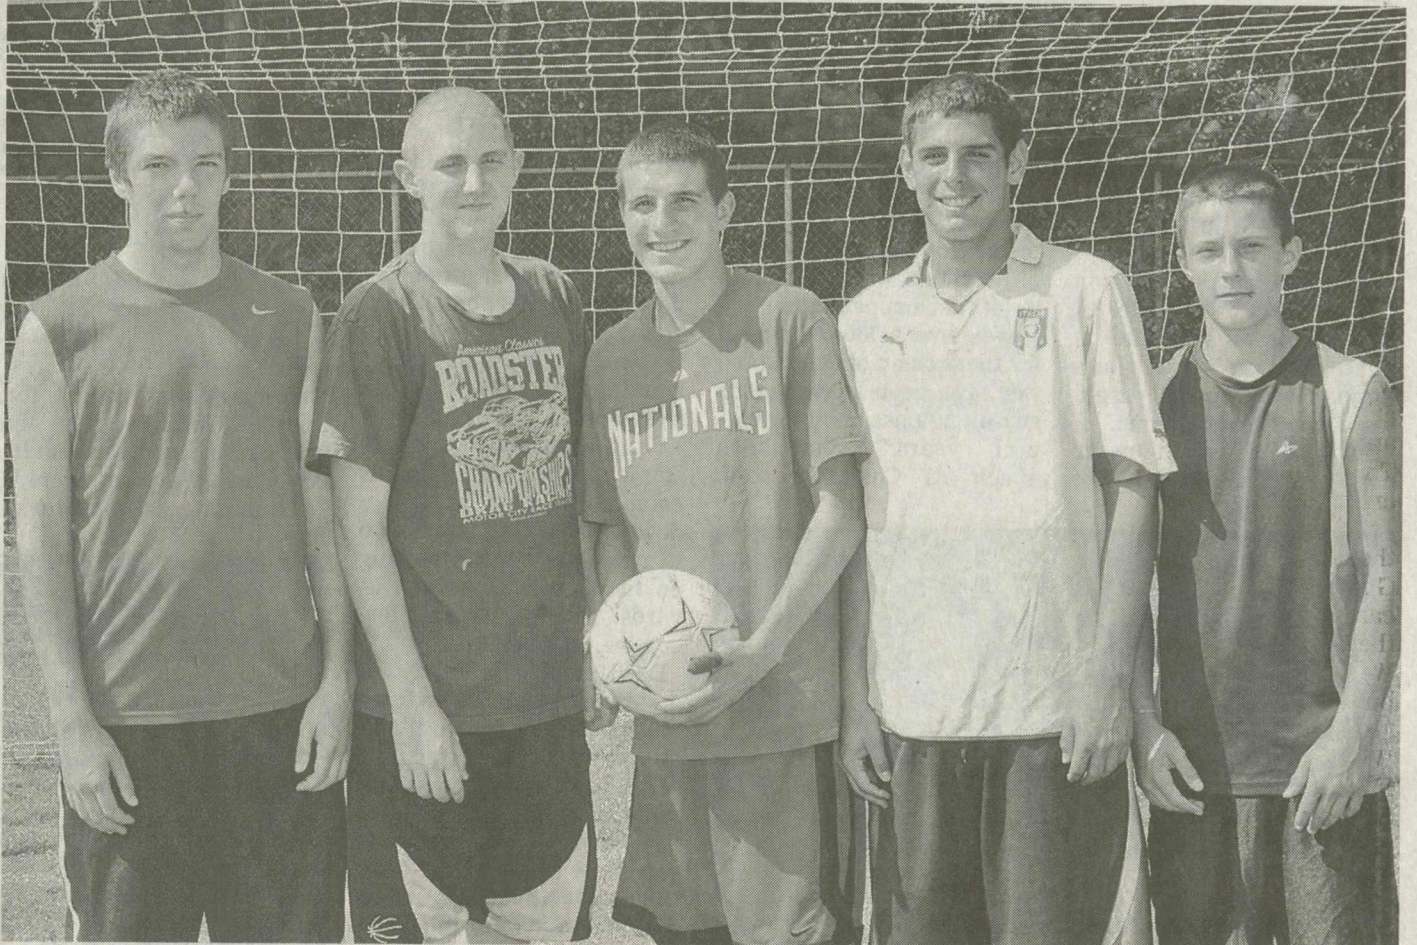

Gallagher had cut the deficit to 2-1 at the 30 minute mark of the first half, and Danny Ferreira tied the game at 2-2 late in the half before all the second half heroics.

The win was a big one for the Rams, as they will likely be battling Greater Lowell for a playoff spot later in the season, and every point will help even this early in the season.

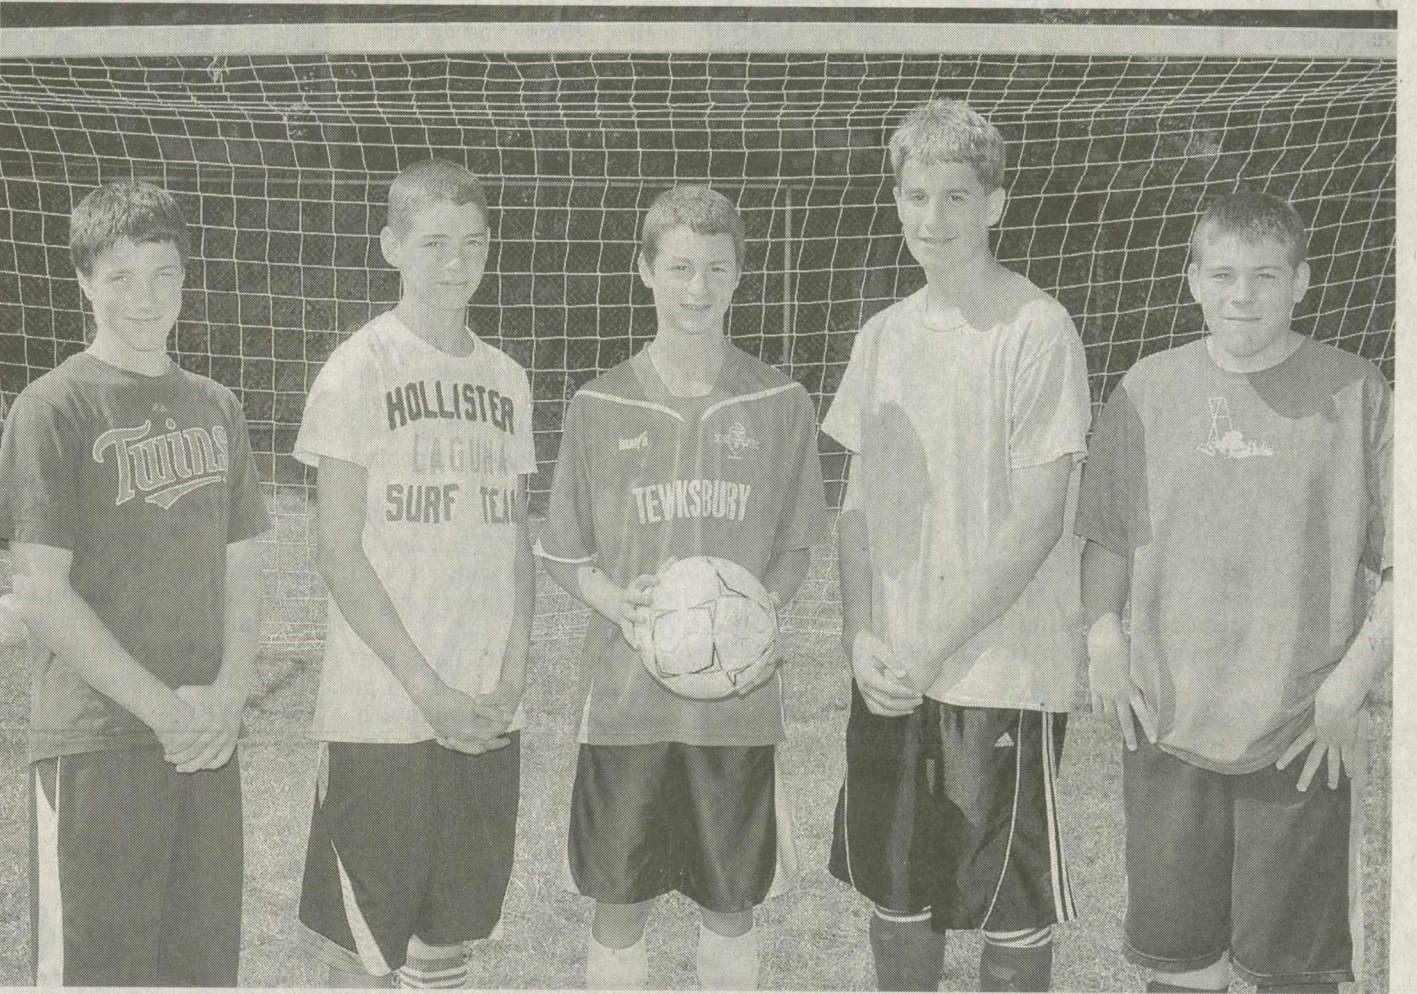

"It was a real good win for us," Barriss said. "This would have been a tough one to lose because it would have put us in a tough spot very early in the season."

Prior to the loss to Maynard on Monday, the Rams had opened their season last Thursday with a 3-1 victory over Mystic Valley. Mongiovi, Ferreira and Gallagher were the goal scorers for the Rams.

While Gallagher will be one of the players counted on most to score for the Rams, Barriss was pleased to see production from Mongiovi and Ferreira, as he knows a balanced scoring attack will make his team that much better.

"It's nice to get goals from those guys because I was not sure where they goals were going to come from if not from Brian and T.J.," Barriss said. "But these guys have stepped up and I hope they continue to do it."

Sophomore goalie Brett Bettaglia made seven saves to earn the win in his first varsity start.

"It was great to get a 'W' for him in his first varsity game," Barriss said. "He has played well and he has allowed us to move Andy Sutton out of net and up to outside right halfback where he is very effective for us."

Jon Fitzpatrick, Mike Biondo and Gabe Colletti helped out Bettaglia with some strong play on defense.

The Rams have a challenging week of games ahead with a pair of road contests against CAC opponents, starting with Northeast on Thursday, followed by Minuteman next Monday.

VOLLEYBALL

The Shawsheen Volleyball team is off to a 2-1 start to the season, picking up wins this past week over Nashoba Tech and Greater Lawrence, sandwiched around a tough loss to new CAC rival Notre Dame.

In their most recent win, the Lady Rams won in a 3-0 blowout of Greater Lawrence on the road, winning by scores of 25-10, 25-15, 25-22. Shawsheen had been unable to beat Greater Lawrence in two attempts last season, so coach Chet Flynn was very happy to see his team come away with a win.

"It was a nice win for us," Flynn said. "Greater Lawrence did graduate quite a few players from last year's team, but they never really have a down year."

For the second time in as many victories, the Lady Rams were led by their outstanding serving, with Tewksbury's Danielle Cacciola and Jess Vitale leading the way for Shawsheen.

"Our serving was fantastic. In the first game, I think we only used four servers," Flynn said. "By the time Jess and Danielle were done serving we were already up 16-2 and we just continued like that for the whole match. They were putting the ball in play and just keeping the pressure on them."

Senior hitter Kelsey Davey was also outstanding for Shawsheen.

"She did her usual outstanding job of hitting the ball," Flynn said. "She had three kills, but she also had numerous hits. Emily Knoops (Tewksbury) played probably her best game for us. She had two kills and a lot of hits that kept Greater Lawrence on their heels."

The Lady Rams started their season with a 3-0 blowout win over Nashoba Tech in a home match last Thursday, winning by scores of 25-15, 25-7, 25-10. Shawsheen was led by the efforts of Vitale, who had 13 service points and four kills, along with another Tewksbury resident, Stephanie Champoux, who had 10 service points, including nine in a row as part of an outstanding overall day.

"She played a great all around game," Flynn said. "She is a very consistent player and at times she has been our best hitter as well as being dominant with her serve."

At 2-1 to start the year, Flynn has been pleased with the play of the entire team, but he knows the road ahead will only be tougher, as the Lady Rams will take on Greater Lowell on Thursday and PMA Methuen next Monday.

"With this new league we have all of the iron right up front of the schedule," Flynn said. "It was important for us to play well against Notre Dame even though we lost, because it showed what we can do against a team like that. I was very pleased to bounce back against Greater Lawrence and I hope we are able to keep improving."

Sports Editor

Wilmington resident Nick Godzyk's controversial goal 2:54 into the second overtime period lifted the Keene State College men's soccer team to a 2-1 non-conference victory over Springfield College at the Irv Schmid Sports Complex last Wednesday.

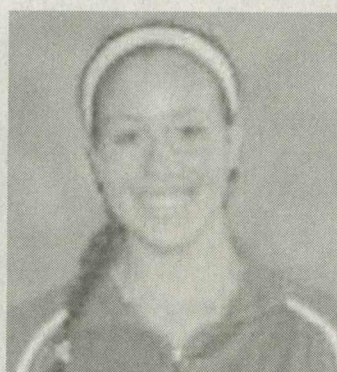

Sophomore Yazid Eideh sent the ball across to Godzyk, a sophomore, who bang in home for the game winner. The ball hit the tire at the bottom of the cage and came bouncing out. The officials got together and ruled it a goal.

"At first the lineman thought it hit the post," said Godzyk about his first career goal. "But it can't hit the post and go out like that. We didn't start out strong, but it was good to finish."

Keeping with the Wilmington theme, Matt Figueiredo leads the Salem State Men's team with shots on goal with 16. The team is off to a 1-3 start. Jason Pereira is back as a midfielder for the Fitchburg State team, while Kevin Flaherty returns at Colby-Sawyer, and freshman Zach Anderson joins him as a teammate.

Speaking of freshmen, Kenn Fryer, a graduate of St. John's Prep, is a member of the Brandeis University squad, while Adam Colella is back as the starting keeper for the Stonehill team. He has played in four games, sporting a 1-2-1 record and a 1.64 GAA.

Staying on the keeper theme, Tewksbury freshman Alex Bouthot is a member of the UMass-Lowell team, serving as a back-up. Daniel Caruso, a graduate of Central Catholic, is a junior forward on the Roger Williams University team, while Tyler McQuesten is a midfielder for the Wentworth College Men's

One of her teammates is freshman Maria Correa, a member of last year's TMHS Girls' team. Two other former TMHS players include Kim Carroll, a junior at Fitchburg, and her sister Heather Carroll who is a defender on the Colby-Sawyer Women's team.

Finally, Tewksbury resident Jane Hatzikonstantis is back as the keeper of the UMass-Lowell women's team, and she has played one game, allowing two goals in a 2-2 tie with LIU Post.

Shifting gears to cross-country, a year ago at this time, the Town Crier featured then Tewksbury Memorial High School senior cross country captain Christina Dick, who went on to have a very successful season for the Redmen Girls' Cross Country team. Now a year later, she has continued that success at the next level.

Leaving the outside sports and going inside to volleyball, former Central Catholic graduate, Lindsay Phenix, of Tewksbury, stands in at 5-foot-11 inches, will see most of her time on the right side as a middle hitter for the St. Michael's Women's Volleyball team. Last year she finished the season with 124 kills, 154 digs, 58 blocks and 30 aces.

Tewksbury's Ali Remigio is a sophomore middle hitter at Worcester State. Last year's Merrimack Valley Conference Division 2 Player of the Year, Allie Luppi has certainly made her presence felt right away as a member of the Eastern Connecticut squad. She has combined for 62 digs and two kills, helping the team start off 4-4.

Another former League MVP from Tewksbury, Vicky Wong, is now serving as an assistant coach at UMass-Lowell after a sensational career with the River Hawks program.

While we're mentioning coaches and move on, Jess Mirisola is in her second year as head coach of the Salem State Women's Field Hockey team. Currently the team is 2-1 including wins over Gordon College and Salve Regina. One member of her team is former Town Crier Female Athlete of the Year, Lauren DiCredico, who is a junior defender.

The other local playing Field Hockey is Kaitlyn Riley, of Wilmington, who has played one game as a goalie for the Bentley College Falcons.

The lone golfer around is Wilmington resident Aubrey Ungvasky, who is a junior at University of Hartford. This past weekend she shot a 90 and then came back with an 88 helping her team finish in fifth place at the Tignanello Towson Invitational.

Moving to the gridiron, many locals from Wilmington and Tewksbury are suiting up for various college football programs. Two more former Town Crier Athletes of the Year, Joel Altavesta and Sean Hanley are performing very well. Altavesta is a senior at Springfield and currently has 25 carries for 120 yards with one touchdown helping the team to its 1-1 record. the season injured at Springfield, Derek Tarpey is with UMass-Dartmouth and Mike Altavesta and Jerry Etienne join Costello at Framingham State.

Finally to wrap up the local athletes in colleges, Lauren Stalkerr of Wilmington and Cat Parrella are cheerleaders with Southern New Hampshire and Bridgewater State, respectively.

Wilmington Youth Hockey weekly round-up

Mite 1's

The Wilmington Mite 1 Wildcats dominated their first weekend of the season with two wins against the Lexington/Bedford Mite 1's Saturday 11-3 and Newton Mite 1's 9-3 Sunday.

On Saturday, Lexington got an early goal, but Wildcat Center Matt Ardito scored the tying goal minutes later on the first of his many strong shots. Several other scoring opportunities were thwarted by Lexington, some from Defenseman Tristan DiMeco who shot many dead-on shots from the blue line. The period ended at 1-1.

The second period showcased ten more goals. After Lexington scored again, the Wildcats came back strong. Jack Farrell scored the tying goal with the assist by Ardito. Then Ardito took control at a face off and put Wilmington ahead on a beautiful roof wrister. Then Keegan Gray nailed a shot through the wickets to put the score at 4-2.

Defense Ella Cedrone and DiMeco played tough on the boards, kept the puck in the zone and were feeding the offense until Nick Ackerman swept a puck in to the right of the goalie. Defenseman Cameron Gagnon stopped a couple of break away attempts and Michael Daniels played smart, cleared the zone and battled for every puck keeping Lexington at bay.

Goalie Liam Crowley let in one more goal in the second before finding his groove and shutting down Lexington the rest of the way. The Wildcats then went into overdrive, as Ackerman hustled and crashed his way to a second goal, Gray stole the puck and beat the Lexington goalie five hole and Gannon Ricci fired in another hard fought for goal. This was followed shortly by Farrell, who buried a perfectly delivered corner pass from Ryan Dusablon. Seconds later Gray earned the hat trick putting in the last goal in the period.

The Wildcat defense of Gagnon, Cedrone, Daniels and DiMeco was strong in the third allowing no additional goals against them. The scoring continued as Gray assisted Dusablon on a solid bang bang play. Then Ackerman put in the final goal of the game and celebrated his hat trick! Lexington took several additional hard shots on Crowley that were covered, deflected and caught.

On Sunday, the Mite 1's continued their attack with Matt Ardito potting the team's first two goals both on sniper shots over the Newton goalie's right shoulder. He finished with four-goals and five points. Ferocious early defense by Ryan Dusablon and Jack Farrell kept pressure high on Newton and the first ended in a 2-2. Dusablon played especially tough along the boards all night long.

In the second, Michael Daniels and Gannon Ricci were on fire. Daniels netted a low heat seeking wrist shot from the bottom of the right circle to the far left corner. He later had a nifty give and go goal receiving a terrific selfless pass from Ardito in the third. Ricci created chances for his team with his aggressive play all night, he netted a terrific second effort goal and then set up a Tristan Dimeco goal as well.

Keegan Gray and Aydan Churchill played stifling, in your face defense, channeling attackers constantly and rifled multiple shots down low. Churchill stuffed two Newton players on their way out of the zone. Center Ella Cedrone played so aggressively, but cleanly, that at one point she broke her stick! Newton tried to comeback in the second with multiple shots and rebounds, but they only rarely beat Goalie Liam Crowley, who again tracked his shots, stayed in position and covered many loose pucks frustrating the Newton attackers.

Cameron Gagnon had a pretty rocket shot goal from the slot in the third and he and Michael Daniels each backchecked to stop critical Newton breakaways. Nick Ackerman played every forward position during the game with ease and tenacity throughout the game! It was 5-2 after two periods and the Mite 1's rolled from there concluding a terrific weekend for the Mite 1s.

Squirt 1's

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Association Squirt 1 team opened their Valley League season with two games in the first week of the season. Saturday morning had the Wildcats facing Marblehead at the Lawrence Valley Forum. Sam Cedrone was in net, with Zachary Kincaid, and Matt Miller working the blue line. Zachary Smith started at center, flanked by Andrew and Derek Gallucci.

Marblehead took the early lead, and looked to build on that when Wilmington was whistled for a penalty soon after the first goal. The penalty killers were up to the task, with Anthony Bowker, Joseph Hartzell, and Joseph Hansen taking turns at forward, and Jimmy McCarron steady on defense.

In the second period, Marblehead turned up the intensity, using quick passing plays and puck movement to break through for four goals. The Wildcats scratched back with two of their own, first from Matt Pendenza, and then a late tally by Andrew Gallucci. But Marblehead clamped down in the final period and allowed no more scoring, while adding two goals to make the final score 7-2.

Sunday morning brought the team to Malden take on Medford. Cedrone was back in goal, with Brendan Ardito joining the defensemen and Maura Fiorenza taking a slot at right wing after missing Saturday's action. The Wildcats benefited from eight different goal scorers to rout the Medford squad in a penalty filled affair. Scoreless through most of the first period, Matt Miller broke through for the first Wilmington goal.

Medford quickly answered with one of their own, but with Zach Smith won the next faceoff to send in Andrew Gallucci and put the blue and white ahead once more, all three goals coming in a span of 45 seconds.

Jimmy McCarron stretched the lead to 3-1 early in the second period. From there, the game was slowed down by multiple penalty calls as the refs called the action tight. The Wildcats fought off a two-man advantage, but Medford closed in with a goal after the penalties had expired. When Medford was sent to the box, Wilmington's Anthony Bowker cashed in on the power play with relentless drive to the net. Derek Gallucci took a pass from brother Andrew Gallucci to net the Wildcat's fifth, and Matt Pendenza took the lead to 6-2 before the period ran out.

Zachary Kincaid added another power play goal in the third period, but then overlapping penalties put the Wildcats two men short for an extended time and Medford got their third goal. Joseph Hartzell chipped in the rebound of Joseph Hansen's shot in the final minute to cap the scoring in the 8-3 win.

Squirt 2's

Wilmington Squirt 2's opened their season this weekend with two games. In the opener Beverly jumped on the board first with a goal five minutes left in the first period.

The second period shaped up to be an even faster paced, up and down race with Defensemen Brian Dunfey and Evan Munro along with fellow Defensemen Nate Packer and James Kourkoutas successfully withstanding an onslaught of fast paced breakouts and tough nose corner battles.

Beverly added two more goals in the second period to put the Squirt 2's down by three halfway through the second period. But they couldn't withstand the onslaught that was about to be unleashed. Wilmington would go on the board late in the second with a goal by Jason Davey, assisted by Patrick Callahan. Goalie Max Churchill consistently made incredible, stand on your head saves throughout the second period keeping the 'Cats in the game.

Beverly was able to squeek out a late goal in the second period, putting the Wilmington Squirt 'Cats down by three, ending the second period 4-1 in Beverly's favor. But the Wildcats would not go down easy.

With the start of the third period, Beverly could no longer keep up with the better positioned and better passing 'Cats team anchored by Patrick Callahan and Brian Davey. Wilmington then unleashed a fury of goals with their second goal being netted by a battle won outfront won by Connor Hill, assisted by Jason Davey.

Wilmington's third goal came late in the third period with 1:15 left, being a classic corner picking goal shot by Ryan Ackerley, again assisted by Jason Davey who tallied three points for the game. The score was now 4-3 in Beverly's favor with less than a minute left. That's when Wilmington "unleashed the hounds". A mad scramble out in front of Beverly's net almost tied it up with Joey Cornish and Joey Pastore battling for the puck, but fate was not a lady tonite. Wilmington left Beverly battered and bruised with a 4-3 loss.

Wilmington's game on Sunday was a continuation of their first, being characterized by fast skating and crisp passing. Wilmington went on the board first with a goal by Peter Kourkoutas, the first of his Hat trick for the game,unassisted. Wellesley countered with a goal in the first tying the score at 1-1. That's when Wilmington turned on the jets. Goals in the first period by James Kourkoutas scored a goal from the point assisted by Joey Cornish, Peter's second assisted by Ryan Ackerley and Peter's third goal assisted by Evan Munroe ended the first period 4-1 Wilmington.

The second period saw three more Squirt2 goals by Ryan Packer assisted by Connor Hill, Joey Cornish assisted by Joey Pastore, and Ryan Ackerley unassisted. End of second period, Wilcats 6-1. The third period saw two more goals, one by Connor Hill unassisted and Peter's third goal unassisted. Wellesley would score one more in the last minute to end it at 8-2.

Again, outstanding defensive plays by Nate Packer and Brian Dunfey gave Max Churchill breathing room. Well positioned play by Brian Davey helped shut down Wellesley in the neutral zone and helped the 'Cats break it out from their end. Patrick Callahan provided the power on left wing to help his line score two goals.

Squirt 3's

The Wilmington Squirt 3 hockey team got off to a great start this weekend posting a 6-3 win against Natick on Saturday followed by a 7-0 win vs Waltham on Sunday. Saturday's scoring was led by pairs of goals by Jonathan Bazile, Brendon George and Brendan Kelley.

The offense was dominant in the second game with a hat trick by George, and goals by Colin Gates, Kelley and Bazile. William Alworth was also solid on both ends of the ice.

The defense and goaltending was strong all weekend with Jake Chirichiello, Anthony Savage, Justin Healey and Liam Prigmore helping to preserve Sunday's shutout for goalie, Chase Perault.

Pee Wee 1's

The Wildcats dominated in both games this past weekend, first beating Haverhill 5-1 on Saturday and then topping Andover 7-1 on Sunday.

Great wins always start with the goalies and the team got efficient performances from their tandem of Shane Ahlin and Steve Bowker.

In front of the goalies, the defensive corps was at its best. Conlin Duffy showed his steady poise and heavy shot from the point. Mike Fiorenza complemented his defensive efforts with his slick passing and ability to keep the puck in the offensive zone. Dylan Wargo was active and heady with the puck. Kyle Bolis using his large body to shield the opposition and control the puck. Max Shapiro was very active in all zones of the ice, featuring several individual rushes into the zones.

It was the offense that lit the lamp, the line of Pat Baker, Chris Robarge and Nolan Fitzgerald accounted for eight points on the game. Each scored a goal, and created helpers to lead to more goals

The line of Dean Nally, Jerry Bazile and Tom King featured a relentless attack of Wildcat Blue. Jerry uses his speed to zip the puck through the zone, and Dean and Tom are professional goalie crashers.

The veteran threesome of Calvin Stafford, Justin Ely and Carl Beatrice. The line has ben together for a while and familiarity shows with their instinctual passing. Playmaking from Justin, unselfish play from Calvin and laser shot from Carl make for good combo.

Game 2

Dominate performance by the Pee Wee 1 Wildcats, for the second game in a row the Wildcats controlled the game from start to finish.

Great wins always start with the goalies and the team got efficient performances from their tandem of Shane Ahlin and Steve Bowker. Sometimes the hardest games for the goalies is when their offense is dominating the game, it takes high concentration to stay focused. Stay focused they did, making big stops and not letting out any rebounds for the desperate opposition.

Pop Warner Round-Up

C team opens season up in dominating fashion

The Wilmington Wildcats Pop Warner C team opened the 2012 season on Sunday with a 20-0 victory over the Winchester Sachems.

The Wildcat defense was stifling against a physical Winchester squad and the offensive line was dominant in helping the Wildcat rushing attack run for 178 yards and three touchdowns in the game.

The C team is comprised primarily of players from last year's undefeated Middlesex League Champion D team and this team picked up where last year's squad left off.

The Wildcats won the coin toss and elected to receive the ball. After a long kick return that took the Wildcats into Winchester territory, Wilmington had a quick four play, 39 yard drive capped off by a 20 yard touchdown run by John Kenney. Kenney, who finished the 2011 season with 1,206 yards rushing and 23 touchdowns, seemed to pick up where he left off last year.

The offensive line, anchored by Kyle Kenyon at Center, Blake Hiltz, Mark Companschi and Kyle Bolis at Guard and Pat McAndrew, Tommy Strow and Colin Rooney at Tackle also picked up where they left off last season as they dominated the line of scrimmage on the opening drive and throughout the game. The PAT was no good so the Wildcats led early in the game, 6-0.

The defense took the field next and they too seemed to pick up where they left off. The Wildcat defense held Winchester to negative yards on the first drive of the game, a trend that continued for most of the afternoon. The Wildcats recorded 14 tackles-for-loss on the day. The defense was led by linebackers Blake Hiltz (5 1/2 tackles), Joey Dumoulin (5 1/2 tackles and an interception), nose-tackle Peter Marino (4 tackles) and cornerback Mikey Daley (3 1/2 tackles).

After Winchester went four-and-out the Wildcat offense took over and that's where things got a little rough for Wilmington. Over the remainder of the half, the Wildcats recorded five fumbles which led to four turnovers.

The Wildcats also had two touchdowns called back (one on a run by John Kenney and one on an interception return by Joey Dumoulin) during the half. While the defense looked solid, the offense showed some early season, first game rust and they made it to halftime with a 6-0 lead.

The Wildcats came out in the second half and looked like a different team.

Quarterback Andrew Sullivan led Wilmington on a seven play, 68-yard drive that culminated with a 23-yard touchdown run by fullback Kyle Penney. Penney had three carries for 31 yards on the drive and looked like the 2011 Kyle Penney that served as a lead blocker for Kenney as well as a running back that accounted for 413 yards, seven touchdowns, and an astounding 5.4 yards-per-carry average for a fullback.

The PAT put the Wildcats up 13-0 midway through the third quarter and the team started to come alive.

The Wildcat defense came out and again proved stifling to the Winchester offense. The Sachems tried running up the middle but were stuffed by defensive tackles Kyle Kenyon, Brett Chisholm, Nolan Fitzgerald and Michael Smolinsky who combined for 3 1/2 tackles.

The defense was without tackle Nick Kullman, who is still recovering from an off-season injury but the defensive interior played well. On the perimeter, Defensive Ends Andrew Brandenburg were solid combining for five tackles including Brandenburg running down a Sachem back on a toss sweep and Irizarry staying home and stuffing a reverse in the backfield.

The secondary, led by Timmy Rivers and Ryan Brewer at Safety as well as Michael Ducharme and Mikey Daley at corner held the Sachems to zero pass completions. The secondary combined for six tackles on the day.

After John Kenney left the game due to injury, linebacker Braden Hiltz took his spot at running back. After tallying two carries for seven yards, Hiltz took a toss sweep to the right, followed a solid block from slot back Justin Fraser and cut back across the field, weaving through a slew of Sachem defenders en route to the end zone. The 39 yard touchdown run was the longest run of the day for either team.

Hiltz finished with four carries for 48 yards, an astounding 12 yards-per-carry. With the PAT, the Wildcats went up 20-0 and that would be the final score of the day.

Although the Wildcats have many returners from last year's D team, the new additions to the squad have made the team even stronger. Blake and Braden Hiltz played with the Wildcat C team last season, Timothy Rivers played in Malden and recently moved to the area and Andrew Brandenburg played in California last season before he and his family relocated to the area.

Additionally, first year players Colin Rooney, Kyle Bolis, Nolan Fitzgerald and Michael Smolinsky all made contributions in the win.

Although the first-half did not quite go as planned, the second half was a showcase of the toughness and resiliency that made the team a league champion and carried them to an undefeated season last year.

The Wildcats open their home slate this Sunday with an 11:00 AM game against for a gain of ten yards which led to Evan's 45-yard touchdown run on the next play, the offensive unit was led by Jeandre Abel, Kristian Aguila, Dominic Biarrio, Luca Callahan, Mike Lee, Aiden MacLeod, Ryan Watson and Dylan Timmons. Winchester came out on the next drive making a back the kick off for a touchdown, and Wilmington never looked back. Lead by coach Bob Jones, Bob DuCharme, John Robarge, Dick Hersom, and Jim Bailey, the Wildcat offense pounded on the Saugus defense all afternoon. Running back Graham Smith had a superb day, scoring three touchdowns.

The Wildcat defense was solid, shutting out the Sachem offense.

The 2012 Pop Warner The B Team players are: Matt Amentola, David Bailey, Brandon Belmonte, Shane Calla, Patrick Carroll, Michael Delucia, Sean Devlin, Bryan Domek, Rob Ducharme, Scott Falzano, Dan Gracia, Travis Haines, Matt Hersom, Nolan Kane, Connor MacKenzie, Jared Marquard, William McEvoy, Joseph McInerney, Christopher Medeiros, Warner team opened up its 2012 season this past Sunday with an impressive 18-0 victory against a tough Winchester Squad.

The Wildcats struck first on Adam LeBlanc's lightning speed with 55 yard touchdown run (his first of two for the day) Key blocks on the play came from Jack Rooney, Bill Doumlin, Hugh Murphy, Aaron Dancewicz, Tyler Cardello, Tim Pearson, Diondre Turner and Keegan Gray. Winchester took the field only to run into a fired up Wildcat defense who shut them down early, key tackles were made by Joe McCauly, Mason Glover, Brady Robbins, Josh Brandenburg, Ryan Santini, Andre Turner and Derek Macguire.

After a strong first half the Wildcats offense came back out on the field led by Quarter Back Evan Witalisz who took over making a quick pass to Bill Doumlin statement and started to move the ball up the field but the wildcat's defense calmed down and stopped them at the Wilmington 30 yard line, key tackles during the defensive stands were made by, Joe Kullman, Gavin Erickson, William Kenyon, Casey Robbins, Ryan Nuzzolo and Jacob Roque. Brian Duggan made a key tackle from the middle linebacker position stopping the opposing running back on 4th down.

Wilmington's offense marched back on the field and was led by Jacob Roque with a quick 25-yard gain and then followed was some hard nose running by Josh Brandenburg, Adam Leblanc, Andre Turner, Ryan Santini, Mason Glover, Joe McCauly, and Brady Robbins securing the Wildcat win. Not to mention the big foot of Gavin Erickson whose kick offs confused the Winchester return team.

Under 9 Boys soccer team competes in tourney

The Wilmington Boys U9 Boys Soccer team participated in their very first competitive tournament over Labor Day weekend at the Ipswich River Fields in North Reading. It was the kickoff weekend of their travel season, much like other teams from around town.

The Boys started out on Saturday against another young team from Peabody. The game started out tight but was quickly opened up by Wilmington scoring goals by Aidan O'Connell, AJ Lavigne, Matt Ardito and Gavin Erickson. By half-time, the score was 5-0 Wilmington. North Reading got on the score sheet early in the second half, but with two more goals in the half, the Wildcats closed the door, final score 7-1.

The afternoon matinee was against hosts North

Reading. This game was much closer than the first as the opponents showed they had more experience with travel play. However, goals by Liam Dwyer and Tyler Rourke was all that was needed as the young Wildcats finished day one with a 2-0 victory and an undefeated record heading into day two.

Sunday rolled around and the team had a 1pm tilt with a tough Framingham team. Framingham started the game well organized and were moving the ball very well. However, the dam broke and before you knew it, several Wildcats had found the back of the net. The game's goal scores were Matt Vinal, Ryan Ackerley, Joey Dynan, Ardito, Erickson and Lavigne. Final score was 7-0.

The final game of the tournament was at 4pm against a challenging fourth grade North Reading team. The game was nip and tuck until Jack Farrell scored the 1-0 goal in the first half. However, not to be outdone, North Reading took advantage of some tired legs and buried the equalizer. In the second half, the Wildcats regained the lead with a beautiful one-timer by Johann Ferrer. This was quickly followed up with a nice finish by Tyler Rourke, making the score line 3-1 Wilmington, the final score of the game.

Coaches for the tournament were Andy Lavigne, Steve Rourke and Mark Dynan. Tommy Mallinson, injured a few weeks earlier, played the role of team manager and was a huge help on the sidelines keeping the players motivated with great spirit and support.

WYSA hosts First 'Field Day'

Wilmington Youth Soccer hosted its first annual Field Day this past Sunday at the Shawsheen Field. The money raised will go to a variety of needed priorities, such as helping us to replace aging equipment, allowing us to keep our rates at current levels, scholarships and developing new programs to better develop our players. The event included numerous activities that were attempted by kids and adults alike. The highlights centered around the brave volunteers who manned the dunk tank throughout the day. President Ed Riekstins and Technical Director Rob Holliday were particular crowd favorites.

There were additional memorable moments during the day as attendees took advantage of face painting, tattoos, target shooting, hardest shot competition, beat the keeper, jumpy houses, human foosball, three legged dribbling, soccer golf and a spirited 3-vs-3 tournament.

While taking a break from the physical offerings, participants were able to buy tickets for raffle baskets and gift certificates, take part in a silent auction, 50/50 raffle and purchase treats from the bake sale. The amazing weather, large volunteer turnout and generous donations from numerous association members and local businesses made the day a tremendous success.

A big thanks to all who attended and we are already looking forward to an even better second annual Field Day!

Wilmington Youth Soccer held a Family Fun Day on Sunday at the Shawsheen Elementary School where this giant soccer ball was a big hit with the kids. Those soccer kids include, from left, Caterina Tassone, Meghan O'Mahony, Patrick Tassone, Patrick O'Mahony, Amanda Sloari, Ella Malvone and Joey Malvone. Teams of four or five will compete in a double elimination tournament, with cash prizes going to the top three teams. All of the proceeds this year will benefit the family of Mikey Murphy, who is scheduled to return home this September, over year after collapsing last June. The tournament will be capped at 16 teams.

The cost of entering a team is $100. Food and refreshments will be available for purchase, and fans are welcome as well. This is a fast-pitch tournament, ages 18+.

Annual Road Race for Kelli Murray, set for Sept. 23

Family and friends of Kelli Murray will reunite again this year at Wilmington's 8th Annual Road Race hosted by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. The race will include a Half Marathon (13.1 miles) and a 5K Run/Walk (3.1 miles) on Sunday, September 23rd at 10am at WCTV at 10 Waltham Street.

Register early by downloading a registration form at www.wilmingtonmachamber.com or on-line at run-reg.com. Be sure to indicate "Team Kelli" on the registration form. Team members that participated in the past are asked to wear their special green t-shirts with Kelli's "star logo" on it. Or, contact Jan Silva at edsdk64@aol.com to receive a newly designed t-shirt.

In honor of Kelli, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will again donate a portion of the proceeds via scholarships in Kelli's name to deserving college-bound Wilmington students. This past June, Pat Agati proudly presented scholarships to Marianna Tassone and Ryanne Newhouse.

Kelli is missed dearly by her entire family and countless friends. Because Kelli enjoyed running so much, this community event is a perfect way to honor her memory!

Please contact the Chamber of Commerce at 978-657-7211 with additional race questions.

The Camp staff will include head and assistant coaches from American College, Babson, Emmanuel, Endicott, Franklin Pierce, Holy Cross as well as the UMass Lowell staff among others.

The Camp is open to players grades 8-12.

Burlington rabbi moonlights as author of children's books

By GORDON VINCENT

When Rabbi Susan Abramson's son Aaron started learning how to read, she noticed there was a dearth of Jewish literature for children. Abramson decided to do something about it: She became an author.

Abramson, of Temple Shalom Emeth in Burlington Center, has penned four books in the past 11 years, all centered around a superhero character named "Rabbi Rocketpower."

The books are as entertaining as they are colorful, with the latest entry: "Rabbi Rocketpower's Tooty Fruity Tale for Tu B'Shvat," illustrated by Woburn resident Laura Standley, who is a student at M.I.T. The first three entries were illustrated by Billerica resident Ariel DiOrio, a recent graduate of Mass. College of Art.

The inspiration for Rabbi Rocketpower partly comes from Day Pilkey's acclaimed "Captain Underpants" series, which Aaron - who is now 17 - was reading at the time. Captain Underpants is the superhero alter ego of an elementary school principal created by two 4th graders. With alliterative villains like "Wedgie Woman" and "Bionic Booger Boy," the series has been a huge hit with elementary school-aged boys.

"My son was a good reader, but he was a picky reader, and Captain Underpants was something he read over and over and over again," said Abramson. "My son and I have the same type of sense of humor, so I started reading them."

Abramson also sought to educate not only Jews and interfaith families, but non-Jews as well. The setting of each book is a Jewish holiday, starting with "Rabbi Rocketpower and the Mystery of the Missing Menorahs - A Hanukkah Humdinger." Since it falls near Christmas, Hanukkah is a holiday familiar to most non-Jews.

"I figured if I couldn't sell a book about Hanukkah, then I couldn't sell a book," laughed Abramson. "As I went along, I tried to incorporate other holidays (into the series) to not only teach Jewish children about our traditions, but to teach children of other faiths about our traditions as well."

Subsequent books in the series have focused on Passover, one of the High Holy days which commemorates the emancipation of the Jewish people from Egyptian rule; Shabbat, the Jewish day of rest; and Purim, a festive holiday that commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from the Persian empire.

The theme of each book centers around the heroics of Rabbi Rocketpower, a female rabbi who must save the day from aliens who unknowingly try to disrupt a Jewish tradition. For instance, in "Hanukkah Humdinger," the aliens steal menorahs to provide them with fuel to return to their planet because their spaceships have run out of gas. There are no "bad guys," as the aliens are not acting out of malice.

RABBI SUSAN ABRAMSON, of Temple Shalom Emeth in Burlington Center, has penned four books in the past 11 years, all centered around a superhero character named "Rabbi Rocketpower." Below at left is the cover of her book "Rabbi Rocketpower and the Half-Baked Matzah Mystery."

Abramson also wove members of her family into the books. Rabbi Rocketpower's "superboy-in-training" is named Aaron and the "brilliant, multi-lingual computer scientist" is named Dad. Even the Abramsons' cat is depicted in the series and is a featured character in the title of "Rabbi Rocketpower and a Purr-fectly Preposterous Purim."

The books in the series also feature recipes for traditional Jewish foods like latkes (deep-fried potato pancakes) and other information like how to play the dreidel game.

In her writings, Abramson solicits input from members of the Temple Shalom Emeth congregations, which not only serves Burlington but other surrounding Middlesex East communities like Wilmington, Tewksbury, Winchester, Stoneham and Reading. There is also a burgeoning portion of the congregation from Woburn, according to Abramson.

Both of Rabbi Rocketpower's illustrators are congregants, and she seeks the opinions of those who matter the most - the students at the temple's religious education school.

"The third and fourth graders help me edit," she said. "If it's funny to them, then I know I'm on the right track."

Abramson travels to make personal readings at schools and temples. Her work has been well-received, and she has become a renowned author through the region, having been featured in publications like the Jewish Journal.

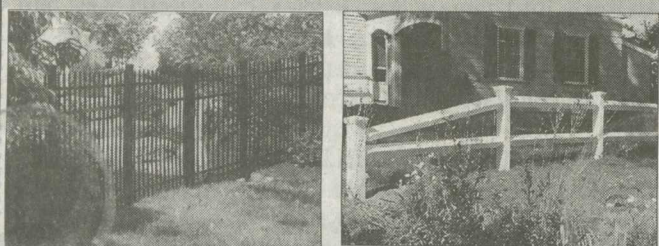

Writing is nothing new for Abramson, who as a rabbi pens her own material for services, which she's been leading at Temple Shalom Emeth for the past 28 years, as she has the distinction of being the longest-serving female rabbi in Massachusetts.

Abramson was ordained at Hebrew Union College's Institute of Religion in 1981, served as assistant rabbi at Rabbi to S-4

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"Bachelorette" an adult girls night out

"BACHELORETTE" IS A DECIDEDLY adult-movie, one that many will find true. It is an unexpected and bitterly funny take on the misery of the modern woman. Yes, it can be raunchy, but it's full of laughs.

"BACHELORETTE"
GRADE: **

'Bachelorette' will draw obvious comparisons to 'Bridesmaids', as a comedy for women that is rauchier than most, but the former really isn't in the same league as the latter when it comes to laughs.

The plot of 'Bachelorette' plays out like this: on the night before an old friend's wedding, three frisky bridesmaids go searching for a little fun but find much more than they bargained for.

With lovely Becky (Rebel Wilson) set to marry her handsome sweetheart, Dale (Hayes MacArthur), the remaining members of her high school clique reunite for one last bachelorette bacchanal in the Big Apple.

Regan (Kirsten Dunst) is an overachieving, ueber-Maid of Honor who's secretly smarting over the fact that she's not the first to marry, while Gena (Lizzy Caplan) is a whip-smart sarcastic who's actually a closet romantic, and Katie (Isla Fisher) is a ditzy beauty who loves the good life. But when Becky insists on keeping the bachelorette party tame, the women proceed with an after-hours celebration of their own.

Truth be told,

"Bachelorette" isn't just a knockoff of "Bridesmaids" - it actually has more in common with cult-favorite comedies like "Heathers" and "Mean Girls," plus "The Hangover," thanks to writer/director Leslye Headland writing style. The result is an unexpected and bitterly funny take on the misery of the modern woman.

Dunst plays a tightly wound overachiever who takes charge of Becky's wedding and resents every second of it. Even with all of her success, Regan can't stand the fact that Becky, the same person she still calls "Pigface" behind her back, beat her to the altar.

Next in the line of succession is Gena (Lizzy Caplan, terrific), a promiscuous substance abuser. Rounding out the group is Katie (Isla Fisher), an attractive air-head and the closest thing to a stereotype in the whole film. The story follows the women (minus Becky) on a pre-wedding all-nighter that begins with hard partying and ends with a mad scramble to fix the bridal gown they ripped. As the night progresses, the characters deepen, their dynamics grow more complex and, before you know it, you understand them, even if you don't like them.

Headland's quick-witted dialogue, loaded with the kind of well-rehearsed comebacks, nicknames and movie references (several from another high school classic, "Fast Times at Ridgemont High") that can only be shared between close childhood friends, that makes "Bachelorette" crackle. The film keeps up with a bouncy, nostalgic pop soundtrack and a frantic, fun pace.

It also features raunchy and foul-mouthed behavior usually reserved for a film like "The Hangover," but rarely played out by women on-screen.

The result is a decidedly adult Girls Night Out at the movies, one that many will find funny and true.

"LAWLESS"
GRADE: **

"Lawless" is a western-meets-mob type movie, very violent but ultimately enjoyable.

The movies tells the story of the increasingly bloody journey through life of naive Jack Bondurant (Shia LaBeouf). Big brothers Forrest (Tom Hardy) and Howard (Jason Clarke) are Prohibition-era moonshiners who try to keep Jack out of the business.

Those attempts quickly fail for a variety of reasons: Jack wants to impress a young woman (Mia Wasikowska) who also lives in the whisky-running Virginia territory that's been dubbed "the wettest county in the world."

Forrest is distracted by a mysterious newcomer (Jessica Chastain). And a gangster (Gary Oldman) tries to move in on the Bondurants' territory.

Although it's Jack who undergoes the biggest transformation in "Lawless," the movie centers around Forrest. As he showed in "The Dark Knight Rises," Hardy (who played the villain Bane in the latest Batman film) is skilled at making silence look and feel menacing. Here as Forrest he barely speaks and doesn't move around much, in great contrast to Guy Pearce's Jimmy Cagney-like performance as a lawman trying to shut him down.

Hardy lets the audience see the decency and moral code that drives Forrest, and morals are the main focus of "Lawless" - the movie spends less time on character development than on establishing what people will do to protect what's important to them.

Every second of "Lawless" feels amped up and charged. The film builds toward a confrontation between quiet Forrest and Pearce's lawman (Pearce is fun to watch).

Things come to a head on a covered bridge. This is the confrontation the whole movie has been building toward, and it's a doozy, big and bloody. You could almost say there are two parts of "Lawless": the parts where bad things happen and the parts where we're waiting for bad things to happen.

As thrilling as the bad things are, the waiting, the building tension, is what makes "Lawless" such a good take.

She continued, "Joan was an advocate for the program and this is our way of letting her know how grateful we are."

"At a recent meeting, the School Committee voted unanimously to approve a proposal to exchange one of the Burlington High School teachers with a teacher from a high school in Italy," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Burlington High Principal Mark Sullivan requested to begin the teacher exchange program this year, which will coincide with the student exchange program that has been going on between the two schools for the past two years.

"Assistant School Supt. Patrick Larkin briefly elaborated on the process, which is covered by the high school budget."

"Burlington High will send a teacher to Italy during February break for two weeks, and an Italian math teacher will be sent back in return for that period of time."

"We are trying to give our students as much of a global experience as we can," said School Supt. Dr. Eric Conti.

"The administration and School Committee expressed enthusiasm regarding the program."

"We are very excited about it," said Larkin, noting that the administration will debrief the students and teachers for feedback regarding how the exchange program went...."

"The issue, it appears, is over a permit..."

"The project is being managed entirely by the state. The town had a role at the spring Town Meeting in 2011 when it gave a unanimous vote of approval for a permanent transportation easement necessary to build the inbound ramp. Prior to that Conservation Commission voted to issue an Order of Conditions..."

"At that time, moving quickly into construction was said to be important due to the conditions of federal stimulus funding."

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: Gerry Cheevers was the starting goalie for the Boston Bruins between 1969 and 1972. Who shared goalkeeping duties with Cheevers for the Big Bad Bruins?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Senior M Jenna Costa (Attleboro, Mass.) set up the first goal and scored the second as No. 17 UMass Lowell battled back to draw Long Island University Post, 2-2 in double overtime in the second round of the 2012 River Hawk Classic.

UMass Lowell opened the scoring in the 50th minute when Costa dropped off a pass to JUNIOR F JULIA DONIGIAN (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) on the right side of the box, who blasted an attempt inside the far post.

The Pioneers answered a minute later, however, when freshman M Susanne Vistnes (Randaberg, Norway) broke free down the right flank and crossed to junior F Jeanine Ambrogi (Greenlawn, N.Y.) who headed home.

LIU Post snatched a 2-1 lead just two minutes later when Ambrogi attempted from the top of the box, which UMASS LOWELL GOALKEEPER JANE HATZIKONSTANTIS (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) gloved away. Senior M Prudence Rydstrom (Islip, N.Y.), however, tucked home the rebound uncontested.

The River Hawks maintained their collective composure and it paid off in the 64th. Costa was the beneficiary this time when senior F Keanna Santos (Lakeville, Mass.)

dropped off into her path, which Costa roped inside the right post from the top of the box.

UMass Lowell had several attempts in overtime, including a pair in the 100th minute when freshman M Selja Snorraddottir (Reykjavik, Iceland) lashed over the bar from the top left corner of the box.

Shortly after, LIU Post was whistled for a foul at the top of the box and senior B Taylor Hartmann (Feeding Hills, Mass.) lashed a free kick on target, but senior GK Nicole Fierro (East Hampton, N.Y.) tipped over the bar.

LIU Post had a chance in the 102 which brought out the best in Hatzikonstantis. Vistnes took space along the top of the box and ripped a curling shot which Hatzikonstantis did well to glove over the bar and out of play.

Sophomore Brittany Russo (Danvers, Mass.) nearly struck in the 103rd when she attempted from the right side of the box for the par post, eliciting a diving stop from Fierro.

She seemingly won the match at the horn when she lofted an attempt from the left flank over the reach of Fierro, but the shot crossed the goal line after the horn sounded.

LIU Post had a 16-14 advantage on total shots, but those on target were even at 10-10. Hatzikonstantis had eight saves for UMass Lowell while Fierro stopped eight for LIU Post.

•Senior Kelly Walton (Nahant, Mass.) placed 13th overall and 10th among scoring runners to lead the UMass Lowell women's cross country team at the Keene State College Alumni Invitational.

UMass Lowell placed fourth with 118 points (10, 12, 29, 31, 36 - 45, 63). MIT won the team title with 19 points and the host Owls took second with 67 points and American International College third with 90 points.

The race was made up of 147 runners representing nine colleges along with Keene State's alumni team.

Walton ran the two-mile course in 12 minutes, 13 seconds while senior Gina Butler (Dracut, Mass.) finished 19th/12th in 12:23, and freshman Megan Mahoney (Billerica, Mass.) 49th/29th in 13:09.

SENIOR COLLEEN KENNEDY (WILMINGTON, MASS.) placed 53rd/31st in 13:09 while SENIOR NICOLE SKOTZ (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) placed 61st/36th in 13:21. Junior Jasmine Mahotiere (Lowell, Mass.) placed 73rd/45th in 13:39 while junior Jasmin Medeiros (Rehoboth, Mass.) capped the effort in 103rd/63rd in 14:41.

Alexandra Taylor of MIT won the individual title in 11:29, just ahead of AIC's Jeptui Cherutich who posted the same time but a shade behind Taylor.

•Hannah Richard (Hopkinton, N.H.) recorded two goals and an assist and Emma Erler (New Hampton, N.H.) finished with a goal and two assists to propel the University of New Hampshire field hockey team to a 9-1 non-conference victory against Brown University at Erickson Athletic Complex.

UNH improved to 1-2 while this marked the season opener for Brown. The Wildcats have won each of the last four meetings (dating back to the 2008 season) by an aggregate score of 25-4. The nine goals matched UNH's highest goal output since Oct. 28, 2006 (9-1 win at UMBC).

The two goals and five points marked career highs for Richard, while Erler matched her personal bests in both assists and points as a total of 10 Wildcats recorded at least one point. Kellie Joyce (South Pomfret, Vt.) tallied a goal and an assist for a career-high three points.

Meg Carroll (Mansfield, Mass.), Meg Flatley (Townsend, Mass.) and Lynne Lehman (Landisburg, Pa.) all scored their first collegiate goal and Chandler Giese (Trappe, Pa.) tallied her first career point with an assist.

Megan Bozek (Cortlandt Manor, N.Y.), who also had a defensive save, and Casey Pohlmeier (Millersville, Md.) struck for UNH's other goals and Mackenzie Joyce (South Pomfret, Vt.) was credited with an assist.

UNH GOALKEEPER CARLIE TARBELL (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) made one save in both halves while Brown counterpart Shannon McSweeney made 15 saves, including nine in the second half.

The 57 Stonehill student-athletes honored represent 19 Skyhawks programs. The women's soccer and men's track and field teams both led the way with eight honorees while equestrian finished second with six student-athletes recognized.

Local Stonehill honorees include:

JUSTIN CERRA (WILMINGTON, MASS.)

MASS./ARLINGTON CATHOLIC - FOOTBALL
CAROLINE MCBRIDE (NORTH READING, MASS./NORTH READING) - WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY/TRACK & FIELD

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Gerry Cheevers and Eddie Johnston provided the Bruins with solid goalkeeping from 1969 to 1972. Cheevers played in 122 games, winning 78 and losing only 21; Johnston appeared in 113 contests, winning 73 games and losing just 23. Cheevers became famous for his goalie mask, which he marked up with stitches. Crozier was a goalie for Detroit, and Villemure played for the New York Rangers. Gilles Gilbert became the Bruins' goalie in 1973.

•DO YOU KNOW SOMETHING WE DON'T? If you have information about a local athlete that you would like to see appear in this column, please email it to readingchronicle@corn-cast.net, or mail it to: Paul Feely, Middlesex East Sports, P.O. Box 240, Reading, Ma., 01867, or call Paul at 781-944-2200.

How to floss more effectively

Dentists frequently advise patients to floss more often. Flossing is the key to preventing tartar buildup at the gum line and to reduce bleeding between teeth from inflamed gum tissue. Still, many overlook the benefits of flossing or simply do not know how to floss effectively.

The purpose of flossing is to remove food particles that become lodged in places a toothbrush cannot reach, such as under the gum line and between the teeth. Flossing should not take the place of brushing. Instead, use flossing in conjunction with brushing.

To floss more effectively, find a floss product that is easy to use and comfortable. Floss comes in nylon or multifilament varieties, as well as PFTE or monofilament floss. There also are floss brushes and single-use floss sticks that can facilitate flossing and cleaning teeth. Floss that's comfortable makes flossing more enjoyable. Otherwise, you may put off flossing if it is cumbersome or difficult.

To make the most of flossing, employ the proper technique. If you have teeth that have tight contact points, you probably will want to use a monofilament floss that will not shred or break apart. Others may be able to work with a nylon floss. Floss also may come in waxed varieties for easier gliding between the teeth. Still other floss have fluoride already on them to help prevent cavities.

* To begin flossing correctly, start with a piece of floss about 18 inches in length. Wind the excess floss around your middle fingers and keep about 2 inches handy between thumb and index finger for use between the teeth.

* Use a gentle sawing motion between the teeth to work the floss along the natural curve of the teeth and also where each tooth meets the gum line.

* Do not snap the floss against the gums. Doing so can cause trauma to the tissue.

* Angle the floss so it forms a "C" shape and hugs the tooth. Slide the floss up and down each tooth and make sure it gently goes a little below the gum line. Repeat on the opposite side of each tooth as well.

* As you floss each tooth, release clean floss from your fingers so you have a fresh area for cleaning the next tooth.

* Follow up flossing with brushing to remove any errant bits of food and plaque. Then rinse your mouth with water or mouthwash. It is advisable to floss twice a day before brushing. However, once a day will be sufficient and should be reserved for before bed.

Did you know?

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, as of 2011, 1 in 10 American adults could be classified as being depressed or having previously been depressed. A Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance Survey indicated that, persons ages 45-64, women, persons with less than a high school education, individuals unable to work or unemployed, as well as those without health insurance coverage tend to be more likely to meet the criteria for major depression.

* A partner who harbors unrealistic expectations: Experts say that those who engage in domestic violence are generally perfectionists and expect those around them to reach unattainable goals and their own perfection. Violence may result when things do not go off without a hitch.

* A partner who is controlling: When a person insists their victim account for all of his or her time, the relationship may eventually turn abusive. This behavior generally stems from feelings of insecurity and poor self-esteem on the part of the abusive individual, which is then projected to the partner in terms of abusive words or distrust.

* Escalating threats: In many cases, domestic violence begins with verbal assaults that may develop into physical threats. Whether the abuse is verbal or physical, it can have profound and long-lasting effects on the victim. For those who observe a person continually brow-beating a spouse or talking badly about him or her, this may be an indication of an abusive

Domestic violence is a problem that can affect anyone at anytime. Considering victims are usually frightened by their abusers, they often suffer in silence.

The Domestic Violence Resource Center says that 1 in 4 women has experienced domestic violence in her lifetime. Estimates range from 960,000 incidents of violence against a current or former spouse, boyfriend or girlfriend to 3 million women who are physically abused by their husbands or boyfriends per year. Men can also be victims of domestic violence at the hands of their female partners, and abuse can occur between same-sex couples as well. However, the Bureau of Justice Statistics indicates that women ages 20-24 are at the greatest risk of nonfatal intimate partner violence.

Domestic violence comes in many forms, including physical, emotional and verbal abuse. Many victims of domestic violence are battered into secrecy or are embarrassed that they are being abused and do not share their experiences with others. Others might not even realize that what they are experiencing constitutes abuse. But there are some signs of domestic violence that can be observed, and a third party may be able to intervene.

relationship.

* A partner with a noticeable temper: Sometimes a temper goes hand-in-hand with domestic violence. An individual with a short fuse and a propensity for lashing out with minimal patience in areas outside of his or her relationship may be equally short-fused in the relationship.

* A partner who limits access to money, belongings or the car: You may notice your friend or family member continually having to ask permission to use the car or visit with people. Some friends complain about not having access to the checkbook or being kept on a strict budget. While the circumstances do not always indicate a case of domestic violence, they may be warning signs that something is not right.

* Hidden bruises or excuses for injuries: Michigan State University's Safe Place indicates that injuries that are covered up and happen with some frequency could be a sign of domestic violence. If someone you know is trying to downplay frequent injuries, it may be a red flag.

* Conflict avoidance: Usually those who are in abusive relationships try to avoid conflict and rarely speak up or voice their own opinions.

* Personality changes: Withdrawal, inability or not wanting to meet up with friends, loss of enthusiasm, or any other personality changes may be indicative of someone that is being abused.

Domestic violence is something that takes many forms and is often hidden. But there may be some warning signs that can be observed through an outside party.

Oatmeal a healthy, hearty option

Oatmeal isn't just a delicious, filling and energy-boosting breakfast food. When eaten on a regular basis, oatmeal can offer marked improvements in health, say experts.

Oatmeal, as many people know, is formed from the oat grain. Oats have a hard outer hull, which is often removed during processing. Different oatmeal varieties, whether rolled oats, slow-cooking, instant, etc., are formed from processing the grain in a variety of ways. An oat that has had its hull removed is then known as an oat groat. These can be cooked and enjoyed without any other processing.

Rollled oats, or the old fashioned "oatmeal" that is widely known and found in food stores, are oat groats that have been steamed, rolled and flaked so that they cook quickly.

Oatmeal is one of the few grain products that is truly whole grain because the bran and germ have not been removed. That's just one of the many reasons to make oatmeal a part of a healthy diet.

* There have been numerous studies to show that oatmeal helps improve heart health by reducing cholesterol. As of 1997, the FDA has said that oatmeal manufacturers can promote oatmeal's heart-healthy attributes right on the product label. Oatmeal's soluble fiber helps remove bad cholesterol (LDL) in the body.

* Oatmeal may help reduce type 2 diabetes risk. The soluble fiber can help maintain proper blood-glucose levels.

* It may help with diets and weight-loss initiatives. Oatmeal absorbs water, which means it can make a person feel fuller longer. This, in turn, prevents overeating. Starting the day with a bowl of oatmeal may mean less snacking between meals.

This Week's Sampler: Cambridge

Craftsman style home is compact and cozy

The Cambridge is that rare exception to the rule a compact country style home. Typically, homes with gabled rooflines, dormer windows and a wrap around front porch are out of reach for first time homebuyers and far too large for empty nesters.

This plan is designed for economy and efficient maintenance, making it equally well suited to the needs of singles, families with young children, or couples who've graduated from parenthood to grandparenthood.

Placement of the front bedroom, adjacent to the front porch, makes it an ideal location for a home office. Relocating the closet would allow installation of a door for direct access from the porch.

Day to day living takes place in a bright, vaulted family room/kitchen combination that faces the rear. Naturally illuminated by skylights, side windows and a high dormer, this area rarely needs electrical lighting during daylight hours.

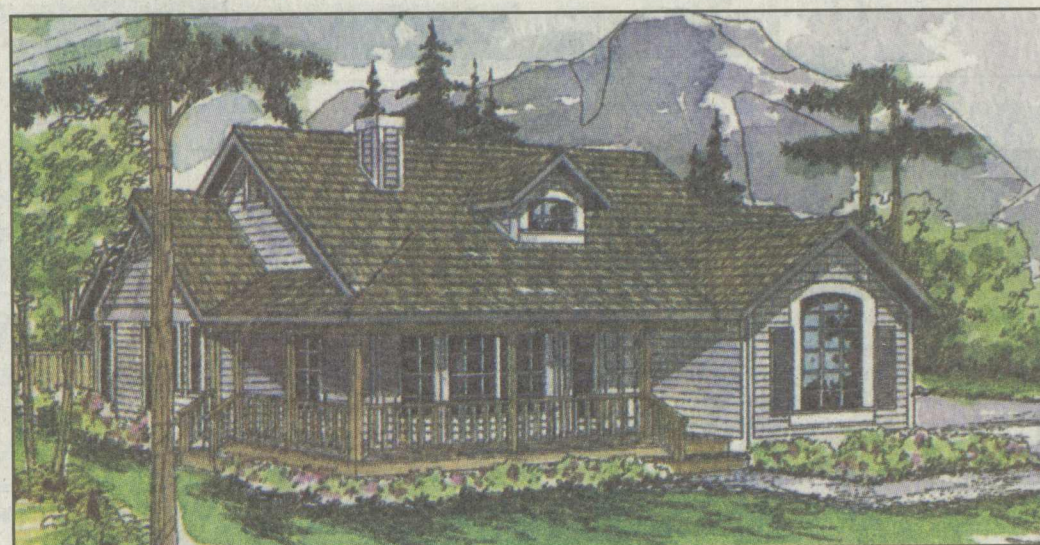

Sliding glass doors in the eating nook open onto a wide deck allowing meals to move outside when days are warm. Utilities are just a few steps away, tucked in the passage-way to the garage.

Potted plants flourish on 8 foot-high recessed plant shelves that flank the vaulted entry hall, overarch the entrance to the family room, and mark the passageway to the master suite. Families with brown thumbs can use these shelves as display space.

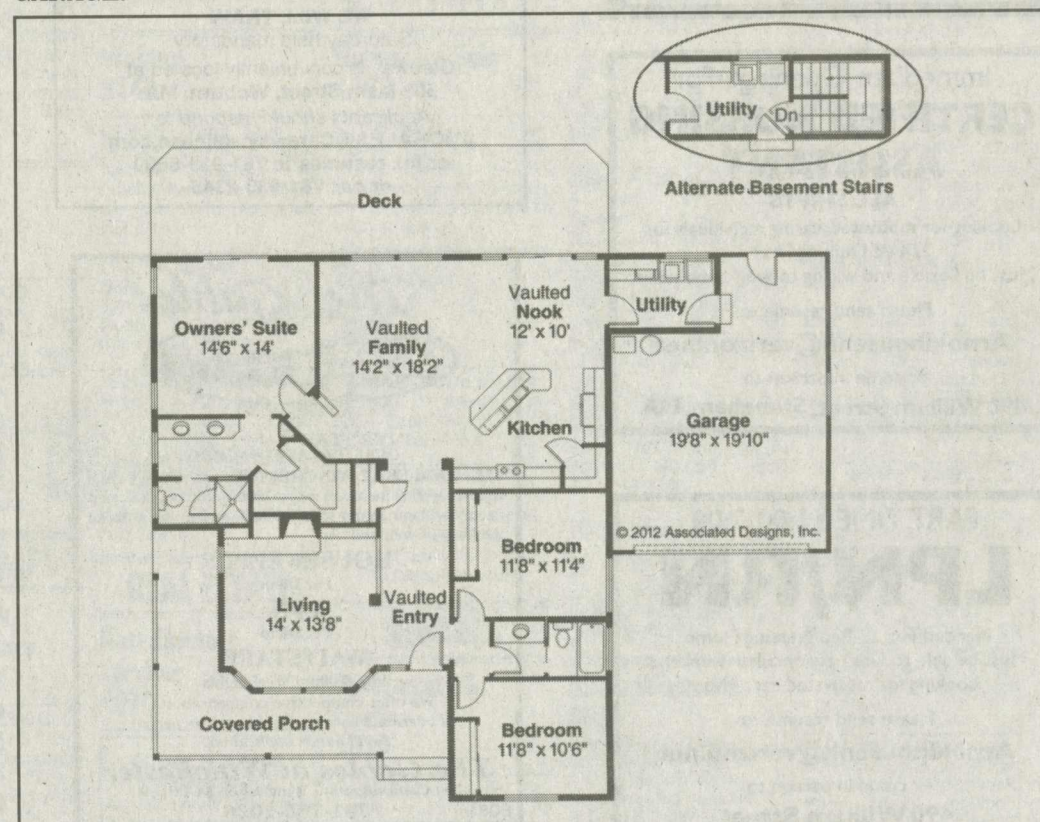

Luxury amenities in the master suite include a large walk in closet and twin basins in a dressing area separate from the water closet and

ON THE COVER

The Reading High football team is seeking a fifth straight version of a Middlesex League title this fall. The Rockets are quite explosive and can get after you on defense.

Also, you may need a cheat sheet to know which newly named division is which. We have messed up twice already and it is still early. The Liberty Division is the Large Schools while the Freedom is the new home of the Small Schools.

And next year the Middlesex League will realign again which will mean we all better pay attention in class from this point on.

Reading in good hands with Maney

By BRIAN MURPHY

At 6-2 and 195 pounds, Ryan Maney is a big receiver, especially by high school standards. His size and strength allow him to outfight defensive backs for the ball and provides a big target for star junior quarterback Drew Belcher. But what makes the Reading High senior the complete package is his speed and athleticism.

An all-star hurdler, jumper, and sprinter on the track teams, Maney can outrun most defensive backs. Linebackers don't have a chance.

READING

The numbers bear out his unique blend of abilities. With 37 catches for 637 yards in the 2011 season, Maney tied class of 2001's Dave Kaloyanides' school record for receptions in a season. He also caught a team-best seven touchdowns and earned first team all-star honors. Maney's senior season is off to a similar hot start. In the season opener against Lawrence he caught two passes for 30 yards, with both catches going for touchdowns.

"He's obviously extremely fast, and he's running much better routes now to enhance his speed," said head coach John Fiore. "His blocking has really improved a lot as well."

Maney's improvements on the football field are the direct result of his hard work in the offseason. He credits his success to his time in the weight room, playing in a seven on seven passing league, and supplementing that with additional offseason route-running work with Belcher and fellow receivers Jared Barros, Alex Valente, and Dylan Swaebe. But most of all he points to track, and to veteran track coach Hal Croft.

"He's the most inspirational person I've ever met," said Maney, of Croft. "He's taught me how to think, how to act, how to stop being a dumb kid and become an adult. Track not only gets you faster, but it helps you as a student, and how to manage your time."

Maney has a couple of highlight reel catches on his resume from the 2011 season, now available on Youtube. In a 28-27 win over Wakefield he hauled in a 26-yard touchdown catch from Belcher at the back of the end zone while falling down. Against Lexington he caught a routine pass on a slant pattern and turned it into a school record 92-yard touchdown, running straight through the Minuteman secondary in a gear none of the defenders could match.

"Receivers often have the most inconsistent impact on a game, yet the most dramatic impact on a game," Fiore said. "If you think about all the things that need to go well in order (for a wide receiver) to touch the ball, but when you have a dramatic receiver, it can change the way a team approaches the game."

Other teams around the league are taking notice of Maney and making adjustments. He often gets a safety over the top to provide extra coverage. Last year in the Woburn game the Tanners assigned their best athlete Chucky Ortiz to shadow Maney all over the field; Burlington did the same with its best player Marcus Odiah. But Maney still makes big plays.

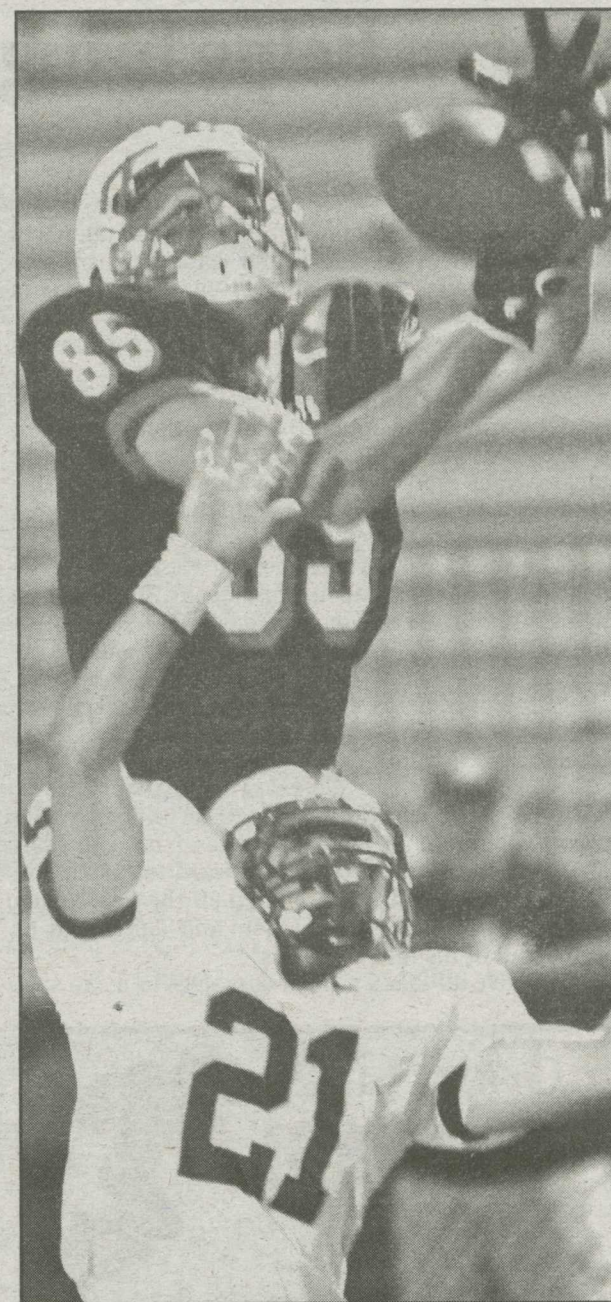

"If they put a safety over the top that allows my teammates to play 10 on nine," said Maney, who also credits receivers coach Mike Caron for his development as a player. "We can run so many sets, it's hard to prepare for us. We have a ton of athletes on our team."

Maney is first and foremost a receiver but this year the team is asking him to do more. The Rockets occasionally run him on reverses and he doesn't shy away from contact. During Friday's opening night win over Lawrence Maney got the call on a two-point conversion rush. Hit at the goalline, he powered over a would-be Lawrence tackler to stake the Rockets to a 20-0 lead.

Maney was also named special teams player of the week for the Lawrence game. He made a couple tackles on the kickoff team and knocked a Lawrence punt returner into the end zone, allowing teammate Matt O'Leary to recover a fumble at the one-yard line that led to a Reading touchdown. Fiore said he may even see time on defense at some point this season.

"If he needs me to run a jet sweep, I'll run a jet sweep," Maney said. "I completely trust coach Fiore

READING'S RYAN MANEY is a big receiver with outstanding athletic ability. Here, the 6-2 senior outleaps a Lawrence defender to come down with a touchdown during last week's season-opening win. The Rockets, and Maney, hope for another big 2012 season. (Bill Ryerson photo)

Ahern helps bring Wildcats together as a team, family

By MIKE IPPOLITO

WILMINGTON — After losing several key players to graduation, the Wilmington High football team will need to rely heavily on its senior leadership this season if it is going to have another successful year in the Middlesex League.

WILMINGTON

One of the seniors the Wildcats will be counting on most heavily will be tri-captain Brendan Ahern (6-0, 200), a three-year starter at offensive guard and defensive tackle. Nobody knows just how the season will turn out for the Wildcats, but at least in this regard, coach Mike Barry knows they are in very good hands.

"The thing about I like most about Brendan is I don't have to worry about him," said Barry. "If he has a bad play he is going to come after you harder the next play. He's a great leader and he worked really hard in the off season to become a great player. He is one of the kids we are relying on right now to show the younger kids what it takes to play at this level."

While Barry won't have to worry about Ahern, Wilmington opponents will most certainly have to worry about him, as he leads the team on both sides of the ball. Ahern is looking forward to his role in leading the Wildcats, both on and off the field, along with his co-captains Brian Priem and Tim Woods as well as all of his fellow seniors.

"We have all taken it upon ourselves to make sure the younger kids know what they are doing and that they are ready for the season," said Ahern, who was born in Reading before moving to Wilmington prior to first grade. "It is the first time on the big stage for a lot of them and it can be a little intimidating. But as captains, and seniors in general, it is our job to make sure they are ready to go."

"I am very happy with the way they are playing and I think the other seniors and captains feel the same way."

And while the season may not have gotten off to the start the Wildcats were hoping for with their 21-0 loss to Arlington on Friday night, Ahern is confident that he and his teammates will bounce back and have a great season.

"I definitely feel like we will do well," he said. "The mentality of this team is a lot different than any of our teams in the past. We have a lot of chemistry and we work very well together. We had a few hiccups on Friday night that killed us as a team, but our overall feeling that we can do well as a team has not changed."

If you examine Friday night's loss a little more closely, you will realize that the Wilmington defense actually played pretty well for the most part, with the exception of some big plays, including a breakdown on a 49-yard screen pass for Arlington's second score of the game.

Ahern feels like the defense will be even better in the weeks to come.

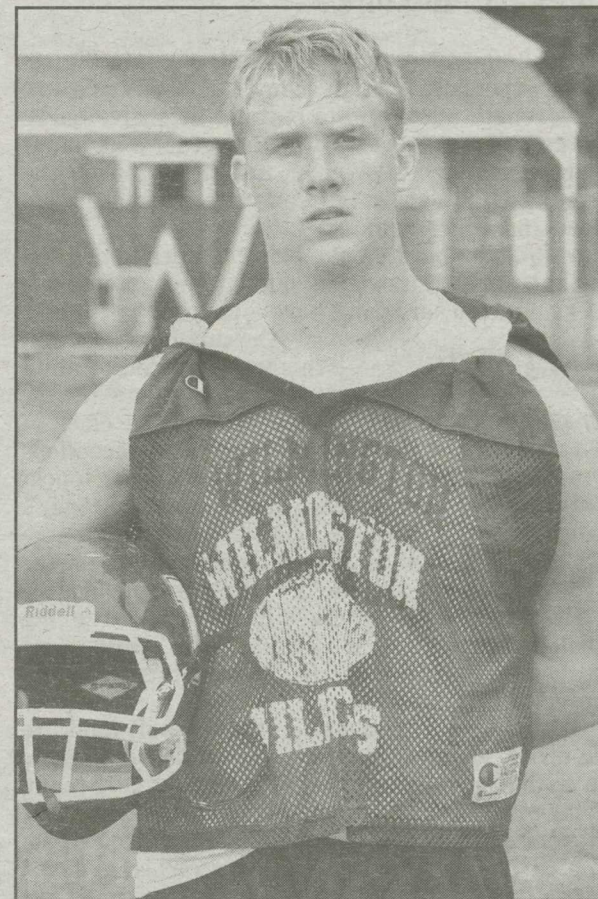

"Absolutely, I think we can be better," said the senior standout. "I feel like with a few more adjustments we can definitely be better. We can shut down the big plays, pressure the quarterback and shut down the run. We have a lot of returning kids on defense and the younger kids are stepping up, so I feel like once it all clicks we can be a force on defense."

Offensively, the Wildcats do not bring back quite as much experience, having lost their entire starting backfield to graduation. They do, however, return three starting offensive linemen, including Ahern, which should go a long way toward keeping the offense clicking.

"The offensive line is one of strengths this year and Brendan is a big part of that," Barry said. "We don't have a lot of experience in the backfield, but our experience up front should help us a lot."

Ahern and his offensive linemates are taking a lot of pride in helping to ease in their new starting backfield including quarterback James O'Regan and tailback Justin MacKinnon.

"We know what we are doing as an offensive line and we want the quarterback and the running backs to know that the blocks are going to be there," said Ahern. "We want their only responsibility to be to just hit the hole and get downfield and that the line will do the job for them. They can have confidence that the blocks will be there for them and they can just concentrate on what they need to do."

One member of the offense that Ahern is most looking forward to helping out is his brother Colin Ahern, a 6-4, 200-pound, junior tight end for the Wild-

Pratt is a throwback athlete

By STEVE ALGERI

Ten to 20 years ago and beyond, an athlete like David Pratt of Woburn High was commonplace. But, nowadays, in a high school age of sports specialization, David Pratt is an exception to the rule.

Pratt, 6-2, 200, is a throwback, three-sport athlete.

WOBURN

“Being a three-sport athlete says a lot about him, in my opinion,” said Woburn head football coach Rocky Nelson. “And he is doing it the ‘old school way’ with football, basketball and baseball.”

There are a bunch of two-sport varsity athletes in high school, but three sports is rare. Usually a player will give one up to focus on the others, or just one. Somewhere along the way the traditional high school three-sport athlete has lost his way.

But, not Pratt. Did he ever think of specializing in just one, or two sports?

“Not really. I just try to do my best in all of them,” he said. “I’m looking to play football in college. If I can play another one I’ll try that, but football is my main one.”

Pratt has begun his third year as a starter for the football team at tight end and defensive end. On the basketball court he was the team’s sixth man and played in all 23 games as a back-up forward/center. On the baseball field, he was the starting first baseman and pitched a little. He played in all 21 games.

Both the boys basketball and baseball teams made the tournament.

Pratt is one of four Woburn football captains and he almost got the captain “hat trick” his senior year.

“I almost got captain in all of them, I just missed baseball,” said Pratt. “That would have been something.”

To this point on the football field Pratt has had modest numbers, but his impact is not about catches and touchdowns and a bunch of tackles.

“He is all about the team and he’s done all that we can ask for as coaches,” said Nelson. “He’s the first guy there at practice and the first guy there on Friday nights.”

As a sophomore tight end, Pratt had six catches and a touchdown. He also made 21 tackles in 2010.

Last year as a junior he had five catches with a touchdown while making 27 stops on defense. He also took over the punting duties junior year and showed a very strong leg averaging 39.9 per kick with a long boot of 66 yards.

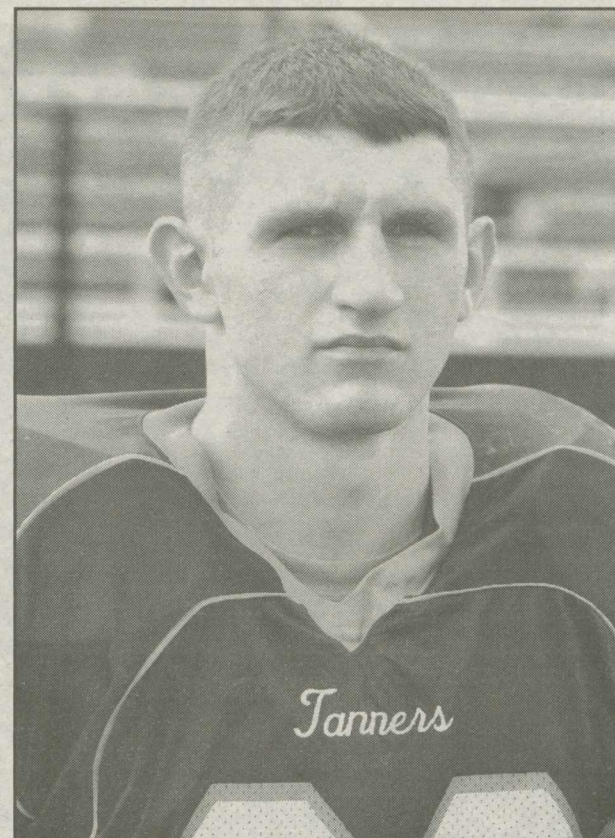

Having played football since the Pop Warner E level, starting as a sophomore was not lost on him. Being a rare three-sport athlete is one thing and Pratt was also a rare sophomore starter for the Woburn High football team. Not many sophomores earn the right to start.

“Coming in sophomore year and starting for varsity, that was just big,” he recalls. “Not many do that. I know (Mike) McLaughlin did; he also started as a freshman.”

Being a three-sport athlete also meant for a busy summer for Pratt. All his sports had something going.

He’d have football workouts and the now growing in popularity 7-on-7 football scrimmages. The Woburn High boys basketball program had summer league games in Woburn on Wednesday nights that he participated in also. Then throw in a busy summer of baseball playing for Barry Doherty’s Summer Tanners of the Middlesex Senior Babe Ruth.

STONEHAM QB ANDREW CANN gives the Spartans a solid veteran signal-caller who hopes to change the recent fortunes of the football program. Stoneham has opened the season with a victory. (Bill Ryerson photo)

Stoneham's Cann-do attitude may result in some improvement

By GREG BIDGOOD

There is a different good feeling around the Stoneham High football team this season.

In previous years the Spartans were emotionally weighed down by a losing streak that reached as high as 32 games.

STONEHAM

That skid was snapped last year and with a new coach in Bob Almeida, a new attitude, and 13 returning starters there is a sense of optimism surrounding the program in the early going of 2012.

None of those returnees will be as important as 6-2, 165-pound senior quarterback Andrew Cann.

He is a three-year starter, which means he called the signals for a winless team in 2010, a team that finished 2-9 and laid the foundation for the future of Stoneham football last season. Now this fall the Spartans hope to compete for a Middlesex Freedom (Small) crown and capture the program's first winning season since 2006.

But, one step at a time.

"We've got a lot of talent," said Cann. "And a lot of experience. A bunch of us have been playing for a few years now so the coaches are expecting a lot out of us, and we expect to have a solid season."

Cann had a good junior campaign in which he threw for 946 yards and seven TDs while adding another on the ground. Those are impressive numbers in an offense that ran the ball over 70 percent of the time.

He looks poised to blow those numbers away this fall after throwing for 164 yards on seven for eight passing and four touchdowns in a season-opening 34-6 win over Whittier Tech.

When asked about the performance, which earned him Player of the Week honors in both Boston newspapers, Cann deflected praise.

"It was fun," said Cann. "There was a different feeling out there. We were playing hard and playing good. I had great protection and my receivers gave me a lot to work with on the outside. It was a really good team effort."

The performance did not come as a surprise to Almeida, who because of Cann and his group of receivers, hopes to throw the ball more in his first season as the head man at Stoneham.

"We want to be more balanced offensively," said Almeida, who has had head coaching stops at Malden Catholic and Wilmington. "We competed in the 7-on-7 passing camps and you could see the strides (Cann) was making. I thought he looked as good as anyone out there playing quarterback."

As any quarterback will tell you, it is important to have good people to throw to. Cann believes he has that in a receiving group led by Eric Mooney, Dylan Owens and David Labossiere. Tight end Eric DeMario has also proved to be a valuable weapon for Cann over the past two seasons.

"Our skill players are unreal," Cann said. "The speed and the height we have on the outside is awesome. I just throw it up and they go get it."

Cann appears humble and hardworking on the field, and he seems to endear himself to teammates because he is a football player, not just a quarterback.

His team first nature is evidenced again when asked about the strides he has made from his first start two years ago to now.

"I have more confidence," said the quarterback. "And that is because I have confidence in everyone around me. The receivers have been with me, so we have great chemistry. The line has been protecting me, so I have a lot of faith in them."

The team also has faith in Cann, and believes in his final year under center that the one-sided contests against Middlesex League foes are a thing of the past.

"A winning record at the least is what I expect," said the QB. "I feel that we can definitely go out and compete with the teams in the (Middlesex) small. No more going winless in the Middlesex League."

Following in the footsteps

By KEN KOTELLY

Maybe being the son of former standout Reading High football running back Excell Walker, who led Reading to Super Bowl victories in 1995 and 1996, had the most influence on current Burlington High football running and defensive back Marcus Odiah's decision to play football.

Perhaps Odiah (6-0, 190) inherited some of Walker's athletic talent to become a gifted athlete himself. He is two inches taller than his legendary father who once ran through Woburn for six touchdowns on a memorable Saturday in November of 1996.

But while Odiah was too young to remember his father playing football in high school, what really put the biggest impression on Odiah at a very young age, and compelled him to follow in his father's footsteps, was watching his father play football in college at Northeastern University when he was just four years old.

"My father had a fairly big influence on me to play football," said Odiah. "I watched him play football while he was in college and that made me want to play football as well."

As Odiah matured through his elementary school years, he acquired more knowledge about his noteworthy father from his school teachers and football coaches who had remembered Walker's football achievements that Odiah was too young to remember, helping the youngster realize how good of a running back his father was.

"All through my schooling, my teachers were telling me how good my dad was as a running back in football from elementary school to high school," said Odiah. "So I already knew who he was and what he had done in football when I was still very young."

Despite being born into a gifted bloodline, the young Odiah wasn't compelled to want to play football like his father had initially. But when his father brought him to a Pop Warner football practice, it impressed the then eight-year-old Odiah enough to join the local Pop Warner team.

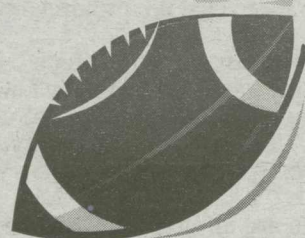

"I think it was about when I was in third grade when I actually started playing football," said Odiah. "I actually didn't like football at first, I wanted to quit, but my father took me to a Pop Warner practice when I was about eight years old, and that's when I decided I wanted to play football, so I signed up."

As the son of a former running back it naturally followed Odiah would try to tote the football as well, while also playing at both defensive end and linebacker.

Mangano welcomes his role as a Sachem leader

WINCHESTER'S TIM MANGANO is looking at the game more as a quarterback than an athlete this year. The second-year starting signal-caller hopes to help Winchester in its quest to rebound for a 1-9 season from a year ago.

(Bill Ryerson photo)

By MARK NADEAU

It is a long way up after a 1-9 season, but at least there is a lot of room for growth.

Leading the Winchester High football team this fall is quarterback Tim Mangano, a somewhat reluctant captain who will be feeding off his teammate's desire to succeed in guiding the Sachems.

WINCHESTER "It feels good," said Mangano, in being a captain along with senior classmate Dan McGurl. "I wasn't expecting it but my teammates picked me. I like being a leader but there's also a lot responsibility and some pressure."

Mangano set the tone for what could be a comeback season for Winchester when he led the way in a 27-13 opening day victory over Greater Lowell on Saturday.

The second-year quarterback and third-year varsity player did not turn the ball over while completing 13 of 19 passes for 178 yards and two touchdowns.

After the Sachems were inconsistent for much of the first half, Mangano led them on a crucial scoring drive at the end of the half which turned the game around.

The Gryphons took a 7-0 lead with less than a minute left in the second quarter and Winchester got the ball back on its 42 with 48 seconds to play. Mangano marched the Sachems down the field, completing 5 of 6 passes for 60 yards, including a 5-yard touchdown pass to George Casey as time expired.

Winchester remained in control from there through the second half in the two-touchdown win.

"We started slow but I think it was just first-game nerves," said Mangano. "That last drive with 48 seconds left in the half got us going and we had fun with it."

Mangano got his start in football with Woburn Pop Warner where he started out as a tight end until the quarterback quit the team. Mangano took over from there and has played quarterback ever since.

Although he had people in front of him at quarterback when he reached Winchester High, Mangano was still good enough to crack the lineup as a safety as a sophomore.

Prior to his junior year, the Sachem program experienced some upheaval as Winchester's coach at the time, Paul Sobolewski, felt pressured to resign. Mangano did not say it was a contributing factor but he made the decision not to come out for the team his junior year.

His decision held up until three days before the season-opener.

"I had been playing football for awhile and I didn't know if I wanted to continue," said Mangano. "But after a couple weeks went by I realized I missed it so I came back."

It was a tumultuous first season under new coach Wally Dembowski for Mangano, as a starting quarterback, and for everyone involved.

The highlights came in a lone victory over Stoneham when Mangano threw two touchdown passes in a 28-14 decision, and against Watertown where he threw two more touchdown passes and threw for a season-high 131 yards.

"It was confusing," said Mangano, of being the starting quarterback. "We had a new coach and different plays. We only had three kids on the team who had played varsity football before that and we played some tough opponents right from the start."

The quarterback portion of Mangano's season came to an end in week seven when he injured his hand leading up to the game at Arlington. After a bad first half against the Spy Ponders, the hand was not feeling right. It was later discovered Mangano had a fractured thumb. He was limited to playing safety with a large cast on his hand for the last three games.

"Tim is a tough kid with a good attitude," said Dembowski, prior to the game with Greater Lowell. "We need to figure out the last hurdle to get us in the win column and Tim is starting to understand the game more and what we as coaches are trying to accomplish."

The circumstances are different for Winchester this season. The players are settling into the new system in the second year with Dembowski and there are several returning players this year who are another year bigger, stronger and wiser.

"We want to keep heading forward," said Mangano, who spent the summer working out with his teammates and working on his passing accuracy. "I know we're working hard in practice."

"Tim is a good leader, a good captain and a good athlete who brings it all every day," said Dembowski. "Now he's looking at the game as a quarterback, not just as an athlete."

Rockets have plenty of firepower again while

The Middlesex League will still have the same set-up like a season ago where only games within the respective divisions will count in the standings and toward the playoffs. What is new will be the name of the divisions.

The Large is now called Liberty and the Small is now Freedom. The Liberty winner will still go to the Division 2 playoffs while the Freedom again heads to Division 2A. Other than that, not much else is expected to be different than in 2011 and that includes the balance of power.

Reading looks loaded and was the clear-cut choice by its division coaches to capture its fifth straight title, and third under a different name. After that in the Liberty Division, there is a huge dropoff in the battle for second with Woburn earning a slight edge over the rest.

The Small, or Freedom Division, looks to be the stronger side again. Burlington is the coaches' choice with last year's Div. 2A Super Bowl participant Wakefield, getting the nod for second, but Melrose is not far behind in what figures to be a three-legged race for the playoff berth.

Here is a capsule look at the schools:

LIBERTY DIVISION

1. READING

With eight returning starters on offense, including five league all-stars led by outstanding junior quarterback Drew Belcher, the Reading High football team is poised and ready to make a run at its fifth consecutive Middlesex League title and a repeat appearance in the Div. 2 playoffs. Reading finished 8-4 a year ago (5-0 Middlesex League Large Division) and advanced to the Div. 2 playoffs where it lost to Tewksbury, 21-6.

Belcher (6-3, 215) threw for 1,740 yards on 124 of 214 attempts with 14 touchdowns and seven interceptions last year. His passing yardage ranked second all-time single-season behind Steve Pizzotti's 1,908 yards in the 2000 season. He also finished as the Rockets' leading rusher with 637 yards on 126 carries (5.1 yards/carry) with 13 touchdowns.

Reading opened its season with a 46-2 trouncing of non-league Lawrence in which Belcher threw a pair of touchdowns to senior wide receiver Ryan Maney. Maney tied a school record with 37 catches last year, including a team-best seven touchdowns. He leads a talented receiving corps that also includes senior Jared Barros (27 catches for 360 yards in 2011) and Dylan Swaebe. Tight ends Chris Godwin and Rob DiLoreto are first-year starters but will also figure into the passing game.

Senior Alex Valente (5-8, 175) is a returning starter at tailback and also lines up as a wide receiver at times in the Rockets' spread offense.

Seniors Peter Fodera (5-10, 220) and Matt Comerford (6-5, 275) are returning starters and all-stars and anchor the right side of Reading's offensive line. Senior Brian Callahan (6-2, 245) and juniors John Donnellan (6-2, 220), Jimmy King (5-8, 235), and Andrew Bourque (6-2, 220) will figure into the rotation.

Free safety Greg Connery and middle linebacker Liam Kenneally anchor the Rockets' defense. Kenneally led the team with 80 tackles as a sophomore, while Connery (second on the team with 76 tackles) is a rare three-year starter. Fodera, Bourque, Donnellan, and Comerford anchor the defensive line. DiLoreto and Zack Krugman are the outside linebackers. Barros and Valente start at the corners while Godwin plays alongside Connery at safety.

The Rocket captains this year are Connery, Comerford, Fodera, and Barros.

2. WOBURN

Once again the Tanners did not get their season off to a good start as Acton-Boxborough made Woburn look inferior in the season opener. But, that will be OK if the Tanners follow the same path as a season ago when they rebounded to finish with a 6-4 overall record for their first winning campaign since 2007.

Rocky Nelson's crew will have to do it without one of its all-time great running backs as Chuck Ortiz, last year's ML Large School MVP, has graduated.

Woburn has four starters back on offense and four on defense. Many of whom are the same players. Of the four Tanner captains, three of them have been in the starting lineup since their sophomore years. David Pratt (TE/DE), Rory O'Brien (T/DT) and A.J. Santiago (G/DT) have seen plenty of action the past two seasons and will be looking to lead this team. The other captain, fullback Jared O'Brien (5-8, 175) rushed for 489 yards and five touchdowns last season.

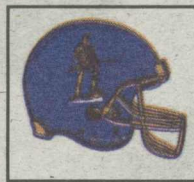

The Tanners are counting on sophomore tailback Marvin Jean (5-11, 180) to give the offense a boost. He was the first sophomore tailback to start the season opener for the Tanners since Craig Iverson in 1998.

Also, senior quarterback Ryan Glavin (6-1, 185) started the final three games a year ago and led the team to three victories. Woburn wants to throw the ball more this year so Glavin will be counted on to produce.

Defensively the front four of Pratt, Santiago, Rory O'Brien and returning statler J.D. Powell (6-1, 185) should be formidable. The new linebacking crew is unproven as is the secondary especially with returning safety Justin Grooms out with a stress fracture in his foot.

Woburn did not look very efficient in the opener, but against a quality non-league opponent like Acton-Boxborough, that could be understandable. The Tanners expect to learn from it and bounce back.

3. LEXINGTON

A year ago, new Lexington head coach George Peterson endured some first-year pains as despite an experienced team, the Minutemen fell to 4-7 last season.

Things won't be much easier for Peterson in his second year at the helm as the Minutemen lost 18 players to graduation and return just two players on both offense and defense. This lack of experience and depth will make Lexington's task to remain as competitive as last year a tough challenge.

Peterson will still use the spread offense he introduced last year to this inexperience group. Senior Xander Erickson (6-3, 175) takes over at quarterback. The only returning running back is senior Kevin Li (5-7, 170), a back-up ball carrier last year, with junior newcomers Mike Fernandes and Noah Gilbert also expected to carry the ball.

Ericckson will have one experienced wide receiver to throw to in junior Rhett Adley (5-7, 140), while seniors Ryan Wilson (5-9, 134) and Valdir Aliati (6-0, 165), junior Connor Murphy, and senior tight end Antonio DiRamio (5-11, 177) will also be passing targets.

Newcomers inherit the offensive front line, as seniors Nick Nerolien (6-2, 285) and Russell Iuliano (6-0, 197) will be the tackles, senior Yaseen Gholizadeh (6-0, 205) and junior Henry Muter (6-0, 192) will be the guards, and senior Joe Previte (5-11, 192) will be the center.

On the defensive side, Nerolien and junior James McLaughlin (5-10, 215) will be the tackles, while Gilbert and Gholizadeh will be the ends.

Behind the defensive line, Previte and senior Cody Myers (5-8, 175) will be the inside linebackers, while Fernandes and junior Shawn Phelan (5-11, 145) will be the outside linebackers. Lexington's limited defensive experience is in the secondary, where Adley returns along with Murphy as the cornerbacks, while Wilson will be the safety.

4. ARLINGTON

While everything from the league to the players and the head coach were new for the Spy Ponders last year, the mostly inexperienced team endured some growing pains and needed some time to learn new head coach John Dubzinski's new system. As a result, the Spy Ponders finished their first season in the Middlesex League with a disappointing 3-8 overall record.

But now things should at least be better for Arlington this season than they were a year ago with more experience and depth. The Spy Ponders not only lost just 12 players to graduation, but return 10 starters, five each on offense and defense, who have had a year to get used to Dubzinski's double-wing offense. Arlington should have enough added experience and depth everywhere to at least be more competitive than it was last year especially in last Friday's 21-0 win over Wilmington is any indication.

One spot the Spy Ponders will have some experience is at quarterback where junior Seth Coiley (6-0, 180), who alternated there with Jeremy Lee and had two rushing and two passing touchdowns last year. Also returning with some experience are senior running backs Matt Garcia (6-1, 210) and Jayson Witt (5-7, 150), and junior running back Dan Colombo (5-9, 155), while the top passing targets for Coiley will be junior Zach Thomas (5-11, 185) and senior tight end Mike English (6-2, 180).

Up front the only returnee on the offensive line will be senior Spencer Taylor (6-2, 200), who will be a tackle along with sophomore Nick Rose (6-0, 200), while juniors Mike Greco (6-0, 205) and Sam Jacey (5-11, 190) will be the guards, and sophomore Chris Girouard (5-7, 185) will be the center. On the defensive line, juniors Pascal Schamber (6-0, 230) and Lakota Samuels (5-8, 240) will be the tackles, with Taylor and English at the ends.

Backing Arlington's 4-4 set are junior Lucas Hanley (5-8, 175) and Garcia at inside linebacker, while Thomas and junior Marco Saenz-Grant (5-9, 155) will be the outside linebackers. What defensive experience Arlington has is in the secondary, where senior Hunter Sleeper (5-9, 165) and junior Andrew Cunningham (5-9, 150) return as the cornerbacks, while sophomore newcomer Frank Roache (5-11, 170) takes over at safety.

Burlington lurks as the choice on the other side

5. BELMONT

Although an opening night 27-0 loss to Melrose is not a good indicator, the Marauders hope to improve off their 3-8 record of 2011.

Belmont has just five seniors back from a year ago, but all are experienced and will be key contributors this fall.

Quarterback Mike Richardson is in his third year as the starter, making him the ideal candidate to run an offense with a mix of veterans and first-year varsity players. Richardson lost many of his favorite targets to graduation, but that opens up for a leading role for returning wide receiver Brian Coutts.

Junior Toussaint is another wide receiver to watch out for, as well as tight end Chris Kelly.

The Marauders also return a top running back in Alex Nikolaidis who is coming off a productive junior year. Providing the blocking are senior two-way linemen Brandon Sullivan and Alex Cypzik.

Coutts and Toussaint are also the starting safeties, while Belmont will also get secondary help from cornerbacks Keith Burns and Greg Janjigian.

Kelly will also play linebacker and bolstering that portion of the defensive unit is Lucas Fisher and Barrett Lyons.

"We have more depth than in recent years with 50 kids on the team," said Marauders' coach Kevin Gildea. "We have good senior leadership; now we have to find the right combination."

The lesson learned from the Melrose game is the need to pick up the tempo in practice.

6. WINCHESTER

After last year's long season, it would be hard to pick the Sachems anywhere else but at the bottom of the Liberty Division until proven otherwise. But Winchester showed last weekend in a 27-13 win over Greater Lowell it is further along this year and could move up to the middle of the pack.

Co-captain Tim Mangano is clearly in charge of the offense this year and has a lot more weapons at his disposal than last year.

Joe Ntege is still Winchester's most explosive player. He can line up in the backfield or in the slot while also dabbling in the defensive secondary and returning punts and kickoffs.

The regular starting tailback will be John Costello while Dana Marrocco can also be effective.

Alec Davis is the top wide receiver, although he did not play in the opener. That afforded an opportunity for Gerald Nvule, Stefan Zandbergs, George Casey and Pat Gill to show they can catch the ball, too.

Co-captain Dan McGurl and Nick Vallas are the returning starters on the offensive line that did a good job opening holes and protecting the passer on Saturday. McGurl will also help out at defensive tackle and nose-guard.

Zandbergs and Nvule can be effective for the Sachems at defensive end while Cole King also help out on defensive line.

John Dooley, Marrocco and sophomore Parker Carey lead a linebacker corps that played well on Saturday. Costello and Michael Thompson could help them while mixing time between safety and linebacker.

Rounding out the secondary are Ntege, George Casey, Quinn Johnson and Tim O'Brien at cornerback.

Dembowski feels better about this year's team now that he has a year under his belt in Winchester and the players have a better grasp of the game plan.

FREEDOM DIVISION

1. BURLINGTON

With perhaps the top running back duo in the Middlesex League, the Red Devils stayed in contention for the Small Schools Division title last year and finished with a 7-4 overall record. But a defensive let-down led to disappointing losses to Wakefield and Wilmington late in the season which cost Burlington a chance at post-season play.

But while losing just 12 to graduation including running back Kyle Shields, a four-year veteran, Burlington still has a great deal of experience back this season. The Red Devils return eight starters on offense, including several skill position players, and seven on defense. That should provide enough experience and depth everywhere to give the Red Devils a good shot to contend for the now Liberty Division title.

A key spot where Burlington has experience is at quarterback where junior Shane Farley (6-3, 180) passed for 961 passing yards and 10 touchdowns. His top passing targets are junior Christien Morneweck (6-4, 190) and senior Harrison Smoske (6-1, 170), while senior Jirair Manoukian (6-0, 207) is back at tight end.

While the Red Devils lost Shields, they still have another fourth-year varsity veteran in senior running back Marcus Odiah (6-0, 190), who rushed for 1,395 yards last year and 21 touchdowns. Odiah ran for 292 rushing yards in Burlington's season opener against Billerica. Another senior Anthony Cruz (5-9, 170), the team's third-leading rusher last year, will now be the team's other top ball carrier.

Up front the Red Devils have some size and experience on the offensive line with senior Mark Woods (6-5, 252) and junior Brandon Kelly (5-10, 245) at tackle, and seniors Dominic Calicchio (5-11, 190) and Mike Lockney (6-0, 210) at guard, while senior Nick Gochis (5-10, 185) and Joe Morgan (5-8, 194) will alternate at center.

On the defensive side Woods and Kelly will be the tacklers, while Manoukian and Lockney will be the ends.

The Red Devils also have some experience in the defensive backfield, where senior Chris Arria (5-9, 182), junior Guiseppe Mollica (5-8, 195), Calicchio, and Cruz will be the linebackers. In the secondary, Odiah and Smoske will be the cornerbacks, while Morneweck will play at safety.

Arria will handle the place-kicking duties, Manoukian the kickoffs, and Calicchio will be the punter.

2. WAKEFIELD

If the Wakefield High football team is going to repeat as Middlesex League divisional champions, it will likely have to do it in the trenches.

After going to the MIAA Division 2A EMass Super Bowl last year, the Warriors are breaking in a new quarterback in junior Mike Miller with senior running back Dan Cardillo getting a bulk of the work behind him.

Wakefield's strength is in its lines, led by seniors Mark O'Brien and Mike Amentola. Both are offensive tackles and standouts on the defensive line as well, and head coach Mike Boyages thinks it may be his team's play on that side of the ball that determines its success.

"We're not gonna be an overpowering team this year," said Boyages. "Our defense is going to be a big key this year for us. I was concerned about our quarterback and backfield coming into the year, but I was very pleased with the way they performed in the first game."

That first game was a 31-7 win over Lexington Friday night. Miller ran for a touchdown and threw for two more, both to Cardillo, who also ran in a score of his own.

Cardillo is part of an experience defensive backfield, featured senior strong safety Luke Ingersoll and senior corners Kendall Hamilton and Conor Coogan. Senior linebackers Tyler McDonald and Alec Brown lead a solid group.

Wakefield also has what could be a dangerous weapon in sophomore receiver and defensive back Bruce Brown. A likely future Div. 1 college basketball player, Brown brings plenty of athleticism to the Warriors.

Boyages knows, though, that things will be tough following the success of 2011.

"After last year, people are going to be going for us this year," said Boyages. "We're probably gonna have to play better than we did last year. We can't look past any team."

3. MELROSE

If Melrose repeats the success it had in 2011, when it finished 8-3, it will be thanks to some new faces.

The Red Raiders lost four starters on the offensive line as well as a pair of All-League running backs. Fortunately for they still have quarterback and captain Bryan Reale to direct their spread offense.

"Reale is a three-year starter at the quarterback position," said Melrose coach Tim Morris, entering his 19th season. "He can run and throw the ball and he will be a major key to our success this year."

The Red Raiders do return a talented group of wide receivers led by captain Nick Campbell.

Looking to fill the void at running back is another captain, Dean Anderson. Anderson saw a lot of action two years ago as a sophomore, but missed virtually all of last year after going down with an injury in the season opener. Malik Garrett and Shane McKinley are two other players who will see a lot of carries this year.

Melrose's fourth captain is Jamie Ferrira who is the lone returning starter on the line.

The defense will be anchored by linebacker Dan Griffin who started last year, Campbell and Ferrira are the two other returning starters on the defensive side of the ball at safety and tackle respectively.

Melrose is the only team in the Middlesex League that plays all 11 other teams after the league split into the large and small divisions. They were a thorn in the side of the large schools last year as it went 6-0 in crossover games.

4. WILMINGTON

Entering last season Wilmington did not know exactly what to expect as it began its first season in the Middlesex League Small. As it turned out the unknown went very well for the Wildcats who posted a 6-4 overall record on the season, including a very impressive 4-1 mark and second place finish in the Middlesex Small.

As they open play in their second season in the Middlesex Small, the Wildcats are once again faced with the unknown, except this time it has less to do with the league they have shown they are more than ready to compete in, but rather their own roster.

The Wildcats suffered several key losses off of last year's successful season, including their entire starting offensive backfield, and the key to their season this year will be how well they are able to replace those key pieces.

While the Wildcats will miss all of the seniors they lost to graduation as they head into their new season, none will be missed more than their starting offensive backfield of quarterback Matt Ferreira and running backs John Parsons and Ed DeLucia.

The quarterbacks figure to be junior James O'Regan and senior Pat Barry, both of whom have impressed Barry during the preseason. O'Regan will begin the season under center, but it is likely Barry will see some playing time as well.

Senior Justin MacKinnon will be the Wildcats starting tailback, and while it may be hard for him to duplicate Parsons 1,300-yard season from a year ago, Barry knows he is a very talented back.

Sam Silva, Jake Gingras and Eli Jennings will rotate in at fullback as well as tailback.

When the Wildcats are not running the ball there will be a wide array of receivers for the quarterback to choose from, starting with senior wide receivers Tim Woods and Sam Borsetti, both returning starters.

Of course, all of the offensive talent in the world at the skill positions will not mean anything without a strong offensive line and the Wildcats certainly seem to be well equipped in that area with an offensive line that boasts three returning starters among five very talented players.

Senior guards and returning starters Brendan Ahern and Dan Pendenza will anchor the line, along with fellow returning starter, senior Shawn Surette at left tackle. Rounding out the offensive line will be junior offensive tackle Tyler Fraser and senior center Dave Caira.

Defensively the Wildcats will be led by many of the same stars as the offense, although they still must deal with replacing Parsons at linebacker and Ferreira at defensive back, among others.

Junior Eli Jennings will return to his defensive end spot along with Brendan Ahern at the other defensive end. The Wildcats have plenty of depth at defensive tackle with the combination of Gingras, Surette, Caira, Fraser and sophomore James Hill.

Seniors Borsetti, Kevin Dunfey and sophomore Austin Ferreira will man a strong linebacker corps while the defensive backfield will see Walker and Woods shutting down opposing receivers from their cornerback positions.

Ryan Carracino will play free safety for the Wildcats, while Pat Barry will also contribute in the defensive backfield.

5. STONEHAM

After going 2-9 last year, the first win snapping a 32-game losing streak, there is reason for optimism in Stoneham this year as the Spartans return seven starters on offense and six on defense.

"We have a lot of juniors and seniors that have been starters or have played a lot," said coach Bob Almeida. "The kids have improved in the offseason and we have been steadily improving over the course of the preseason which is encouraging."

Almeida takes the reigns of the program after working as associate head coach in 2011 with Dave Pignone. He is no stranger to the head job, though, as he has done it for 17 seasons amassing 125 victories with stops at Wilmington and Malden Catholic.

The key player on offense will be quarterback Andrew Cann. The three-year starter possesses a strong arm and if given time he can make plays downfield to receivers Eric Mooney and Dylan Owens. Aaron Louis is the team's leading returning rusher and will start the year at tailback for Stoneham. Two names to look out for are fullback A.J. Kirk, who missed last season, and David Labossiere a basketball player giving football a try this fall and is a long, athletic receiver who can make plays downfield.

On defense, Stoneham will be led by its tri-captains Frankie Sparco, Matt Dabenigno and Jared Macone who will be the squad's three starting linebackers.

Stoneham's schedule this year looks very back loaded so if they hope to finish with the programs first winning record since 2006 they must hit the ground running.

"We need to start fast," Almeida said. "That schedule is only going to get tougher. But we have only won two games in four years so everyone here knows we aren't capable of overlooking any teams."

6. WATERTOWN

After three straight winning seasons, a lot of eyes will be on the Watertown High football team to see if it can take the next step.

The Red Raiders have gone 6-5, 7-4 and 6-5 the last three seasons. But after rejoining the Middlesex League last year, they put up just a 1-4 record in Small Division play, with that one victory coming against last-place Stoneham.

If Watertown is to improve on that mark, it will do so on the arm of senior quarterback Joey Farrar. The Red Raiders will likely throw more than most teams in the league, and with Farrar's talent, that could be a good thing. He threw for three touchdowns in the team's season-opening 35-22 win over Bellingham Friday night.

Logan Riley, who ran for a touchdown against Bellingham, will be Watertown's top back.

To become a factor in the league, the Red Raiders will need to improve defensively. Watertown gave up over 40 points per game in its four Small Division losses last fall after allowing 16 a game in its first six games, all wins.

• Pratt is a throwback three-sport athlete

"The time just came perfectly," said Pratt. "I had workouts one day, go straight to basketball to baseball. Some days I'd have workouts, to basketball to football. It just went perfect."

With summer over it is time to concentrate on football. Pratt is not taking his responsibility as one of the four team captains lightly. The opening night 28-0 loss to Acton-Boxborough hit him and the Tanners hard.

"I have to take control of the team and when we got down like last time we can't put our heads down," he said. "We have to get this next one (vs. Billerica), we've already hit rock bottom. There isn't anything lower."

It is a bit of deja vu all over again as Woburn lost in 2011 to A-B, 33-8, and questions began to circle as just how good the Tanners were going to be on the season after looking lackluster in the opener.

After last week, those questions have returned.

In 2011, Woburn followed up the downer to A-B with a big 12-7 upset of highly-touted Billerica. Might that be the course they take again?

"No games will be easy," said Pratt. "(Billerica) laid an egg, so to speak, against Burlington (a 49-28 loss) so they are going to come at us even harder, so it is going to be a really good game."

Pratt feels this year's team will find a way to be successful this season. He says it is a closer group and they have underestimated talent.

"I think our chemistry is better; we are more of a family," Pratt assessed. "More kids are hanging out. We all like each other and we are all friendly with each other. Captains try not to be like a real boss. If other kids have something to say, we listen to them and see what they have to say."

Nelson and his staff are more than happen to have a player like Pratt as one of its standouts and leaders. An old-school coach like Nelson likes and appreciates an old-school player like Pratt.

"He's highly respected by his team and coaches," said Nelson. "He's a very athletic defensive end and plays the run very well. He's also played some defensive tackle and he's much involved in our kicking game. He's all you can ask for as coaches."

• Odiah goes on a run with Burlington

Eventually Odiah moved over and played quarterback for awhile, but by the time he reached eighth grade, Odiah decided he just wanted to be a running back like his father was.

"I started playing football when I was eight years old, and I was a running back right away," said Odiah. "I also played some at defensive end and line-backer, and I even played at quarterback before I went back in eighth grade to running back. I decided I just wanted to be a running back on offense, and a defensive back on defense."

Odiah developed his running back talent and skill from his Pop Warner "A" coach Tom Montees, whose influence on Odiah became evident just a year later when Odiah moved up to Burlington High School. As just a freshman on the 2009 Burlington High football team, Odiah already had acquired the athletic talent and skill to be a varsity running back as a frosh.

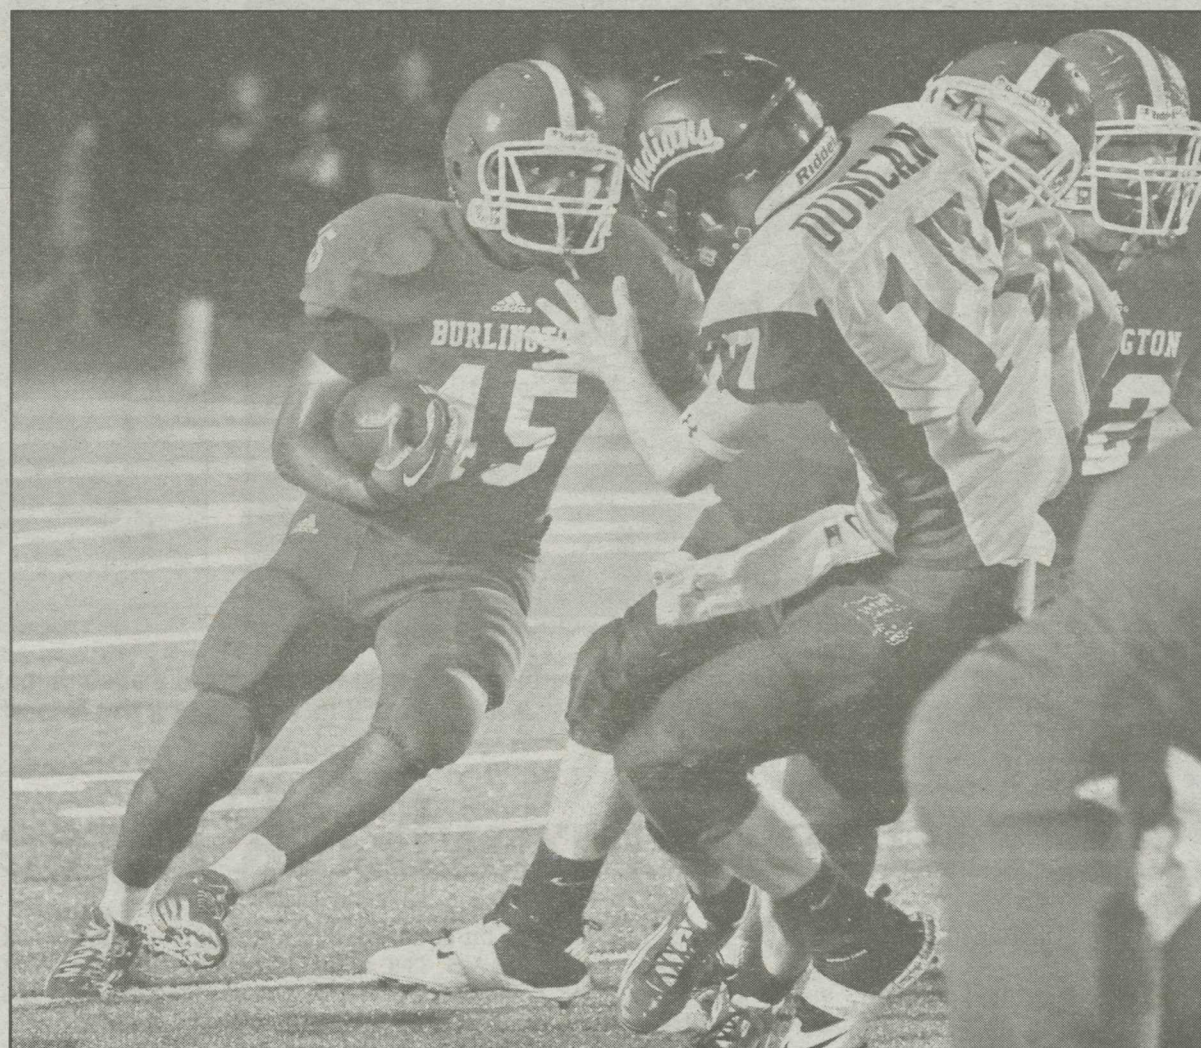

He then stepped into the starting running back role after Shane O'Neil, the starter, was lost in just the third game of that season due to a torn ACL.

Odiah, along with the team's other top running back Kyle Shields, both helped stabilize Burlington's rushing attack, for the rest of that season. Combined they helped the Red Devils finish 6-5 overall in 2009 and in 2010.

Odiah continued to work hard to further develop his athletic potential before his junior season last year, and his efforts paid off when he led the Red Devils in rushing with 1,395 rushing yards on 175 carries (eight yards/carry) and 21 touchdowns. He also was outstanding as a cornerback where he had 23 tackles and recovered three fumbles. On special teams Odiah had 10 kickoff returns for 214 yards and added six punt returns for 44 yards.

But not one to take his athletic talent for granted, Odiah, a basketball player as a freshman, opted to switch to indoor and outdoor track. Odiah quickly became one of the team's top runners.

"Marcus (Odiah) is just a very gifted kid," said Burlington head football coach Shawn Maguire. "He's a combination of a born-in talent and an extremely hard worker to become a real good running back. He BURLINGTON'S MARCUS ODIAH had a great start to his senior season with 292 yards rushing and three touchdowns against Billerica in the opener.

works real hard at what he does year-round working out and running track, and he's also developed into a great leader as one of our captains. As a talented two-way player he also does a great job for us playing on defense, so overall he's just a great football player."

Once the spring season ended Odiah prepared for his senior football season.

"I went to (football) camps, and did a lot of lifting, sprints, and conditioning," said Odiah. "I put in a lot of time working out over the summer to prepare for this season."

Odiah entered the Burlington's pre-season camp in August in great shape, and his advanced maturity and strong work ethic helped his teammates easily choose him to be one of the team's captains.

Odiah made a big impact in just his first game of the season, when he torched Billerica's defense for 292 rushing yards and three touchdowns. If this performance is any indication, Odiah will be a very tough running back for other teams to contain this season.

"Marcus works extremely hard all the time in practices running and working on his speed," said Maguire. "On every play in every practice, he goes all out and approaches it like a game. He's just a great player and a great leader, and he has a lot going for him. He ran for almost 300 yards in our first game, so not many teams are going to be able to stop him. Yet having Marcus allows us to do other things as well."

Yet the 6-0, 190-pound senior running back and cornerback is not seeking high individual rushing statistics, but to be a team player and leader. While he will likely go out for indoor and outdoor track in the winter and spring, he definitely wants to play college football but doesn't know where yet. His top priority right now is do what he can to help the Red Devils win the Freedom (Small) Division title, with perhaps a football scholarship sometime down the line.

"The league championship is all I want," said Odiah. "This is the last time I can play for my school and town, so I'm willing to play all out for my town. Individually a scholarship would be nice, but it's the league championship that I really want the most."

RYAN MANEY is the holder of two receiving records at Reading High. The 6-2, 195-pound senior has the mark for longest touchdown reception of 92 yards and is the co-holder of most single-season receptions with 37.

in everything I do. He's one of the hardest working coaches in the state. He always puts us in the right position."

Maney is an intense competitor who plays hard, but he also has his share of fun both on and off the field.

"He's a fun loving guy," Fiore said. "He keeps things interesting in practice, particularly after practice in the locker room. He adds a little humor."

"I play sports to have fun and to be with my friends. I've been playing with these guys since I was a kid—I've been playing football with (free safety and captain) Greg Connery literally since second grade. They're my family," Maney said. "You have to have a good time out there. I smile a lot more than everyone around me, but at the same time you have to stay focused on winning."

Maney considers himself blessed to have Belcher throwing him the football and a great cast of receivers around him.

"He's (Belcher) one of the best quarterbacks ever to come out of Reading," said Maney who has been known to go out to eat with the Reading junior QB on occasion. "Every time Drew drops back, he gives us an accurate ball, and he has an unbelievable arm—he can get the ball 60 yards downfield if he needs to."

Maney also credits Reading's offensive line and tight ends and realizes that the Rockets' success this year will come down to how well they can run the ball.

"I hate to say it, but we have to run the ball to be good," he said. "Our offensive line worked like dogs to get ready for this season and I trust that they'll be ready."

Like the rest of his teammates, Maney has bought into the team slogan of "All In" for the 2012 season. They're all in it, and Maney hopes that means for the long haul, all the way to a championship.

"Every single one of us is 'all in,' we're all working hard at practice, killing each other to get better," he said. "We're all in, all 50 of us, or however many are on the roster, to win the Super Bowl this year."

As for his post-high school career, Maney would like to keep playing football but says its academics first, athletics second.

"I haven't thought that far ahead, but I want to pick a school that's right for me academically," he said. "If it's a school that allows me to play football, that's great. But I'm not going to play in the NFL — you have to win the genetics lottery and I'm not 6-5 like Calvin Johnson — so getting an education is the No. 1 priority in college."

"It's really awesome having him on the team," said Brendan. "During camp we get up at the same time and have breakfast together, and go to practice, and then once the season is going we are able to talk during dinner and see how practice went for each other."

"It is a great support system because if you have a bad day at practice you have a brother who is going through same thing. I am very lucky to have him on the team and it is a huge part of the game for me."

The way we see it for the 2012 season . . .

Steve Algeri

LIBERTY DIVISION

- 1). READING ... With two kids in that high school did you think I wasn't going to pick them first?
- 2). ARLINGTON ... Black Eyed Peas said it best: "I gotta feeling."
- 3). WOBURN ... Too bad I witnessed the A-B game or may have picked them higher (2011 blurb).
- 4). LEXINGTON ... Best of the rest.
- 5). BELMONT ... Next best of the rest.
- 6). WINCHESTER ... Woburn hit you guys in the mouth 56-0. What are you gonna do about it?

FREEDOM DIVISION

- 1). BURLINGTON ... Marcus Odiah — like father (Excell Walker), like son.
- 3). WAKEFIELD ... Why is Bruce (Div. 1 college hoop prospect) Brown playing football?
- 3). MELROSE ... Will still be the "Reale Deal."
- 4). WILMINGTON ... How did this town originally nix the FieldTurf plan?
- 5). STONEHAM ... Bob Almeida gives Spartans a top-notch coach.
- 6). WATERTOWN ... Coach did not return our calls for a preview. This will fix them.

Ken Kotelly

LIBERTY DIVISION

- 1). READING ... Six straight home games gives Rockets a big boost.
- 2). WOBURN ... Should overcome tough early road trips and will get better down the stretch.
- 3). LEXINGTON ... Fine rebuilding job by Minutemen.
- 4). WINCHESTER ... Definitely better than last year's one-win disaster, but how much better?
- 5). ARLINGTON ... Spy Ponders still getting used to new surroundings.
- 6). BELMONT ... Longing for better days on Concord Ave.

FREEDOM DIVISION

- 1). BURLINGTON ... Their coaches still won't talk to me if I pick them lower than this.
- 2). WAKEFIELD ... If they beat Burlington it could mean another title and possible Super Bowl for Warriors.
- 3). MELROSE ... Finally some assistant coaches that come from Melrose.
- 4). WILMINGTON ... Without Parsons the Wildcats slip into rebuilding mode.
- 5). STONEHAM ... This may finally be the year Spartans don't finish last.
- 6). WATERTOWN ... Which means the Raiders take over the basement.

Brian Murphy

LIBERTY DIVISION

- 1). READING ... Montana to Rice; Aikman to Irvin; Belcher to Maney.
- 2). ARLINGTON ... New kid on the ML block is "hangin' tough."
- 3). WOBURN ... Ortiz hangover leaves Tanners a bit groggy.
- 4). LEXINGTON ... QB Xander Erickson is the X-Factor.
- 5). WINCHESTER ... Greater Lowell built confidence, but iron to come.
- 6). BELMONT ... They do have a nice little jazz band-thing goin' on.

FREEDOM DIVISION

- 1). BURLINGTON ... Odiah, Farley enough to carry ML's tougher division.
- 2). MELROSE ... Raiders are "For Reale."
- 3). WAKEFIELD ... It's Miller time in Warrior Land.
- 4). WILMINGTON ... Headed for a sophomore slump after fine first season in ML.
- 5). WATERTOWN ... No one can pad a schedule like the Red Raiders can; no one.
- 6). STONEHAM ... Dairy Dome has great ice cream and sandwiches, though.

Mark Nadeau

LIBERTY DIVISION

- 1). READING ... No hiccups with Belcher at the controls for explosive Rockets.
- 2). WOBURN ... Tanner offense won't be starvin' with Marvin.
- 3). BELMONT ... Victories are ice cream with Richardson at QB for Marauders.
- 4). WINCHESTER ... Ntege not the only Sachem to stop this year.
- 5). ARLINGTON ... Spy Ponders put a lot of English on it at TE.
- 6). LEXINGTON ... Minutemen put the Li in Liberty at RB.

FREEDOM DIVISION

- 1). BURLINGTON ... Outlook odious for potential Odiah tacklers.
- 2). MELROSE ... Red Raider top guns have a need for speed.
- 3). WAKEFIELD ... Color the Warrior defense Brown.
- 4). WILMINGTON ... Wildcats a little tamer this year than last.
- 5). WATERTOWN ... Wins may be tougher to come by without another Ortiz.
- 6). STONEHAM ... Spartans have a Cann-do attitude.

Jamie Pote

LIBERTY DIVISION

- 1). READING ... Easiest prediction ever. It's as obvious as the Sox getting rid of Bobby V.
- 2). LEXINGTON ... Could be a surprise behind running back Rhett Adley.
- 3). WOBURN ... A year later, and still haven't gone to Tanner Tavern yet.
- 4). ARLINGTON ... Will come back to earth after win over 'Cats.
- 5). WINCHESTER ... Connor Campbell needs some help.
- 6). BELMONT ... Long season for Marauders

FREEDOM DIVISION

- 1). WAKEFIELD ... Burlington is obvious choice but Warriors will come through.
- 2). BURLINGTON ... They let me down last year, so can't go with them again.
- 3). MELROSE ... Better than any large school team except Reading.
- 4). STONEHAM ... Almeida's squad will surprise many.
- 5). WILMINGTON ... Don't feel like getting the flack for picking them last.
- 6). WATERTOWN ... Flip a coin with Wildcats.

"Root, Root, Root" for the Tanners!

Best Wishes for a Successful Season!
Hope the Tanners BRUSH AWAY the Competition!
